Britain Will Reduce Imports, Slash Rations, Control Jobs In Effort to Halt Dollar Drain

Brewster, Hughes Swap Accusations Face to Face

Planemaker Repeats Story of Proposed Deal Under Oath; 'Lie,' Says Senator

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In a tensely dramatic scene, Howard Hughes, multimillionaire plane builder, from Hollywood, and Owen Brewster, junior Senator from Maine, faced each other across a Senate witness stand yesterday as "plain citizens under oath."

A record-breaking crowd stood hushed as Brewster, his voice breaking, swore before his own Senate War Investigating Committee that Hughes' charges of his collusion with Pan American Airways are false.

Just a little earlier the gaunt, dark airman from Hollywood had taken the stand to say:

"I charge specifically that during a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel Senator Brewster in so many words told me that if I would agree to merge TWA with Pan American and would go along with his community airline bill, there would be no further investigation of my company."

No Cross-Examination

Hughes had refused to testify about his charges against Brewster unless he were assured the same privileges as the Senator from Maine.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), chairman of the subcommittee which has been investigating the Government's 40-million-dollar wartime contracts with Hughes, ruled that both Hughes and Brewster may submit questions but neither may cross-examine the other.

Leaning forward earnestly, Brewster said:

"I can assure you that I never made any such proposition to him."

The Senator, veteran of many a tough floor fight in House and Senate remarked that "it sounds more like Hollywood than Washington for anyone to conceive of a man in public life making so bald a proposition."

Scene Without Precedent

It was an unprecedented situation even for the Senate's caucus room, whose marble walls have held such scenes as a midget sitting on J. P. Morgan's lap and Cabinet officers battling out their differences.

Never before has the chairman of the Senate Investigation Committee waived his congressional immunity and appeared as a witness to answer charges raised by any person under committee inquiry.

And Ferguson made it plain that this was to be no precedent for any person to choke off an investigation by raising charges against a committee.

In the background was the gigantic battle of two powerful airlines, TWA and Pan American, for world commercial flying routes, and from off stage came the continuous rumble of the 1948 political campaign.

Hearing Televised

Hughes, who controls TWA, came to the stand first. He was 13 minutes late, while a crowd, packed literally to the windowsills, shifted and stared inside the room and a still bigger crowd, winding around three corridors of the Senate Office Building, waited outside.

Six movie cameras and one television camera started grinding away as the Hollywood producer and flier entered the room. Twenty newspaper photographers rushed to surround the witness stand.

It was the first hearing of any congressional committee which had been televised. Batteries of microphones for seven radio stations faced witnesses and committee.

Hughes couldn't remember the exact date of his luncheon with Brewster at the Mayflower, but he said it was one or two days after he had testified before the committee in secret session.

He had a previous visit with Brewster, he said, in Brewster's office.

"I had been told Senator Brewster was a very tricky person," he

U. S. Rejects Russian Plan Of A-Control

Lake Success, Aug. 6 (AP).—The United States rejected today as "inadequate" and "wholly inacceptable" Russia's proposal for an international control commission for atomic energy.

This evoked a dramatic plea from Poland, which has stood alone with Russia in the long atomic negotiations, for understanding among the nations and a solemn statement that "we are approaching step by step another conflict."

The developments came as the Political Committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission met under what Roland Liem of China called the "grim shadow" of Hiroshima. He noted that this was the second anniversary of the first use of the atomic bomb in war and said the delegates must prevent the "mass disaster" that would come from an atomic war.

The net result on the anniversary was that the nations still are a long way from any kind of an agreement on atomic control.

Australia, Canada, Belgium and China quickly expressed approval of the United States views voiced by Frederick H. Osborn, United States deputy on the Atomic Commission.

Russia plans a reply next Friday.

On June 11, Russia put before the delegates a plan for an international control commission to be established by a separate convention.

Osborn said the Russian plan

'Old Guard' Vote Surprises Arlington

'Progressives' Fail To Show Expected Strength in Primary

As a show of strength of Arlington County's "old-guard" Democrats, Tuesday's Democratic primary was a success.

This was the opinion yesterday of political observers, who appeared surprised that the "progressive" Democrats had failed to exhibit anticipated strength in the polling Tuesday.

But the spotlight on the primary by yesterday had turned away from Arlington County to nearby Fairfax County, where a phenomenally close race for a seat in the House of Delegates still had the county agog.

All during the ballot counting Tuesday night, Robert J. McCandlish carried a lead over his opponent, Edwin M. Lynch, incumbent member of the House of Delegatese. The race was close, but it did not turn in Lynch's favor until the last precinct, Falls Church, reported 563 votes for Lynch to 478 for McCandlish. This gave Lynch 2854 votes to 2852 for McCandlish.

McCandlish May Ask Recount

Yesterday, McCandlish indicated he probably would ask for a recount of the returns, if they are made official.

Today, a three-man board of canvassers, named by the county electoral board, will check the returns made on Tuesday night. They will tally figures furnished by individual precincts, but will not check actual ballots. McCandlish said that if these figures show he still is losing by such a relatively small margin, he expects to file a petition for a recount.

In Fairfax County yesterday, most Democrats seemed surprised at the decisive margin by which

Curtailment Of Welfare Cases Asked

300 of 5800 May Be Cut From Rolls To Avoid Paring All Clients' Checks

The Board of Public Welfare yesterday gave tentative approval for tightening relief requirements to eliminate 300 of 5800 clients rather than slice 10 per cent from all relief checks.

Welfare Director Ray L. Huff told the board "drastic" action was necessary to pare the welfare program from his "minimum" $2,217,000 estimate to the $1,934,470 which Congress actually appropriated for fiscal 1948.

To save $272,536 without cutting relief payments, a minority of the board adopted the following program subject to approval by the full board:

1. Stop relief payments where individuals or heads of families have full-time jobs.

2. Discontinue payments to persons eligible for unemployment compensation or those ineligible because they fail to register for work, refuse to work, leave jobs without good reason, or are fired for misconduct.

Diet Allowance Omitted

3. Omit allowances for special diets ordered by doctors for patients outside District institutions.

4. Cut out extra rent allowances. Limit rent payments to a scale ranging from $38 a month for one person cooking his own meals to $60 a month for 10 persons. Cost of heat, utilities and refrigeration must be met within these limits.

Make no rent payments to persons who live with self-sustaining relatives.

5. Expect responsible relatives (husband, wife, parent, child or grandchild living or earning a living in the District) to contribute to support of dependent persons. Individuals should share with relatives one-half of any gross annual income in excess of $2000. Families should share half of a gross annual income over $2600, with an exemption of $600 for each child or other dependent.

6. Stop payments to individuals whose monthly deficit is less than $10 or to families whose monthly deficit is less than $20.

Cases Carefully Checked

If shares of relatives' income would cover this deficit, relief payments would not be made, regardless of whether the relative actually provided the money.

The curtailment program was drawn up following a careful check of cases by case workers.

Huff pointed out that clients have already suffered a 35 per cent cut in the real value of relief dollars because evidence of need is based on 1942 living costs.

99 Military Planes Sold to Brazil in June

The State Department yesterday announced that 99 American military aircraft, including 89 combat planes, were sold to Brazil in June for $1,194,500. Their original cost was $12,903,645.

The department also announced the sale to Sweden of 5,500,000 rounds of .50-caliber ammunition in May at the original purchase cost of $787,096.

Its report showed sales of torpedoes, mine sweepers, landing craft, ocean (rescue) tugs, a patrol frigate and one tank to Peru; spare airplane parts to Uruguay, and 20 planes, including fighters, to Venezuela.

REFLECT THE STRAIN OF ECONOMIC CRISIS—Outside the Houses of Parliament yesterday, Londoners stand quietly, anxiously awaiting reports on Prime Minister Attlee's speech before the House of Commons on England's sickly economic condition. Attlee's Program Fails to Convince Opposition He Can Meet Crisis

By Don Cook

London, Aug. 6.—Heavy cuts in food and other imports, coupled with measures to boost industrial production and exports, were announced to Commons today as the Labor government's program for meeting Britain's economic crisis.

Certain that "Britain cannot and will not" base its economic plan on any assumption of outside aid, Prime Minister Attlee in a one-hour-and-twenty-minute speech to a packed and attentive Commons outlined the program which will put the country virtually on a wartime economic footing but with a diet reduced even by wartime standards.

"Today we are engaged in another Battle of Britain," Attlee warned.

On the home front, the Labor Government is resuming direction of labor in an effort to get more manpower into export industries. Production targets for coal and steel are being raised and overtime work is being asked in all industries where the move can make a contribution to exports.

To Reduce Purchases

Overseas, particularly in the United States, Britain is to reduce her purchases by a total figure of approximately 125 million pounds (500 million dollars) during the remainder of the year. Food purchases will suffer the heaviest cut—12 million tons a month, representing 40 per cent of purchases in hard currency areas, and approximately 25 per cent of the total food import program.

Dollar expenditures on American films are to be reduced through blocking the earnings. Timber imports are to be cut £10,000,000 (40 million dollars), which virtually wipes them out, and with the cut will bring the housing program to a standstill. Gasoline imports are to be cut £4,000,000 (16 million dollars) and the domestic ration reduced accordingly by one-third. Another £5,000,000 (20 million dollars) is to be saved on imports of consumer goods on dollar countries.

Attlee Faces Tense House

Finally, on the question of Britain's armed forces, Attlee announced that by next March, 200,000 of the 500,000 men overseas will have been brought home. This, he said, will result in a substantial saving of foreign exchange as well as manpower. However, the net total reduction over that planned in April will amount to only 80,000 men so that it appears that the number of men in the armed forces at home actually is to increase.

Attlee faced a house which was tense with anticipation, sharpened by an opening speech from the Conservative bench, pledging support for any program in the national interests, but demanding that import cuts be made part of an over-all plan to put the country on its feet economically.

When he sat down, it must be

Truman to Fly Soon to Rio on Good-Will Trip

Due to Reach Brazil Capital in Last Days Of Defense Meeting

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, taking up again his role of good-will envoy, will fly to Rio de Janeiro the latter part of this month or early in September.

He will return aboard the battleship Missouri.

Mr. Truman expects to arrive in the picturesque capital of Brazil in the closing days of the 20-nation Western Hemisphere Defense Conference. Nothing was said about it yesterday at the White House, but he doubtless will deliver a major address.

Announced by Ross

The following announcement was made by Press Secretary Charles G. Ross:

"The President sincerely appreciated the cordial invitation recently extended to him by His Excellency Gaspar Dutra of Brazil to make a visit to that country, and expressed the hope that it would be possible at an early date for him to accept.

"President Truman is now most happy to confirm his acceptance, and the trip is being scheduled to take place during the latter part of August or the early days of September.

"The President plans to proceed to Rio de Janeiro by air for a three-day visit, and to return on the USS Missouri."

Mr. Truman is expected to fly to Rio in the new four-motored presidential plane, the Independence, successor to the Sacred Cow.

Some of the Chief Executive's political aides have been trying to persuade him to get on a slow train and ramble around the

U. S. Arms, Bought and Stolen, Go to Latin America Hot Spots

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

American arms for some time have been flowing into Latin America in a complex and dangerous outbreak of wholesale filibustering, it has been established by The Washington Post.

These munitions, including small arms, ammunition, aircraft and ships, are destined for revolutionists in at least two countries, and possibly in three others. The revolutionists themselves represent both the extreme right and the extreme left.

Some of the material has been bought legally from war surplus. Some has been stolen from several million tons stored in arsenals which the Army is unable to guard adequately with the attenuated forces at its disposal in this country.

Its purchase or theft and its secret shipment through Mexico or out of lonely inlets on the southeastern coast of the United States is financed by revolutionary organizations established in New York and in Florida. Some of these organizations are well-knit and well led and appear to have considerable funds at their disposal.

Foremost target of the leftist is the Dominican Republic, where Decisive clash expected in Paraguay revolt. Page 8.

Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Molina has established a firm and vigorous dictatorship. The rightists' target is Venezuela, freed only 12 years ago from a generation of police rule under Cipriano Castro and Juan Vicente Gomez.

Communists have taken advantage of the anti-Trujillo movement to absorb it in large measure in a bold move to seek a communications and operating base in the heart of the Western Hemisphere. Their present operating bases are in the United States and Cuba.

Trujillo himself, fearing invasion by a leftist force, nevertheless is known to be giving considerable aid to the Venezuelan rightists. This party is based in the United States and probably in the Dominican Republic.

Official Hurriedly Recalled

In this regard, it is known that only recently a high official in the Dominican Embassy here was hurriedly recalled by his government when it was learned that he was collaborating with Venezuelan emigres in this country. He was and is close to the Trujillo government.

Other Latin American countries in which unrest has been so real that it has been felt here are Costa Rico, Guatemala and Nicaragua. To what extent any of these countries may be involved in the current international tangle is not yet clear. It is certain that other Latin American countries have refused to admit Nicaragua to the Rio conference unless it rids itself of its present government.

Headquarters of the anti-Trujillo movement, which has unquestionably launched a thrust (though it may have been abortive) against the Dominican Republic, are in New York City. Headquarters of

U. S. Science Foundation Bill Is Vetoed

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

With "deep regret," President Truman yesterday vetoed a bill to set up a National Science Foundation. In a memorandum of disapproval, he denounced the measure, bluntly and in great detail, as administratively unsound.

The proposed foundation, he said, was to be set up in such a way that it would be "divorced from control by the people to an extent that implies a distinct lack of faith in democratic processes."

The National Science Foundation, whose creation has been debated through two session of Congress, was to supervise scientific activities for the Government, promote work in pure science and farm out research projects on a contract basis to private institutions.

Two Agencies Affected

Two Federal agencies have been left high and dry by the veto. The agencies are the Office of Scientific Research and Development and the National Roster of Scientific and Professional Personnel. Both agencies were to be transferred to the proposed foundation. The OSRD is an independent agency; the roster is a division in the United States Employment Service. Neither agency has adequate funds to continue.

The bill that Mr. Truman vetoed, authored by Senator Smith (R., N. J.), carried no appropriations with it. It was expected, however, that Congress would later authorize many millions of dollars for the foundation to dispense as grants in aid to scientific institutions.

The measure was supported by many educational institutions and scientific foundations. It ran into heavy opposition from members of

U. S. to Discuss 'Liberalizing' British Loan

Marshall Is Not Sure Of Time or Place of Coming Conference

Secretary of State Marshall disclosed yesterday that the United States has agreed to a conference looking to a "liberalization" of the terms of the $3,750,000,000 American loan to Britain.

Britain, which has been running into a dollar famine, asked for the conference 10 days or two weeks ago.

Secretary Marshall told reporters that he did not know when or where the Anglo-American conference would be held, but in London it was stated that top civil service experts from the British Treasury, Board of Trade and Foreign Office would start revision talks soon—"probably next week in either Washington or London."

The London Evening Standard said the British "dollar mission" probably would come here and would be composed of Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin, Board of Trade President Sir Stafford Cripps, and perhaps Prime Minister Clement Attlee. This was not confirmed in any official source.

Congressional Status Uncertain

Whether the proposed "liberalization" of the terms of the Anglo-American loan agreement would require approval of Congress was not clear yesterday.

Secretary Marshall said that, on the basis of information from the British, he did not think congressional action would be needed. He added later, however, that such questions would have to be answered by the Treasury.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, about the same time, was telling reporters that the United States already had taken what steps it could to help the British without asking for congressional approval. He appeared to think that any further liberalization of the loan agreement would have to win consent on Capitol Hill.

The seeming confusion appeared to be due, not to any conflict of thought between Secretaries Marshall and Snyder, but to lack of official information as to what Britain was going to propose in the way of revision of the loan agreement.

In London a high source said

1000 Fight Forest Fire Which Kills 2, Injures 50

Los Angeles, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Almost 1000 men fought tonight to control a day-old fire that has burned more than 2000 acres in the foothills above Los Angeles, killed two men and injured more than 50 others, 15 seriously enough to be hospitalized.

The fire spread up the steep slopes of Big Tujunga Canyon at the rate of a quarter mile an hour and sent vacationists fleeing with their belongings from threatened cabins. An estimated 100 homes lay in the threatened area.

'Apartment-Size' Victims

3 Small Dogs Kill or Wound Some 75 Prize Md. Turkeys

About 75 specially developed "apartment size" turkeys at the University of Maryland were killed or wounded early yesterday when three small dogs squeezed through floor slats and went on a turkey rampage.

One of the culprits—a brown wire-haired terrier—was shot by university police as he hid under one of the pens. The other two—described as a small "slick brown" and a "slick black" dog—escaped the police.

The dogs recognized turkeys of distinction. Passing up a pen of common black birds, they concentrated on three pens of "Beltsville Whites," a special breed developed at the Agriculture Department Experiment Station at Beltsville, Md., for use in small homes, such as city apartments.

The birds average about 13 pounds each—with a larger proportion of meat than on the run-of-the-yard variety. The meat is lighter—so light that some raisers claim that they are "all white meat, even the drumsticks."

The ravaged variety, which fits into a small refrigerator, has been introduced into 32 States and Hawaii. It represents the product of nine years of experimentation aimed at developing turkeys light on bone and heavy on meat.

In the first of the three pens visited by the dogs, 25 turkeys were killed. In the second pen, most of the birds were killed or so seriously wounded that police ended their misery and in the third pen the death toll ran to half of the occupants.

Dan Wiseman, police chief at the university, estimated the commercial value of the victims at $1000. Members of the school's poultry department were attending a poultry conference at Westminster, Md., and could not be reached for a more detailed estimate.

Text of Attlee's Address to Commons on Program to Meet Crisis

Labor Government To Impose Rigid Controls Over Nation's Economy

London, Aug. 6 (AP).—A partial text of Prime Minister Attlee's statement today in Commons:

WE had to pay for the war (First World War) with an immense proportion of our foreign investments; increased industrialism abroad thrust heavily on us and we found ourselves instead of having a large export surplus, as before the First World War, afterwards with our balance of payments only achieved with great difficulty.

And the Second World War has been more costly. Let us remember that for a whole year we stood alone. The greater part of our foreign investments have been sold. Our debts accumulated. Our export trade was reduced to less than one third. . . .

The United States and Canadian loans were essential measures to buy time for ourselves; the time which was also needed for the rest of the Old World to recover. . . .

We all hoped the loan would last us . . . well into 1949, possibly into 1950, by which time there was a reasonable chance that we should have redeployed our economy and be in sight of equilibrium. As things have turned out it is now certain that that loan will be exhausted before the end of this year. . . .

WE are compelled to buy largely from the Western Hemisphere in dollars and at high prices.

The rest of the world is suffering from the same difficulties. . . . so there is a world shortage of dollars.

The salient feature of recent developments is an increase in the dollar deficit.

For the year 1946 our total dollar deficit was under £350,000,000 ($1,400,000,000) even if we include the Canadian dollar outgoings.

Drain Must Be Halted

In the first six months of 1947 the United States dollar deficit was 405 million pounds ($1,620,000,000), representing an annual rate of 810 million pounds ($3,240,000,000).

It is clear therefore, that the drain cannot be allowed to go on at this rate. It is sometimes assumed that all our difficulties have arisen because of the loan agreement with the United States and in particular because of its provisions concerning convertibility and nondiscrimination.

The problem of convertibility is really a problem of the world shortage of dollars rather than one arising particularly from the loan agreement.

BEFORE the war, sterling could be transferred into any other currency in London and, this is the function of an international curency. A return to this position has always been the objective of the government.

The American loan was designed to help us to return to that position at an early date. On that policy we have no intention of turning our backs.

It is clear that in the world shortage of dollars the formal obligation under the loan agreement puts an increasing strain upon us.

Position Now Changing

As to nondiscrimination, the provisions of the loan agreement have hardly been operative at all because we have bought practically all the available supplies from outside the hard currency countries as well as having to buy them from these countries. . . .

The position is now changing and with these cuts in imports now proposed the question of discriminating purchases becomes of much more importance.

We approached the problem of the postwar world with a wish to establish speedily multilateral trade and convertible currencies. They are not yet in sight and it is clear that unless a multilateral system can be made to work, supported by adequate finances, it will become incumbent upon us to seek our way out of our difficulties by another line.

AS TO the steps which have been taken we have been in constant consultation with the United States Government on these matters. There was a way open to give notice under clause 12 of the loan agreement, but this would not cover the whole field. We are proceeding to seek consultation on other difficulties.

We suggested to the United States Government as a first step that there should be official discussions on these matters. I am glad to be able to tell the House that Mr. Marshall immediately agreed to these discussions. . . .

We intend to play our full part in the efforts started at the Paris conference to see how the countries of Europe can best help themselves and each other and can turn to the best advantage of the world and themselves the suggestions made in the speech of Mr. Marshall.

Meanwhile, it is incumbent upon us to spare no efforts to remedy our own position and to make sure that we are in a position to make the fullest contribution we can to our own recovery and to that of the world. . . .

FIRST, we shall apply ourselves to the further development of our resources at home. We must concentrate as much of those resources as we can on the reconstruction and development of our basic industries and services on which our whole economy depends.

Secondly, we must increase our total output so as to stand on our own legs as soon as possible and we will press on with plans to expand our production in the colonial empire . . .

It may be that the chain of events started by Secretary Marshall's speech will lead to further help for the recovery of the Old World, but we cannot and will not base our plans on that assumption . . .

Definite targets are being set for basic industries.

First of all, there was coal . . .

Coal and Steel Needed

We have put before the mine workers' leaders a proposal that while preserving the five-day week . . . there shall be, as an emergency measure for a limited period, an extra half hour's work a day . . . Our aim is an average output for the six months from September 1 to April 30 of at least four million tons a week of deep mine coal and we want as much open cast coal as we can get in addition . . .

Second only in importance to coal is steel. During the winter months production should be running at an annual rate of about 13,500,000 ingot tons, and production for 1947 as a whole should reach 12,500,000 ingot tons . . . our target for 1948 is 14,000,000 ingot tons. . . .

We want to supply more engines and more boxcars for the railways. We shall see that the materials are delivered and the labor found to speed up the construction and repair of transport equipment. . . . Transport is the conveyor belt of industry—it must keep pace with production. . . .

AGRICULTURE is a great potential dollar-saver. We must produce more—a great deal more—of our food at home to replace imports which we can no longer afford to buy, especially expensive dollar imports. . . .

The government is going to set a high target before agriculture—nothing less than an extra 100 million pounds worth of food by 1951-52. That is a 20 per cent increase on the present output. . . .

We have suspended the callup of young men in agriculture but we shall need 100,000 workers. We shall need a big capital outlay and heavy commitments on the part of the agricultural producers.

The government will take account of this and the Minister of Agriculture will announce this month the new scales of prices for future production . . .

National Effort Asked

What we are asking is a national effort. We want this effort to run through all industries . . .

Obviously we must lean still further to the side of exports. I am well aware that this means hardship to many people, especially to housewives who have endured with great patience many shortages. I am sure that everybody will tell them that these things are not the wanton act of the government but are necessary for the country.

IN THE economic survey the export target was put at 140 per cent in volume of 1938 by the end of 1947.

Owing to the fuel and weather crisis at the beginning of the year that target cannot be reached . . . but for the year 1948 we must raise our sights.

Our target will be 140 per cent of 1938 by the end of the first half and 150 per cent by the end of the year.

I do not disguise from the House

that these are going to be very difficult targets to reach.

It is clear that in order to do all these things we must insure that fuel, raw materials, labor and industrial capacity are made available where they are required.

For this we require two things: first, an increase in productivity; second, the direction of effort into the channels where it will be most fruitful.

This will involve an effort by all those engaged in industry and will involve some sacrifice of individual liberty—by both employers and workers.

We shall have to ask or, if necessary, issue directions to firms to insure that their capacity is used to produce not those goods which will produce the highest profit, but those which are most needed in the interests of the national economy.

We shall have to take some measure of control over the employment of labor.

DURING that war we had to use full powers of direction of labor. It has been the desire of the Government and the country to move as quickly as possible toward restoration of freedom of individuals to undertake the kind of work that they prefer.

As things have turned out, we have perhaps moved too far and too fast in this direction.

We propose to reimpose the control over the engagement of labor which was almost universal during the war but has since been removed except in coal mining, building and agriculture.

Longer Work Hours Planned

This will enable all workers leaving one job and seeking another to be guided into that class of work on which they can best assist towards overcoming our economic difficulties.

In addition, in order to avoid workers remaining unemployed or taking unessential work instead of accepting essential employment for which they submitted under the control of engagement scheme, it would be necessary to resume to a limited extent the use of powers of direction . . .

As an emergency measure (the government) must ask for longer hours of work wherever it can contribute to increased production. This proposal was to be regarded as emergency, to be operated only until we could see our way clear on the economic front.

Management Must Cooperate

Management too must play its part. In general . . . management is out to cooperate with the government but such cases as there are of avoidable inefficiency or lack of will to serve the nation's best interests must be dealt with and the government will not hesitate in such cases to take firm action, as was done in the war . . .

There is first the very large sums which we are expending in Germany for the feeding of our late enemies. The Foreign Secretary stated on Monday that what we cannot do when the present scheme runs out is to spend any more dollars on Germany and discussions are invited in order to devise other plans

I COME next to our defense forces and we can help in two ways, by reducing numbers and by reducing the total size of our forces at home and overseas. In the first case we should save expenditure overseas and in the second we should increase our labor force at home. At present we have some half a million men and women in the forces overseas. . . .

We now expect to withdraw some 133,000 men from overseas by the end of this year and to raise the total withdrawals from overseas to over 200,000 men by the end of next March.

In addition we are planning to return home before the end of this year some 34,000 non-United Kingdom troops whose cost is being borne by the British Exchequer.

Foreign Policy Unchanged

But I must emphasize that, despite the acceleration in the rate of withdrawal from overseas stations and although certain risks are being accepted, there is no change in our foreign policy or in the defense policy.

It was estimated that between January last and next March the forces would be reduced from 1,427,000 to 1,087,000. The estimate was based on assumptions about withdrawals from overseas but after careful review it was now considered that the number of men and women in the forces on March 31, 1948, could be reduced to 1,007,000. . . .

I NOW COME to the import program. . . .

The government have now decided that the following further cuts must be made.

The House recently gave the Chancellor powers to levy an import duty on films. The government propose to limit remittances on foreign films to not more than 25 per cent of the earnings of these films.

In his statement of June 30, the Chancellor said that we should reduce our imports of petrol. A reduction of 500,000 tons would save approximately £4,000,000 ($16,000,000). We intend to effect at least this saving. This will necessitate the reduction of the basic allowance for private motorists by one third. . . .

Travel Curbs Proposed

The Chancellor proposes as from next October 1 to reduce the foreign travel allowance from £75 ($300) for 12 months to £35 ($140) for 14 months, with a corresponding reduction in the allowance for children to £20 ($80). Allowances for businessmen traveling abroad will also be more strictly limited.

There will be a reduction amounting in value to £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) in imports of miscellaneous consumer goods of what might be called the luxury type. It will be necessary to apportion this cut with great care so as to avoid the risk of damaging the economies of other countries and their power to take our exports and to give us increased supplies of essential goods.

We propose to cut imports of timber by 10 million pounds (40 million dollars).

We also hope it may be possible to make some savings by postponing part of our cotton purchases . . .

WE had decided that we must make an immediate substantial reduction in our purchases of food from hard currency countries. We have, therefore, given instructions which will make a reduction in the rate of these purchases of the order of 12 million pounds (48 million dollars) a month.

Such a reduction rate of buying from hard currency sources will mean that we shall confine our buying from those sources to essential foods.

Our bulk, long-term contracts for staple foodstuffs from these areas will not, of course, be interfered with, but for the present we must largely confine ourselves to such purchases as far as hard currency sources are concerned. The House will wish to know what effect this decision will be likely to have upon our level of distribution of foodstuffs in the coming months. That will depend upon a number of factors. It will depend on the degree to which we are able to buy our foodstuffs from soft currency sources.

Ration Cut Possible

Insofar as these soft currency sources are, all things considered, more favorable from the commercial point of view, the question of discrimination under Article 9 of the loan agreement will not arise.

Where, however, such purchases cannot be justified under the terms of the loan agreement we shall be exploring the situation immediately with the U. S. Government to see what steps can be taken to enable us to obtain supplies from soft currency areas.

As to basic rations, we shall do everything in our power to maintain them, though we shall not take risks with our stocks. If rations have to be reduced as a result of the policy outlined, then the government will introduce a differential rationing scheme designed to give preference to heavy manual workers and preparations will be made against this contingency.

Restrictions on consumption in restaurants and hotels will, in any case, be imposed forthwith.

NOW I come to anti-inflation . . . First, there must be a tighter control over both public and private capital investment . . . I would appeal to the workers in all industries and employments not to press at this time for increases of wages or changes in conditions.

Equally I would appeal to employers not to seek to tempt workers away from essential work by offering higher inducements to work in less essential industries . . .

I would appeal to all those in control of industry and commerce to refrain from declaring high dividends.

Reasonable Prices Vital

It must be understood by all that if we wish to maintain our position in the export markets of the world we must keep prices at a reasonable level . . .

I am reminded that there is a section of the public which renders no useful service. Its members contrived to make money in all kinds of dubious ways.

We shall take action against these—I think they call them spivs—and other drones, but public opinion can be a powerful weapon.

We must also regard the habit of avoiding waste and of collecting salvage which we developed so much in the war.

I HAVE stated the causes which brought us to this position. The main cause is the fact that when the rest of the world was either defeated or was standing aside from the contest, we of the British Commonwealth of Nations stood alone in the defense of civilization and freedom. . . .

No doubt this government, like other governments, has made mistakes. I am quite sure a Conservative government would have made others.

I shall certainly not resent any reasonable criticisms. . . . I was glad to note that Mr. Stanley (Conservative Oliver Stanley) stated that, despite the strictures which he had placed on our policy, the opposition supports the efforts which the nation must now make.

Coalition Not Considered

This is in line with our tradition. I agree no question of a coalition arises. . . .

I say to one and all, this is your fight. . . . Circumstances have placed us in a position of peril and anxiety. We must fight to regain our economic freedom just as we fought to preserve our political freedom.

We are asking our colonies to help us by restricting to essentials their claims on our foreign exchange resources, which are, of course, also theirs.

But I am speaking first of all today to our own people. . . . We shall seek equality of sacrifice; we shall seek as in war to protect the weak and the children. I cannot tell the nation how long it will be before complete victory will be achieved. But I am sure of victory.

I AM a profound believer in the British way of life, in our combination of order and liberty, in our respect for justice and moral values.

These are the things that unite us, though we differ in the ways in which we seek to maintain them. We have today to get into the hearts of all our people the sense of urgency so that they may do whatever task falls to them and may endure what hardships come to them with a consciousness of the great issues at stake. . . .

Today we are engaged in another battle of Britain. This battle cannot be won by the few. It demands a united effort by the whole nation.

I am confident that this united effort will be forthcoming and that we shall again conquer.

Britain Forced to Resume Wartime Curbs on Economy

admitted that there was still strong doubts as to whether this is the program to meet the situation. As The Times will say tomorrow: "It cannot be said that the statement gave an assurance that responsibility has yet been met. Too much of the program is still in general terms or provisional. Too many decisions have still to be made by departments or trade unions."

Economic History Reviewed

The Prime Minister began with a review of Britain's past economic history—her liquidation of foreign assets to fight the war; her declining prewar productive and trade positions; the granting of the American loan and, finally the recent months which have seen the country plummeting toward crisis with no dollars to pay for imports.

Turning to the measures the government will take, Attlee said: "First, we shall apply ourselves to a further redeployment of our resources at home. We must concentrate as much as we can on reconstruction and development of industries and services on which our whole economy depends; on production of goods for export, and on the production of all those things which save us imports. This will mean cutting out unessentials and making sure that our objectives are in proper relation to our resources."

The Prime Minister then dealt with coal, steel, transportation and agriculture, outlining new production targets in the case of the first two, and general priority policies for the second two. As has already been announced, miners are being asked to work an extra half hour per day, and the union is scheduled to decide the matter later this month. The target, Attlee said, is four million tons of deep-mined coal per week for the six months from September to April.

Longer Work Hours Planned

As for lengthening the work day in other industries, Mr. Attlee said that "where deployment of labor and raw materials can show their full effect," trade unions will be asked for longer hours of work. Although he did not mention it specifically—the speech in fact was generally short on "specifics," which are to be outlined subsequently—the textile industry is one of these. Raw material exists, absolute coal priority is to be guaranteed, and overtime to increase production will accordingly be asked of the workers.

Attlee stated that "spivs and drones" will be searched out and put to work under the direction of labor measures which are being revived. He appealed to the unions not to seek for increases in wages, which would be inflationary at a time when goods available are being reduced.

Brewster Cries 'Lie' to Charges of Proposed Deal, Counters With Accusation of Trap Planned for Him testified, "and I was told that if I were going to have any conversation with him I should have someone along. So I took along a Mr. Heffron, who had been recommended to me."

Heffron, he said, was not his lawyer. Later he admitted that Heffron was a lawyer, "although not my lawyer."

Bought Lunch, Says Brewster

After he refused the Pan Am merger, Hughes testified, the committee really began "to get tough" in its investigation.

Brewster fixed the date of the much-discussed luncheon as February 12, 1947, and he added, "I paid for it out of my own pocket—$8.80."

The Maine Senator reviewed the history of the investigation into Hughes aircraft, which started in 1942, when the committee was headed by Senator Truman.

It was when he told his fellow Senators of efforts of Hugh Fulton, first counsel of the committee, to warn him "that I might regret" investigating Hughes, that Brewster first showed emotion.

Counsel 'Changed Sides'

Fulton, he said, came to him on April 3, 1947, and said he was there as both a friend of Hughes and a friend of Brewster.

Brewster said he was so angry at Fulton's insistence that he called in his secretary and dictated a statement to her in front of Fulton setting forth his position in regard to the investigation.

On April 16 ,Brewster said, Fulton notified George Meader, then committee counsel, that he had become a counsel for Hughes.

According to a Meader memorandum which Brewster read into the record, Fulton advised Meader that he might be in the thick of it "with brickbats flying" and urged him not to advise the committee but leave the decision on whether or not to go ahead with the Hughes investigation up to Brewster.

Charges 'Trap' Was Laid

"That reveals pretty clearly the trap they were trying to lay for me," cried Brewster.

It was a moment or so before emotion would let him continue.

They (presumably Hughes and his associates) were going to attempt to show that Brewster, for personal reasons, pushed the inquiry, he said.

"I promptly appointed a subcommittee, named Senator Ferguson chairman, and let the chips fall where they may. I will not yield to a campaign of this nature."

"This is a serious matter," Brewster declared. "If a member of the Senate or this committee is to be intimidated in this manner, then Senate investigations might as well cease."

Brewster testified that he first met Hughes some time ago when members of the Senate were invited to ride in "The Constellation" in its maiden flight to Washington.

He did not talk with Hughes, again he said, until February 8, of this year when Hughes called him from Kansas City. He saw him on February 10 in his office, on February 11 at an executive session of the committee and again on February 12 at the luncheon.

Brewster said he also had a telephone call from Hughes from Los Angeles during the week of March 3, 1947.

He introduced a partial transcript of the call into the record.

Partial Transcript

As recorded the transcript was: (He explained that the beginning was not recorded.)

"Senator: — you haven't indicated your policy and that was all. You hadn't indicated your views in one way or another and I told them that today. I think, I don't know last week whether anybody called me or not. I don't know what the source of the stories were. I couldn't find out.

"Hughes: I have tried to get hold of you because I thought I ought to speak with you before talking to the press.

"Brewster: It is very nice of you to call. Have they called you today?

"Hughes: No, not this was last week.

"Brewster: Well, today a fellow called me, the Journal of Commerce in New York and apparently it had just gotten around to them and so they asked me the two questions: Did you say that you were going to merge overseas and did you say you believed in the community company and I said the answer to both questions is no.

"Hughes: Well, I had to deny the merger because that put the whole TWA organization into a spin, as you can well imagine.

Sought Stories' Source

"Senator: Yes. Well somebody—what I said to them it looks to me as though somebody was inspiring these stories in order to embarrass either you or me or both of us because it certainly does, nothing which I have said at any time which could possibly be construed that way, and responsible journalism should ask someone to father these children and I'd like to find out who it is. They may have thought they could put you in a hole or put me in a hole or put both of us so you can just depend o nit that I have said nothing at any time that could in any way be construed and that is to me significant because these things don't just happen.

"Hughes: Yes, Well, anyway, that's all over.

"Senator: Yes.

"Hughes: I didn't mention the community line at all. I just denied the Pan American story. You are coming to the coast, are you?

Postponed Trip West

"Senator: Well, I had been hoping to get out this weekend. I have two or three things out there I wanted to see but it looks now as though it would be postponed perhaps a couple of weeks on account of things here. They are getting a little congested.

"Hughes: Sherman Fairchild (aircraft manufacturer) told me you thought you could be out.

"Senator: Yes, I have to go to Lincoln, Nebr., Thursday for a big meeting out there and I thought—and then I am in Chicago Friday—and Ithought I could save 1000 miles at least by going on out but it doesn't look now as if I could get away. You are going to be there for the next two or three weeks, are you?

"Hughes: Well, I'll be here for the next six months.

"Senator: I'll certainly let you know when I am gettin gout there and I would like to have a chance to spend a little time with you.

"Hughes: I would enjoy it too, so if I give you my address why don't you have your secretary send me a wire when you are coming."

The transcript wound up with an exchange of pleasantries.

Elliott Suggests Broader Investigation

New York, Aug 6 (AP).—Elliott Roosevelt declared today upon his arrival from Washington by plane that "a complete investigation of military contract officers—Army, Navy and civilian—would be very productive and of great interest to the public of the United States.

When reporters asked if he believed the Senate War Investigating Committee before which he testified would disclose anything new, Roosevelt replied:

"It begins to look like there's going to be a little fun down there in the next few days."

Rooesevelt add, "It will be worth while for the committee to look into the reports I made in 1943 on the reorganization of the reconnaissance program and reports on changes in the material division."

Izvestia Takes Crack At 'U. S. Imperialism'

Moscow, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—The government newspaper Izvestia said today that Latin America's only hope for resisting United States imperialism is to solve internal and political differences within each country and to eliminate discord between countries.

"The absence of unity may have fatal consequences for the independence of these countries in the face of the organized offensive of American financial capital . . . Which recently sharply increased its activity," an article by A. A. Antonov said.

22 Die in Train Wreck

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Twenty-two persons were killed and 35 injured when the crack Bratislava-Prague passenger express hit an open switch at high speed and was derailed at the Sekule station on the Slovak-Moravian frontier late last night.

Pravda Says Estonians Front U. S. Spy Ring in Sweden

Moscow, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—The Communist Party organ Pravda said today that an Estonian refugee government in Sweden was the front for a vast anti-Soviet spy ring operated by Americans who financed the espionage network with funds transmitted through the Swedish Red Cross.

In an article by a Yuri Zhukov, Pravda said that Sweden not only harbored the organization, but also maintained direct contact with it. The Soviet Union, Zhukov added, was not satified with Swedish measures to eradicate the ring.

The charge was another in the Moscow press series attacking Sweden's handling of her relations with the Soviet.

According to Zhukov, Stockholm is a transshipment point for fleeing citizens of Baltic states who slip into Sweden on the way to "slavery."

He said that the Stockholm paper Expressen first "revealed" that an exiled Estonian government, with financial support from "big American organizations," was the center of anti-Soviet activity.

400 at N. Y. U. Protest Suspension of Teacher

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—The temporary suspension of Lyman R. Bradley from the faculty of New York University because of his conviction of contempt of the House Committee on Un-American activities was protested in a demonstration of 400 students today.

Bradley, head of the university's German department, was convicted by a Federal grand jury of refusing to turn over records of the Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of the House group.

U. S. Workers Start Drive To Aid Jews

A campaign for contributions from Federal employes for the Christian Committee of the United Jewish Appeal was launched at the Statler Hotel yesterday by Oscar L. Chapman, Undersecretary of the Interior and chairman of the Government workers' drive.

The first pledges in the drive to be turned in were brought by Miss Maybelle G. Fickel of the Government Printing Office. Employes there have pledged some $700.

Arthur Gaeth, Mutual Broadcasting System commentator and former war correspondent, told the luncheon meeting of his journey with a small group of dispossessed Jews over one of the 18 "underground" trails from Poland into Czechoslovakia.

"We have a responsibility," the radio correspondent declared, "to give these dispossessed people, who have nothing in the world but the few things they carry with them, a chance to live their own lives in their own homes and among their own people. These are the simple necessities of life which we all have."

Chapman and Carter T. Barron, a cochairman of the Christian Committee of the appeal for Washington, called on the representatives of the Federal agencies present to meet at least $55,000 of the $200,000 Christian Committee quota for Washington.

"Key" men and women attending the luncheon included Charles Alldredge, Interior, vice chairman; Thomas W. O'Hara, Justice; Thomas E. Stakem, jr., Maritime Commission; Dan H. Wheeler, Interior; Henry C. Iler, Federal Security; James E. Dodson, Labor; Charles F. Brannan, Agriculture; Gerald Ryan, Commerce, and Robert S. Regar, Post Office.

Faster Alaska Settlement Urged As Defense Move

By The Associated Press

Faster settlement of Alaska is necessary to hold it against "the inroads of Russia," the chairman of a House subcommittee considering Alaskan Statehood said yesterday.

Representative Crawford (R., Mich.) told a reporter that "Alaska is the most strategic base we have anywhere so long as Russia and the United States are the two leading world powers."

This is particularly true, he added, "so long as the relations between them continue as they are at present."

Crawford is chairman of an Insular and Territorial Affairs subcommittee that will leave Seattle on August 25 for 12 days of hearings in Alaska on pending legislation for homesteading Alaska and granting it Statehood.

"I think Alaska should be homesteaded, colonized and settled as quickly as possible," said Crawford, adding: "History records that people defend their homes and land, but a country that is not populated is seldom defended."

27 Pilots Entered In Thompson Trophy

Cleveland, Aug. 6 (AP).—The largest field of entrants in the history of closed course plane racing will strive for the $40,000 prize money in the Thompson Trophy Race, feature event of the 1947 National Air Races.

Race officials announced today that 27 planes and pilots—nearly double the number ever to enter the 300-mile Labor Day classic before—already have entered and it is possible that additional entries may be received before the August 20 deadline. The starting field will be limited to the dozen—planes with the fastest time during qualifying trials.

'King' of Bikini Returns to See A-Bomb Changes

By The Associated Press

"King" Judah of Bikini returned to his native land yesterday to see the changes brought by the two atomic bomb explosions there last year.

The native king and three of his leading dignitaries were flown by the Navy from their new home 100 miles away on Rongerik Atoll, where they had been removed with their families and the rest of the clan before the atomic bomb tests were held.

The Navy said scientists conducting a re-survey of Bikini think the natives will be able to tell them what island changes can be directly attributed to the effects of the explosions.

The Navy, in announcing the visit, said divers yesterday completed an examination of the sunken aircraft carrier Saratoga, now lying on the bottom of Bikini Lagoon.

Baer Estate Is $245,000; $7000 in Gifts

David A. Baer, real estate man and attorney here, who died July 12 at the age of 58, left an estate valued at $245,000. Petition for probate of his will was filed yesterday in District Court.

The will provided $5000 for the building fund for a temple for the Washington Hebrew Congregation; $1000 for the Boys' Club of Washington, D. C., Inc., and another $1000 for George Washington University.

Mrs. Ruth I. Baer, 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw., the widow, was named executrix and is to receive the income for life from the remainder of the estate. At her death, the estate is to be divided equally between two daughters and a son.

They are Mrs. Carroll B. Fischer of the Massachusetts ave. address; Mrs. Barbara Ann B. Luchs, 3726 Connecticut ave. nw., and Richard A. Barr (who changed spelling of the family name), of Hollywood, Calif.

Attorney for the estate is Wallace Luchs, jr.

3 Women Lawyers Of Europe to Be Bar Guests Today

Three European women lawyers will be guests of the Women's Bar Association of the District of Columbia today for a tour of local institutions and for a 12:30 p. m. luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel.

The three visitors, who are on their way to the convention of the International Federation of University Women to be held in Toronto, Canada, from August 11 to 16, are Miss Mary E. Rankin of Glasgow, Scotland, Mrs. J. E. C. Willett Roosenberg of Regentesselman, Holland, and Dr. iur Anny of Berne, Switzerland.

Guests of honor at the luncheon, besides the foreign visitors, will be Judges Ellen K. Raedy and Nadine Gallagher of Municipal Court, and Fay L. Bentley of Juvenile Court. Miss Mary Frances Glenn, president of the Women's Bar Association, will preside.

Boys Forum Tours Capital, Naval Academ

Teen-age members of the American Legion's Boys' Forum of National Government topped off a busy day yesterday with a visit to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Guests of the Academy's new plebe class, the youthful delegates toured the grounds, took mess with the middies in Bancroft Hall, and saw the Navy film, "Fighting Lady."

Earlier, the boys elected Kendall C. King, 17, of Ithaca, N. Y., Senate President Pro Tempore in a hotly contested voice vote.

King, the majority "Federalist" party candidate, was opposed by Lowell Lee Smithson, 17, of Chillicothe, Mo., of the rival minority "Nationalist" party. King's election was finally conceded, but the Nationalists contended they had out-shouted their opponents, at any rate.

Senate Sergeant at Arms Edward McGinnis directed the mock Senate session.

The young students of Government also attended the Howard Hughes plane contracts investigation at the invitation of Senator Owen Brewster, who earlier had addressed their mock Senate session.

Senator Brewster asked them to remember the seriousness of the War Investigation Committee's hearing despite the kleig lights and occasional comedy at the investigation.

In the afternoon they conducted a simulated Boys' Forum Supreme Court, for which George T. Washington, Assistant Solicitor General of the United States, had prepared a special case.

Their forum here ends today. After hearing FBI Special Investigator Lee Pennington, jr., talk, they will attend 11 a. m. graduation exercises at American University.

Resigns for Duelling

Buenos Aires, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Secretary of Industry and Commerce Rolando Lagomarsino resigned today in order to challenge Opposition Deputy Silvano Santander to a duel. Lagomarsino said Santander's recent attacks on his administration in the Chamber of Deputies had wounded his honor.

Lt. Col. Cox Gets District Engineer Post

Lieut. Col. Lavonne E. Cox, Army Corps of Engineers, has been assigned to duty as the third assistant District Engineer Commissioner.

This is the first time since 1939 that the Engineer Commissioner has had the authorized full staff of three assistants.

Definite duties will not be assigned to Col. Cox until Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young returns from vacation. His general assignment, however, will be to assist General Young in construction, maintenance and inspection of District facilities.

Colonel Cox, 33, was born in Florence, Ala. He lives with his wife, the former Ann Moore of Washington, and 4-year-old son, Stephen, at 516 North Irving st., Arlington, Va.

A graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1937, he recently received a master's degree in civil engineering from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

During World War II, he served for 2½ years in the China-Burma-India theater and was awarded a Bronze Star for helping build the first B-29 overseas airfields near Calcutta.

In the present District government setup, the President chooses the engineer commissioner from the ranks of the Corps of Engineers. His assistants also are assigned from the corps.

Spanish Exile Premier And Cabinet Resign

Paris, Aug. 6 (AP).—Prof. Rodolfo Llopis resigned today as Premier of the Spanish Republican government in exile. He handed the resignations of his entire cabinet to President Martinez Barrio.

The resignations followed criticism of the government as "serving no purpose" the congress of exile and underground members of the Spanish Socialist Party and the General Workers Union (UGT) at Toulouse last week. A resolution called for the party, to which Llopis belongs, and the UGT to free their hands from governmental ties for more energetic action toward replacing Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime in Spain.

Text of President's Veto Memorandum On National Science Foundation Bill

The text of President's memorandum in vetoing the National Science Foundation bill follows:

I AM withholding my approval of S. 526, the National Service Foundation bill.

I take this action with deep regret. On several occasions, I have urged the Congress to enact legislation to establish a National Science Foundation. Our national security and welfare require that we give direct support to basic scientific research and take steps to increase the number of trained scientists. I had hoped earnestly that the Congress would enact a bill to establish a suitable agency to stimulate and correlate the activities of the Government directed toward these ends.

However, this bill contains provisions which represent such a marked departure from sound principles for the administration of public affairs that I cannot give it my approval. It would, in effect, vest the determination of vital national policies, the expenditure of large public funds, and the administration of important governmental functions in a group of individuals who would be essentially private citizens. The proposed National Science Foundation would be divorced from control by the people to an extent that implies a distinct lack of faith in democratic processes.

Moreover, the organization prescribed in the bill is so complex and unwieldy that there is grave danger that it would impede rather than promote the Government's efforts to encourage scientific research. The Government's expenditures for scientific research and development activities currently amount to hundreds of millions of dollars a year. Under present world conditions, this work is vital to our national welfare and security. We cannot afford to jeopardize it by imposing upon it an organization so likely to prove unworkable.

UNDER S. 526, the powers of the proposed Foundation would be vested in 24 members, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. These members would be part-time officials, required to meet only once each year. This group would, in turn, select biennially from among its 24 members an executive committee of nine members and would exercise its powers through the executive committee. This nine-member executive committee would also be a part-time body required to meet only six times a year.

The Foundation would have a chief executive officer, known as the Director. He would be appointed by the nine-member executive committee unless the 24-member body itself chose to appoint him. The power and duties of the Director would be prescribed by the executive committee and exercised under its supervision.

There would be within the Foundation a number of divisions, each exercising such duties and performing such functions as the Foundation prescribed. There would be no limit upon the number of divisions which the Foundation could establish. For each division there would be a divisional committee.

In the case of the Committee for the Division of National Defense, there would be a limit of 36 members, half of whom would be appointed by the Foundation and half of whom would be representatives of the armed services. In other cases, there would be no limit upon the number of members of each divisional committee, and all of the members would be appointed by the Foundation.

Not only would these part-time committees furnish advice and make recommendations concerning the Government's scientific research program, but each divisional committee would also "exercise and perform the powers and duties of its division."

The Foundation would also be empowered to appoint commissions in various fields of research. Three such commissions are specified in the bill, and the Foundation could appoint as many additional special commissions as it saw fit. Each such commission would consist of six eminent scientists and five members from the general public. After making a survey of public and private research already being carried on, each of these commissions would recommend a research program within its field and constantly review the manner in which such program was being carried out.

APART from the conflicts and confusion which would result from this complex organization, the bill would violate basic principles which make for responsible government.

The Constitution places upon the President the responsibility for seeing that the laws are faithfully executed. In the administration of this law, however, he would be deprived of effective means for discharging his constitutional responsibility.

Full governmental authority and responsibility would be placed in 24 part-time officers whom the President could not effectively hold responsible for proper administration. Neither could the director be held responsible by the President, for he would be the appointee of the Foundation and would be insulated from the President by two layers of part-time boards. In the case of the divisions and special commissions, the lack of accountability would be even more aggravated.

The members of the Foundation would also be authorized to appoint the full-time administrative head of an important agency in the executive branch of the Government, as well as more than 70 additional part-time officials in whom important governmental powers would be vested. This represents a substantial denial of the President's appointing power, as well as an impairment of his ability to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

The ability of the President to meet his constitutional responsibility would be further impaired by the provisions of the bill which would establish an Interdepartmental Committee on Science. The members of this committee would be representatives of departments and agencies who are responsible to the President, but its chairman would be the director of the Foundation. It would be the duty of this committee to correlate data on all Federal scientific research activities and to make recommendations to the President, to the Foundation, and to the other departments and agencies of the Government concerning the performance of their functions in this field.

Thus, an officer who is not appointed by the President, and not responsible to him, would be the man primarily charged with the performance of functions which are peculiarly within the scope of the President's duties—that is, the coordination of the work of executive agencies. This is especially unwise when the activities concerned are so intimately related to the national welfare and security.

THERE are other compelling reasons why control over the administration of this law should not be vested in the part-time members of the Foundation. The Foundation would make grants of Federal funds to support scientific research. The recipients of these grants would be determined in the discretion of the Foundation. The qualifications prescribed in the bill for members of the Foundation would insure that most of them would be individuals employed by institutions or organizations eligible for the grants. Thus, there is created a conflict of interests which would inevitably give rise to suspicions of favoritism, regardless of the complete integrity of the members of the Foundation.

It is unfair to individuals asked to accept public office that they should be put in such a vulnerable position. Moreover, colleges and universities and other organizations seeking aid for scientific research deserve the assurance that the manner and extent of their participation in a national program will be determined on a completely impartial and objective basis.

Adherence to the principle that responsibility for the administration of the law should be vested in full-time officers who can be held accountable will not prevent the Government from utilizing with great advantage the services of eminent scientists who are available only for part-time duty. We have ample evidence of the patriotic and unselfish contributions which such citizens can make to the success of governmental programs.

The role to be played by such part-time participation, however, is more appropriately one of an advisory nature rather than of full responsibility. In other governmental programs of vast national importance, this method is used to obtain advice and recommendations from impartial experts as well as from parties in interest. There is no reason why such a system cannot be incorporated in legislation establishing a National Science Foundation.

FOR the reasons I have indicated, I believe that this bill raises basic issues of public policy. There would be no means for insuring responsible administration of the law. If the principles of this bill were extended throughout the Government, the result would be utter chaos. There is no justification in this case for not using sound principles for normal governmental operations. I cannot agree that our traditional, democratic form of government is incapable of properly administering a program for encouraging scientific research and education.

It is unfortunate that this legislation cannot be approved in its present form. The withholding of my signature at this time, however, will not prevent the Government from engaging in the support of scientific research. Research activities are carried on extensively by various executive agencies under existing laws, and would continue to be carried on whether or not this bill became law.

The only funds made available by the Congress for expenditure by the Foundation are funds which might be transferred from other agencies, thereby reducing the amounts which those other agencies could spend for similar purposes. No funds were made available for the scholarships and fellowships authorized in the bill. Thus, there would be no immediate gains which would justify accepting the risks involved in the approval of this legislation.

I am convinced that the long-range interests of scientific research and education will be best served by continuing our efforts to obtain a Science Foundation free from the vital defects of this bill. These defects in the structure of the proposed Foundation are so fundamental that it would not be practicable to permit its establishment in this form with the hope that the defects might be corrected at a later date. We must start with a law which is basically sound.

I hope that the Congress will reconsider this question and enact such a law early in its next session.

HARRY S. TRUMAN

The White House, August 6, 1947.

Truman Vetoes Bill Creating National Science Foundation

the President's Cabinet and from many scientists. The objections were exclusively on the administrative features of the proposed set-up.

The foundation would have been controlled by a 24-man group of part-time outside experts, appointed by the President. They would have appointed a nine-man executive committee, also part-time. And the executive group, not the President, would have appointed the single, full-time, administrator.

Sees Fundamental Error

In addition to its cumbersomeness, the President said, the bill "would violate basic principles which make for responsible government." Charged by the Constitution with the responsibility for seeing that the laws are executed, the President would be deprived of effective means of fulfilling his responsibility, he said.

The 24-member part-time board, he explained, could not be effectively held responsible for proper administration, yet it would have been given full governmental authority and powers.

Neither could the President hold the administrator responsible, for he would be an appointee of the board, not of the President, and "would be insulated from the President by two layers of part-time boards."

The members of the foundation would be able to name the administrative head of the agency as well as more than 70 other part-time officials. This, Mr. Truman concluded, was a "substantial denial" of the President's appointing power and an impairment of his ability to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

Would Give Out Money

Finally, the President found a serious flaw in the fact that the members of the foundation would give large sums of money to scientific institutions for research projects. Yet, under the bill, the members would be themselves individuals employed by organizations eligible for the grants.

Mr. Truman urged that Congress start anew on legislation to set up a foundation "free from the vital defects of this bill."

There was little immediate reaction yesterday on the President's veto. The Carnegie Institution, headed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, a principal supporter of the bill, declined all comment. The Federation of American Scientists, which also had favored the creation of a foundation, likewise, did not comment.

Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, echoed Mr. Truman's sentiment that it was unfortunate that the foundation could not be created, but agreed that it was better not to take a bad law.

Top officials of the National Academy of Sciences, including its president, A. N. Richards, were at Woods Hole, Mass., yesterday, where they indicated that they would not make a statement on the veto until today.

A Weak, Run-Down Feeling Is Often A Warning
That The Red-Blood Is Getting Low

If you do not feel like your real self, do not have the urge to be up and doing, why not check-up on your blood strength? Look at the palms of your hands, your fingernails, your lips, the lobes of your ears—are they pale and off color?

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Eisler Admits He Lied Deliberately in His 1945 Application For Permit to Leave Country, Taking Chance on Prison Term

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Gerhart Eisler, the Communist on trial for passport fraud, admitted to a District Court jury yesterday that he lied to United States officials in trying to get out of this country.

The little German said that in an exit permit application in 1945, he "deliberately" denied that he had been in the United States prior to 1941, when he truthfully had been here between 1934 and 1936.

He gave two reasons for the confessed misstatement:

1. He wished to protect the names of people who had done him favors.

2. He was willing to take a "calculated risk" of prison to get to Mexico or Germany.

One Basis of Charge

Eisler's failure to reveal the 1934-1936 appearance was one basis of the charge of passport fraud. He is also charged with failing to reveal Communist affiliations and numerous aliases on the permit application.

On the other charges, Eisler would make no admission. He said that he answered "no" in 1942 to questions concerning his aliases and activities because he considered them "nobody's business." He said the "no" was a refusal to answer and nothing more.

At the time, said Eisler, he was harassed by the regimentation of "police regimes" of Germany, France and Spain, and considered the answers not defiance of the Federal Government, but of "bureaucrats."

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz pounded at Eisler's testimony by cross-examination all afternoon, but for the most part, Eisler remained calm.

Smeared in Press, He Says

At one point, Hitz asked Eisler why his feelings about the questionings he received had become more intense with the passage of time since 1942. Here Eisler said that lately he has been smeared in the press, called an atom-bomb spy, been in prison 10 weeks, refused permission to leave the country, sentenced to a year's prison in one case, and threatened, he said, with 25 years in prison in the present case.

"That is why," Eisler concluded.

During the war, Eisler was an air raid warden in New York, according to evidence. Hitz attempted to elicit testimony that it was part of a Communist plot to infiltrate Communists into the air raid warden service. Eisler scoffed at this.

Denies Citizenship Claim

Then, Hitz produced an application card for air raid wardens, on which it was printed that Eisler was a naturalized citizen. Eisler denied knowing anything about this. He said he never made such a claim, and it would have been implausible if he had, since he was registered as an alien.

Before an enemy alien hearing earlier this year, Eisler stated that he came here in the 1930's using the passport of a French citizen. Yesterday he stated that it was a French seaman's papers but he didn't remember whose.

"If you did know the name of the man, would you give it to us now?" asked Hitz.

An "Iffy" Question

"That's an 'iffy' question," replied Eisler. Under pressure from Justice James W. Morris, Eisler said he would not answer.

Extortion Note Is Received by Radford Man

Radford, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—An extortion note demanding either $500 or $5000, the correct amount being in doubt because of the smudged and amateurish appearance of the message, has been received by W. E. Gilbert, local business man and retired Radford College professor, it was revealed here today by local police authorities.

Although the letter containing the demand was received July 30th, police had kept details of the note secret until today.

The demand, of the note, which was signed "a soldier," had been made up from clippings from slick finish printed paper, John M. Goldsmith, Commonwealth's attorney, stated today.

Gilbert turned the note over to Goldsmith who in turn called in the FBI for an examination and analysis. No report has been received from the FBI to date.

Probe Is Begun In $190,000 Fire At Winchester

Winchester, Va., Aug. 6 (Spl).—Fire Chief Taylor Barr, aided by local police, today began investigating the cause of the $190,000 fire that leveled three buildings here yesterday.

The chief said he was listing the fire as of "unknown origin" until completion of his investigation.

A steady stream was played on the smouldering embers last night as trucks from Winchester and nearby communities began rolling homeward. The last vehicle left this morning at 7:30.

Chief Barr said more than 300 volunteer firemen fought the blaze at its height, using 15,000 feet of hose. By today the only firemen held in the Winchester Memorial Hospital was discharged. He was Christian Duke of Front Royal, who sustained a fractured ankle.

Police Seek Man Who Fakes Aid To Welfare Cases

A "bumpy faced" young man who takes money under false pretenses from recipients of Old Age Assistance is being sought by Police, Ray L. Huff, District Welfare Director, said yesterday.

The swindler, who was operating in the fourth precinct last week, told one woman victim that for $3 he could assure the regular delivery of her District welfare check, while a $7 payment would guarantee her receiving financial assistance for 10 years, Huff reported.

Huff renewed warnings to welfare recipients not to have anything to do with "welfare officials" who have no credentials. Real officials never collect cash from recipients, he pointed out.

U. S. Mediation Offer Radioed To Indonesians

Batavia, Java, Aug. 6 (AP).—An American consular official in two personal broadcasts succeeded tonight in informing the isolated Indonesian Republican government at Jogjakarta of a United States offer to mediate the conflict in the East Indies.

This unusual procedure was decided upon by U. S. Consul General Walter A. Foote after A. K. Gani, Indonesian deputy premier, was unable to contact Jogjakarta with the message.

In his broadcast over the Batavia adio, Foote rsaid he had been instructed to inform President Soekarno and Premier Amir Sjarifoeddin that the "United States Government makes available to the Indonesian Republic the same good offices as it extended to the Netherlands government."

The Jogjakarta radio subsequently acknowledged receipt of Foote's message but did not say whether the republic had accepted the offer. The Dutch already have agreed to American mediation, but the Indonesians thus far have urged the appointment of an international commission by the United Nations.

Speaking to newsmen before the broadcast Gani said that Foote had urged Republican acceptance of the American proposal on the grounds that "mediation of one state can achieve results more quickly than mediation by a commission composed of several states."

Rumors circulated in Batavia that Adm. William D. Leahy would come to the East Indies from Washington to act as mediation if the Indonesians give an affirmative reply to Foote's note.

(In Washington, Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, said he knew nothing of any plan personal military chief of staff, to for Leahy, President Truman's go to Indonesia.)

A Dutch communique charged that the Indonesians violated the cease-fire five times, and said these actions occurred near Soeraraja in eastern Java, near Bandoeng in western Java and south of Tebingtinggi in northern Sumatra.

Scene of Fatal Bridge Plunge

The body (arrow) of Charles A. Stretch lies on Piney Branch pky., below the 16th st. bridge, near Spring rd. nw. Spectators (top) line the span from which Stretch plunged to his death yesterday

C. A. Stretch, Printer, Dies In Bridge Leap

A 76-year-old retired printer of the Government Printing Office plunged 58 feet to his death yesterday from the 16th st. bridge, near Spring rd. nw.

Stretch

Pronounced dead at 12:49 p. m. by Dr. James L. Green of Emergency Hospital, he was identified as Charles A. Stretch, 719 Dartmouth ave., Silver Spring, Md., president of the Association of Veteran Union Printers.

A certificate of death by suicide was issued by Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy coroner.

The body was found lying on macadam-surfaced Piney Branch pkwy., directly below the arched bridge, by Delmar Johnston, 28, of 3701 16th st. nw., at about 12:20 p. m.

A 14-year-old schoolboy, William Chamberlain, of 4026 Arkansas ave. nw., told police he had seen Stretch standing on the side walk, looking over the bridge about 12:15 p. m. Police could find no witnesses to the leap.

Relatives said Stretch left the house at 11:30 a. m. yesterday after refusing breakfast. Asked where he was going, he told the family, "no place, in particular."

Stretch, whose wife died several years ago, has been ill and despondent for some time, according to relatives. They said he did not leave a note.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Mary K. Ries, with whom he lived; Mrs. Flora Griffith, 707 20th st. nw., and Mrs. Edith M. Watkins, Laurel, Md.; one son, James J. Stretch, former Army major, of Farlington, Va., and a sister, Miss Jane Stretch, of the Silver Spring address.

'Cease Fire' Balkans Call Urged on U. N.

Lake Success, Aug 6 (AP).—Australia proposed today that the United Nations Security Council call on the four quarreling Balkan countries "to cease all acts of provocation" immediately and enter into direct negotiations to settle their defferences.

Australian delegate Col. W R. Hodgson told the council this formula had worked in the Indonesian case and declared that the Balkan situation is so serious the council must not delay any longer.

Hodgson offered his proposal in the midst of a pessimistic debate that already had brought these developments:

1. Creation of a 7 nation subcommittee to make a final effort to find a compromise solution by next Monday.

2. Rejection of a Polish proposal that in effect would have called upon the Balkan countries to settle their differences themselves

3. A clash between the United States and Russia over whether the subsidiary group of the Balkan investigating commission has a right to continue functioning

Delegates were gareed that the Colombian plan for a subcommittee had only a slim chance for success, but they approved it by a vote of 10 to 0 as an attempt to resolve the deadlock.

20 More Arrested as Jerusalem Police Continue Their Anti-Terrorist Roundup

Jerusalem, Aug. 6 (AP).—Unofficial sources said tonight 20 Jewish youths had been arrested in Jerusalem as police continued a roundup of Jews in a drive against terrorism.

Earlier, a police authority said 38 Jewish leaders had been detained.

Interrogation of those held begins tomorrow at Latrun detention camp where the mayors of four all-Jewish cities and numerous leaders identified wtih the nationalistic Revisionist Party were taken after the swoop at dawn yesterday by police and troops.

British authorities said those arrested had "shown sympathy for the policy of violence" or had "been in contact with the underground." United States consulate authorities said they were "taking cognizance" of the detention without charge of Max Kritzman, an American citizen, who was the lawyer of Dov Bela Gruner, executed several weeks ago as a terrorist. Consul said they were "awaiting State Department reaction."

Outrages Slackening

London, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Britain's first plague of anti-Semitic outrages in eight years slackened today but Scotland Yard studied reports of hundreds of incidents to determine whether there was any evidence of organization behind them.

London, center of Britain's Jewish population, had only three incidents last night. In one of them, a man was captured by police as he beat a Jew with a pistol. Police said he told them that he would have killed the Jew if he could have got the gun to shoot. He said he was avenging the hanging of two British sergeants in Palestine.

Guards Patrol Docks

Marseilles, France, Aug. 6 (U.P.). Armed guards patrolled the docks here today as the Runnymede Park, one of the three British transports which returned 4000-odd Jewish immigrants from Palestine to French waters, was refuelled preparatory to sailing with her sister ships to a secret destination.

Despite earlier fears that Haganah, Jewish moderate underground organization and admitted sponsor of the immigrants, might precipitate some disorder, there was none.

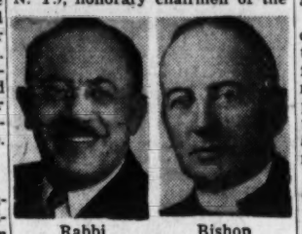
Talk on Japan Slated

Maj. W. Pierce MacCoy, General MacArthur staff aide in setting up a civil service commission in Japan, will discuss "Japan—As I Found It," at the Uptown Washington Lions Club luncheon tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. at the Broadmoor Apartments' restaurant, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw.

D. C. Protests Halt Palestine Land Seizure

Protests by prominent Washingtonians have brought reversal of a British decision to confiscate land set aside for the Washington colony for orphaned Jewish children in Palestine.

The protests were made by the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), honorary chairmen of the



Rabbi Green — Bishop Dun

Washington colony, and Rabbi Zemach Green of Ohev Sholom Congregation here, founder and president of the colony project.

The British originally had intended to seize the land as part of a military training camp site.

Plan Heard of Here June 16

Rabbi Green said it was learned in this country last June 16 that the British military in Palestine had issued an order for confiscation of land near Kibbutz Yavne in Palestine fo ra military training camp. The land to be taken over included the colony site, which covers about 250 acres.

Bishop Dun, Representative Bloom and Rabbi Green cabled protests to Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Prime Minister Attlee and the British High Commissioner of Palestine. A similar protest was filed in Palestine by Dr. Isaac Herzog, chief rabbi of Palestine.

Rabbi Green said reassurance that the colony site would not be disturbed was contained in a letter received from Maj. R. C. Macdonald of the British Army, who said he was replying for Montgomery.

$500,000 Project Under Way

Macdonald said he had received confirmation from the commander in chief of the British Middle East forces that land required for the colony would be excluded from the army training area.

The Washington Colony is a $500,000 project now under construction. It is being financed by American contributions and is named for this country's first President.

When completed, the colony will accommodate several hundred Jewish children whose parents were killed by the Nazis in Europe. Ground for the project was broken last summer, at which time stones from the White House, the Capitol and George Washington's home at Mount Vernon were installed as cornerstones.

added up to "continued control of atomic energy along national lines plus a form of limited inspection."

"Vague" Words Attacked

Attacking what he called the "vague and general statements" of the Soviet proposal, Osborn said the heart of the problem was the inspectorial power of the agency.

"I see no hope," he said, "of reconciling the concept of an international agency performing positive functions of operation and management with the concept of nations performing the functions of operation and management and an agency attempting by inspection to meet the requirements of security."

Dr. Ignace Zlotowski of Poland defended the Soviet proposals, saying they formed a base for discussion. Then, asserting that the United States had said "agreement is impossible," Zlotowski said that was the most dangerous statement that could be made in the committee room.

"It is our duty to reach an agreement," he said. "If we can't agree, we must first of all try to understand each other."

Truman Plans Flight to Rio

United States so that the voters can get a look at him. They are thinking, of course, of 1948. The trip to Rio doesn't necessarily preculde such a cross-country trip, but it does make one seem unlikely in anything like the near future.

It is a fact that, aside from trips to his home in Missouri and to the naval base in Key West, Fla., President Truman has done very little traveling in this country of a kind that would bring him close to the people.

His two most important trips in 1947 have been to Mexico and Canada. In Mexico City, his simplicity and friendliness—together with a thoughful gesture toward Mexico's war heroes—made him something of a hero south of the border. His subsequent trip to Ottawa was another triumph for him and for the Good-Neighbor policy.

Outside United States Four Times

The journey to Rio would be Mr. Truman's fifth trip outside the United States. Before he went to Mexico and Canada, he made a trip to Potsdam for a wartime conference of the Big Three and last summer he cruised to Bermuda on the yacht Williamsburg.

The battleship Missouri, aboard which the terms of the Japanese surrender were signed, left Norfolk, Va., yesterday for Rio to await the arrival of the President. She was escorted by the destroyers Dyess and Ernest G. Small.

Newspapers in Puerto Rico have been saying that Mr. Truman will stop off at the island during his trip. This suggested that the Missouri may make several stops on the way back, but there was no information of this kind forthcoming at the White House.

All of the nations of North, Central and South America will be represented at the Rio conference except Canada and Nicaragua. Canada has never joined the Pan American Union. Nicaragua was not invited because its military government, installed in a recent coup, has never been recognized.

The Rio conference was called for the purpose of drawing up a permanent mutual defense treaty, under which the American nations would pledge themselves to come to the defense of any one of them that might be attacked.

St. Elizabeths Will Eat 500 Hogs by Jan. 1

Patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital will have plenty of pork on their plates this winter, despite soaring meat prices.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent, said yesterday that 500 hospital-owned porkers would be slaughtered and used "by the first of the year."

Dr. Overholser sand the pigs had to be eliminated to comply with Maryland law which forbids feeding garbage to hogs within 2000 feet of a public road.

The hospital also will sell 400 cows during the next eight or nine months. Higher labor costs, due to the 40-hour work week, make it cheaper to buy milk, he said. The sale will be handled by the War Assets Administration.

Elimination of the hogs will mean new problems in disposing of garbage. Dr. Overholser said he was conferring with District officials to work out a solution.

Army to Ship Nitrates From Isolated Spots

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—The War Department will use isolated naval faciilties on the East and Gulf Coast for overseas shipments of ammonium nitrate, the fertilizer which exploded on ships in recent disasters at Texas City, Tex., and Brest, France, the Third Naval District announced today.

U. S. Arms Go To Hot Spots

the Venezuelan emigres, or at least one such headquarters, are in Florida.

Established by Photographs

That a fleet of three small vessels assembled last week at Antilla on Nipa Bay on the northern (Atlantic) coast of the southeast tip of Cuba has been established by aerial photographs. This fleet loaded some 2000 to 3000 men and disappeared.

Though the U. S. Navy searched at length for this fleet, it has not yet been found. It could have covered the 50-mile width of the Windward Channel and reached Haiti in a few hours. It could have reached the north coast of the Dominican Republic long ago. It now can only be surmised that it lies hidden among the numerous small islands to the north of Cuba or even somewhere along Cuba's own ragged coast.

This fleet has been reported as consisting of the motorship Victory and two 300-ton LCT's. It is said to be in command of two former Spanish Republican naval officers who arrived in Cuba from Venezuela bringing 68 Dominican emigres with them.

Include Communists

The troops themselves were said to have been recruited in Cuba, Venezuela, Guatemala and Puerto Rico. They are known to include many Communists from those countries.

On the other hand, there is evidence that seven fighter aircraft, purchased from United States war surplus, were recently in Florida prepared to take off for the Dominican Republic. Intensive search has failed to uncover these aircraft and they have not landed in Cuba.

There is some question whether they were actually "revolutionist" aircraft, as claimed by the Trujillo government, or were the property of Trujillo himself.

It is known that several aircraft, estimated to be at least six training and combat aircraft and two large transports, belonging to the anti-Trujillo faction are at Santa Fe Airport in Cuba. The effectiveness of any of these types in Latin American revolutionary warfare is little affected by their unwarlike design; they can carry men who drop grenades and fire rifles with considerable effect at ground troops unprotected by antiaircraft.

Appears Stymied for Present

Despite the existence of these well authenticated preparations for an invasion of the Dominican Republic, it appears now that such an attempt may be stymied for the present. Publicity and surveillance by the U. S. Navy and Air Force have, for the time being, interrupted whatever plans leaders of the attempt may have had.

In addition, it has been reported that American pilots of the aircraft have caused some difficulty. Whether this was the result of their fear of possible consequences or of demands for increased pay which the revolutionists were unable or unwilling to meet is not known.

The part of Cuba in this deal is anomalous and difficult. Despite repeated official assurances that revolutionary troops were not being recruited there, the fact remains that the "invasion" fleet was based in Cuba and did load and sail from a Cuban port. It also remains true that revolutionary aircraft are based on a Cuban airport.

Affected by Two Factors

Cuba's position unquestionably is affected by two factors:

1. Dissatisfaction with reduced quotas in the new Sugar Quota Act now before President Truman for action.

2. A powerful Communist element in Cuban political life and the presence of Communists in the Cuban government.

Trujillo's position is much less obscure. His government is a rightest dictatorship of the most oppressive sort and the emigres from Venezuela are men of his own kidney.

So swiftly have world events moved recently and so packed have they been with news that few remember an occurence as near Washington as Ellicott City, Md., and as recently as last April. At that time, 21 war surplus .50- and .30-caliber machine guns were discovered on the estate of Carl Eisenhardt. These weapons and considerable ammunition for them were stolen from a war surplus depot at Bush Field, near Augusta, Ga.

Four men eventually were arrested and charged with theft of Government property and transporting stolen Government property. One of them was an active Venezuelan emigre.

Decisive Battle Expected in Paraguay

Asuncion, Paraguay, Aug 6 (AP).—Residents of Asuncion expressed belief today that continuing clashes south of Rosario, 60 miles north of this capital, would develop into the decisive engagement of the Paraguayan civil war, now five months old.

Government sources said "strong patrol clashes" have occurred south of Rosario, but that there has been no fighting near this capital.

(The Brazilian news agency Asapress said in a dispatch from Ponta Pora, on the Paraguayan frontier, received tonight in Rio de Janeiro that elements of the insurgent army had broken into Asuncion and, aided by residents of the capital, were fighting in several sections of the city. It added that followers of President Higinio Morinigo were leaving Asuncion.

(Frontier accounts reaching Buenos Aires yesterday said the insurgents in a three-pronged movement were operating within 10 miles of the capital's perimeter after having eluded government forces who captured the rebels own "capital" of Concepcion.)

Government shore batteries were reported to have damaged a rebel gunboat on the Parana River.

Buenos Aires dispatches said the river engagement lasted for half an hour and one of the two gunboats involved apparently was damaged. The dispatch reported that one rebel was killed and five seriously wounded.

The battle occurred while the boats were in mid-river and some of the projectiles fired by government forces landed on Argentine territory.

Elliott's Views On Air Tonight

Little-known facts concerning the Army's procurement procedure for reconnaissance planes will be disclosed at 8:15 tonight by Elliott Roosevelt over WINX and WINX-FM.

In the recorded broadcast, Roosevelt will also discuss the political implications of the current investigation of the Hughes' wartime contracts.

The record was made at an interview yesterday by WINX Moderator Ed Hart just before Roosevelt left for Canada.

Mississippian Killed in Row Over Negroes' Right to Vote

Laurel, Miss., Aug. 6 (AP).—An election official was killed and another was wounded critically today during an argument that ended in a shooting spree over Negroes voting in yesterday's State Democratic primary.

All parties in the dispute were white men.

Ransom Phillips was killed instantly and his brother, Otis, was rushed to Hattiesburg Hospital with two .38-caliber pistol slugs in his abdomen.

Ellis Gerald of Moselle, Miss., was held in Jones County jail in connection with the shooting, but no charges have been filed.

Election workers said Gerald and his brother, Walter, attempted to permit Negroes to vote at the polling booth where the Phillips brothers worked yesterday. An argument apparently developed between them over the issue and it exploded into gunfire today. Police had no other details.

Warning to Clark

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 5 (U.P.).—Lamar Puryear, member of the Hinds County Democratic Committee, said tonight that if U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark had any idea of meddling with the operation of the Mississippi primary "he'd better come down here armed."

Puryear unleashed his statement after Philip Randolph, cochairman of the National Council for a Permanent Fair Employment Practices Committee, asked Clark to "prosecute anyone" attempting to enforce the Mississippi statute requiring voters to swear they are opposed to an FEPC law and anti-lynching law.

"We don't want any meddling," Puryear said. "We run our election like Democrats and are going to keep it that way. It's a Southern custom to tend to our own business and we expect other people to do the same."

Gov. Fielding L. Wright, carrying the support of still unseated Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, tonight appeared to be winning his bid for a complete four-year term as Governor with a widening majority over four opponents in the Democratic primary.

It appeared Sam Lumpkin of Tupelo would win the lieutenant governorship—the job Wright held before he succeeded to the chief executive's chair on the death of Gov. Thomas A. Bailey.

Clark Orders 'Study'

By The Associated Press

Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday instructed the Justice Department's criminal division to obtain "for study" a copy of regulations covering requirements for voting in Mississippi Democratic primaries.

When reporters asked if the action resulted from any complaint made in connection with the conduct of yesterday's primary in Mississippi, officials replied "no formal complaints have been received."

However, they explained the department had taken note of published descriptions of special requirements for participation, and said the Attorney General had asked the criminal division to obtain an official copy of the regulations and study them "to determine if they violate any Federal law."

Soviet Getting Ready for War, Red Asserts

Rome, Aug. 6 (AP).—Ettore Vanni, described as an Italian Communist who returned to Italy after eight years in the Soviet Union, writes in the conservative Rome newspaper Il Tempo that Russia is no longer Communist and is preparing for war.

"Lenin's country has been reduced to a pitiful anachronism," wrote Vanni, who, according to Il Tempo, has himself remained a convinced Communist.

"The dictatorship of the proletariat," he said, "has been replaced by the dictatorship of a corrupt bureaucracy which is liquidating every vestige of socialism."

Vanni related that "it wasn't easy for me to leave the Soviet Union."

"For two months I had to Dodge the traps of the secret agents of the state's security organs. I dominated myself, preserved my sang froid, calculated every word and act. Only in this way was I able to return to Italy."

ALL beef sold at Safeway is U.S. Government graded

It's Safeway Beefsteak ... cut from a top grade of beef ...aged marvelously tender

Proper aging's a secret of tender Meat

... but that's just one step in Safeway's special plan

1. Safeway Meats are aged just like those marvelous steaks and roasts you get at famous hotels. (For only properly aged meat can be fully tender and have peak flavor.) We hold all Safeway meat in air-conditioned aging rooms at our Central Meat Plant, under daily inspection, until the meat comes to its full eating perfection

2. But first — Safeway meat experts select and buy only the top government grades of beef. This means, for example, that the boiling beef you get at Safeway is from beef of the very same top government grades as our finest rib roasts. (And Safeway also buys only top grades of lamb, pork and veal.)

3. Then we cut our fine quality, correctly aged meat free of excess bone, needless fat and waste. This scientific waste-free trimming of bulk cuts at our Central Meat Plant — and additional trimming at the Safeway market—are done before your Safeway meat purchase is weighed. So you get a money saving

4. At tip-top goodness these wonderful meats go to your Safeway. Our meat delivery trucks are refrigerated, and the meat packed in sterilized containers. It's because we do take extra care that we can guarantee you mouth-wateringly juicy, tender meat every time you buy at Safeway

Enjoy your Meat eating under this simple guarantee

- Cook and serve any cut or kind of Safeway meat the way you prefer it
- Eat it all up ... judge the tenderness, juiciness and flavor
- If you don't like it — for any reason whatsoever — we will give all your money back, without return of the meat!

(Note: This guarantee holds good on ALL meat purchases at Safeway markets.)

Taft-Hartley Act Cause Of Jitters

York, Pa., Aug. 6 (AP).—John W. Gibson, Assistant Secretary of Labor, said tonight the Labor Department is "apprehensive" over the Taft Hartley Labor Act.

He declared there is "a very real danger" that the law" contains elements which might be the forerunner of dire consequences."

It was the Labor Department's first official statement on the new law since its enactment June 23, although Secretary Schwellenbach spoke out against many of its provisions when they were still pending in Congress.

Gibson's speech was for the summer industrial conference of the United Wallpaper Co. He had been invited to give an analysis of the new law, but he said:

"The fact is, no comprehensive analysis exists and the host of embryo analyses which have come from parties at interest are inclined to leave in a state of bewilderment."

"I can tell you, however, that we, in the Department of Labor, like many employers and leaders of the American Labor movement, are apprehensive over some of the results which may come out of its administration."

Mostley Job for NLRB

Most of the law will be administered by the National Labor Relations Board. The Labor Department has only two or three duties under the act.

Gibson's objections appeared to be on the ground that the law puts the Government further into labor-management relationships, as President Truman argued in his veto message.

Gibson said the free enterprise system is "working pretty well" and if it is to be maintained, "Government intervention in labor disputes should and must be reduced to an absolute minimum."

Urge Defeat of Taft

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 6 (AP).—Challenging the constitutionality of the Ttfat-Hartley labor law, the Connecticut Federation of Labor and an AFL local union today, in paid newspaper advertisements, urged the political defeat of Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Connecticut Congressmen who voted for the act.

The advertisements, placed in a Hartford Daily newspaper (Hartford Times), were intended, federation officials said, to test the validity of a section of the law restricting labor organizations from making expenditures in political campaigns.

Federation officials said the validity of the law was being challenged in the expectation that the case would be brought into the courts for eventual determination by the Supreme Court.

In Washington, the only comment from the Justice Department was a reiteration of what the department has said of previous open challenges of the law: "The entire act continues under study by department attorneys."

Keep Signing, Says Dubinsky

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL), has advised local Ilgwu leaders to continue to sign "no strike" agreements under the Taft-Hartley law where employers agree to maintain the union shop and settle disputes by arbitration.

Weather Causes Scattered Walkouts In Detroit Area

Detroit, Aug. 6 (AP).—Approximately 27,000 auto workers in 10 Detroit plants were idled today by scattered walkouts attributed to the intense heat.

An estimated 9500 employes were sent home when four Briggs Manufacturing Co. plants were closed by walkouts in key departments.

Chrysler Corp. laid off 5000 workers at Plymouth and 900 at DeSoto for lack of parts supplied by Briggs, and an additional 11,600 were idled in four other Chrysler plants by walkouts of a few employes.

It was the third successive day in which high temperatures affected thousands of Detroit production employes.

At midday official readings placed the temperature at 91 degrees and still rising. Within the factories, especially in key departments whose suspension forced other units down, it was reportedly many degrees higher.

Auto production got another blow as Ford closed down its plants tonight until next Tuesday. The Ford shutdown meant a loss of three working days' output, or a little more than 9000 passenger cars, and idled about 51,000 hourly-rated employes. The halting of the Ford assembly lines was attributed to materials shortages.

Shipyard Strike to Continue

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—More than 3000 shipyard workers of the Maryland Drydock Co., told that their union had been "singled out by industry to undergo the initial attack under the Taft-Hartley Act," were determined today to continue their month-old strike.

Members of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO) voted unanimously last night to remain on strike until a new contract is negotiated.

Before voting, the men heard Lee Pressman, general counsel for the CIO, assert:

"Shipbuilding companies and other industries recognize the fact that if one of the strongest unions in the Nation is undermined and weakened, the Taft-Hartley bill will have proved itself successful.

"Other CIO unions are glad that it is a CIO union known for its militancy that is representing labor in this first struggle and is taking the test on how long it will take to show that the unions mean business," Pressman said.

Maryland Drydock is one of four Baltimore yards struck by shipbuilders. The others are Bethlehem Steel Co. plants.

U. S. to Discuss British Loan

that Britain wanted relaxation of two clauses in the loan agreement. These are the convertibility and non-discrimination clauses.

Under the convertibility clause, Britain has promised in conducting trade to turn over dollars to any country which wants them in exchange for British pounds. This obligation, which went into effect only last July 15, has cut deeply into Britain's supply of dollars and left her fewer with which to buy American raw materials and food.

The nondiscrimination clause requires Britain to treat American trade as fairly as it does commerce from other countries. Thus, Britain cannot cut purchases from the United States unless it simultaneously reduces similar buying from other countries, even if she can buy the goods outside the United States without using scarce dollars.

The British, apparently, want the right to buy as much as they choose from the dominions and colonies, even if it means discriminating against American companies which formerly supplied these products. If they can amend the Anglo-American loan agreement, according to word from London, the British will eliminate all shipments from the United States of dried eggs, canned and fresh fruit and cheese. They would also cut down on imports from the United States of meat and wheat.

Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, said "I think there is a little latitude" by which the loan agreement could be modified without congressional action.

Wolcott, Republican leader in House consideration of the loan agreement last year, said, however, that "any basic changes in the loan agreement would necessitate congressional approval."

Reached at his home in Port Huron, Wolcott said:

"I don't think that Secretary Marshall would attempt to work out basic changes in the loan agreement without taking the matter up with leaders in Congress."

Reports are that the British will seek to work out the problem through interpretations which would not require congressional approval of loan agreement changes—which admittedly would involve months and possibly nearly a year of delay.

Canada Considers Relaxation

Ottawa, Aug. 6 (AP).—Canadian government sources predicted today that any relaxation of terms of the Anglo-American loan agreement in connection with Britain's search for a way out of her dollar dilemma probably will be paralelled by easing conditions of Britain's loan from Canada.

Canada lent Britain $1,150,000,000 with a proviso similar to one of the United States that the British should not discriminate against its goods in buying abroad. Slightly more than half of the Canadian loan has been used by Britain, officials said:

Laborite MP Found Guilty in News Leaks

London, Aug. 6 (AP).—Evelyn Walkden, a Laborite MP, was held "guilty of a breach of privilege" by the House of Commons privileges committee today in his admitted disclosure of confidential party proceedings to a London newspaper.

Walkden identified himself Monday as the unnamed "second MP" mentioned in a recent committee investigation into newspaper "leaks" by members of Parliament.

The committee's report said Walken "has disclosed to a newspaper information about party meetings which he well knew was intended to be secret and the value of which to the newspaper concerned, was, indeed, that it was confidential and not obtained through normal sources."

Possible penalties if the House should uphold the charges include expulsion—usually reserved for members convicted of crimes—and imprisonment.

The committee said it made its findings despite the fact that the $20 weekly paid Walkden by the Evening News "may have been in consideration of other services as well."

In a report issued last Wednesday the committee held that Garry Allighan, Laborite, had committed a similar breach of Parliamentary privilege.

Socialist Fears Soviet May Control Spain

Paris, Aug. 6 (INS).—Indaleció Prieto, Spanish right-wing Socialist leader, warned today that failure by the United States and Great Britain to oust Generalissimo Franco by means of economic sanctions may lead to Communist control of Spain.

In an interview, Prieto said there is strong likelihood of a powerful Soviet fifth column gaining strength in Spain unless action is taken.

He asked for police protection. A copy of his statement was sent to Beverly Hills authorities who said that the confession appeared to be "a lot of malarkey"

Richmond Negro Nearly Wins City Seat in Va. Legislature

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—Richmond, capital of the old Confederacy, almost nominated a Negro for the Virginia House of Delegates in yesterday's Democratic primary.

Oliver Hill, the only Negro in a field of 18 candidates for the nomination to Richmond's seven seats in the House, ran eighth in complete returns from the city's 55 precincts. He is an attorney.

Hill received 6310 votes to 6500 for W. H. C. Murray, who ran seventh, a difference of only 190 votes.

Negroes voted heavily in the primary and apparently almost solidly for Hill while the white vote was divided among 17 candidates.

Had he been nominated and then elected in November, Hill would have been the first Negro to occupy a seat in the General Assembly (Legislature) since the session of 1889-90 and the first Negro Democrat ever to be a member of that body.

The Negro voters probably defeated their own candidate in that many of them apparently voted for only two candidates, Hill and W. H. C. Murray, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council, who won the seventh place on the House ticket. Had they voted a "solid shot" for Hill—for him and no other candidate—he probably would have won the nomination.

City Slicker

Senator W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel is now contributing his solution to the housing shortage. He is enabling hard-pressed families to purchase units at $10,000 to $13,000 each on a cooperative plan in the Northeast Washington apartment building he bought some two years ago. At the time he acquired the structure, our readers may remember, Senator O'Daniel tossed out all the existing tenants, maintaining that he needed all 14 apartments with an aggregate of 40 rooms for members of his own family. Now, however, his family has spread elsewhere, and like a good fellow seeking to remedy past injustice, the Senator is putting the housing back on the market. A purely incidental consideration, we presume, is the fact that he stands to boost his original $52,500 investment into nearly $150,000. It would seem that the country boy in a big city—the pose that Senator O'Daniel loves to assume—knows a thing or two.

Mr. Attlee's Recipe

Less socialism and less democracy make up the Attlee prescription for coping squarely with the economic crisis in England. The nationalization (socialization) of the steel industry is one of the "reforms" to be postponed. The story of this proposal illustrates the ineptitude with which the Laborites have gone about their socialism. They scoured the empire for a man who could manage a socialized steel industry. They found their man in South Africa. He was in charge of a sector of that dominion's industry that had been nationalized. On being brought to London and offered the post of manager in chief of a socialized British steel industry, he declined, saying that, after all, he knew nothing about steel, and had deputized the managerial function to one of the steel men of Sheffield, whom presumably, he would now have to manage in Britain!

Alas, the waste of time and motion and resources already suffered for experiment's sake means another notch of belt-tightening for the British. The pattern that Mr. Attlee has set for the country is the old-fashioned way of getting more production. The five-day week for coal miners, for instance, is ended. Work and investment alike will be directed in such channels as will produce goods for export, and this will presumably mean the shelving of such non-essentials as the construction of the Severn bridge. Britain at this time simply cannot afford such improvements. They take men and materials away from essential industries. Britain is likewise to be restricted in its expenditures abroad. There will be less food, tobacco and what Mr. L. S. Amery calls "star gazing" (meaning movies) imported.

It is a hard regime that Mr. Attlee prescribes in reducing the yawning gap of the import surplus. The moral strength that the British have shown so magnificently in the last seven years is his great reliance. The British still are, as Emerson put it, the people who stand firmest in their shoes. Their moral strength has never failed them in an emergency. The new program is the kind of self-help that will doubtless produce amelioration in the terms of the Anglo-American loan agreement. It is also one of the preparatory stages for the Marshall Plan. As one of the speakers in the House of Commons said, "The Marshall Plan was not designed to enable this country to produce too little and live beyond its means."

Indonesian Truce

The Indonesian Republic will do nothing but awaken suspicion of its sincerity if it turns down the United States offer of good offices in working out its agreement for independence. That agreement provided for arbitration. But it is the Dutch contention that since no steps at all have been taken by the Indonesian Republic to implement the agreement, there was really nothing in particular to arbitrate. That contention might get more acceptance from world opinion than has hitherto been accorded if the Indonesians continue to boggle over the American proffer. It is doubtful, also, whether the government at Jogjakarta will find much support from the potential sister republics in the archipelago. The intent is to unite three republics—Java and Sumatra (called the Indonesian Republic), East Indonesia and Borneo in a United States of Indonesia. Nothing has been heard from the two latter, though it is said they are consumed with impatience to consummate the federation. They are suffering along with the Dutch, moreover, from the disorder in the territory within the jurisdiction of Jogjakarta. It may be significant in the light of the Indonesian shilly-shallying over the American proffer of good offices that there has not been a peep of protest from these sister republics against the "limited police measures" undertaken by the Dutch.

Truman To Rio

President Truman, who has accepted a Brazilian invitation to visit Rio de Janeiro, is expected to address the Rio meeting of the American Republics which is to work out the Act of Chapultepec pledge of hemispherical defense. He will thus speak from a military as well as a Pan American platform. Either he can help our military get ready for the next war, or he can help our statesmen win the peace—a peace that has been left, like Mohammed's coffin, in a state of suspension after the last war. We hope, he does the latter.

Under Mr. Truman's Administration the first concrete step in this direction has been taken through the Marshall approach to Europe—to submit a plan for a restored working economy for Europe as a whole as the precondition of American help." In this constructive program this entire continent has a vital interest arising from sentimental and politico-economic ties. The motherlands of all of us are located in the string of states on the eastern rim of the Atlantic Ocean. They need strength and healing. Here in this continent the means are available, and the President ought to avail himself of the grand opportunity that will be his at Rio to ask the American republics to join with us in putting our distressed allies on their feet. The storehouse for war with which we all beat the enemies of world freedom can and must be mobilized for peace.

Before this continent went to war in 1941 there was much talk about the need to ready the nations of this hemisphere for the day when a prostrate Europe would need our aid. We find in our old files editorial after editorial urging the setting up of buffer pools by the American nations producing surpluses of food and raw materials. When war broke out we expressed the hope that, in spite of the preoccupation with war, there would be stockpiling for peace. But, as the requirements of war gradually took up all our energies, the idea lay fallow. Now is the time to revive it.

The time, of course, is overdue, for disintegration coming on top of devastation has been allowed to get a headstart over reconstruction. But few people after VJ-Day envisaged the tremendous nature of the task of reconstruction. The task is now obvious to everybody. Equally apparent are the consequences of neglect. The world freedom for which we all took up arms is again imperiled. And the prosperity of the raw material and the food suppliers is threatened by the closing of European markets arising out of the shortage of dollars.

Argentina, for instance, will not be able to do business with Europe on the scale of which she is capable if Europe lacks the dollar wherewithal. She cannot import from Europe the equal in goods of her exports. Settlements have to be triangular, with payments turned into dollars with which Argentina can buy in America. It may be taken for granted that aid for Europe in future will consist of things and not dollars. That will be no comfort to Argentina—no assurance of her prosperity out of foreign trade. Argentina like other nations in this continent thus has need to take the long view that the best prop of her prosperity lies not in doing emergency business but in laying new foundations that will enable Europe to be a good customer again.

President Truman made an excellent impression in his visit to Mexico. But this was due more to what he did than to what he said. His speech, with nonintervention as its theme, seems to have been dug out for him by somebody who had simply read a textbook on inter-American relations, and needed to have been brought up-to-date. A statesman responds to the occasion. In this case the occasion is the historic destiny put upon this New World of ours to redress the balance of the Old. An infusion of our strength will help the whole body politic of Europe and by the same token that of the world. But the most important consideration is that there is far more defense and certainly far more vision in safeguarding the peace than in preparing for the next war.

We hope that the President will transform the Rio platform with such a message. The plan we shall get from Europe cannot be shouldered alone, even if the European nations pool their own resources in setting up a working economy for Europe. It requires a partnership with the surplus producers in this continent that might well be brought into being by an invitation from Mr. Truman delivered from Rio.

The ILGWU Way

Our belief that responsible labor unions have no cause to fear that suits for damages under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act might subject them to unjust penalties for wildcat strikes or other illegal activities is strengthened by the action taken by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. David Dubinsky, the union's president, has advised all local union officials to continue signing "no strike" agreements with employers who agree to maintain the union shop and to submit disputes to arbitration. Far from seeking an excuse for evading punishment in case of illegal strikes, the union will attempt to get members participating in illegal strikes back to work within 24 hours. If they refuse to return, the arbitrator will have the right to declare their jobs vacant. And if the arbitrator decides that the union itself has failed to do its full duty in breaking the strike, he may terminate the contract. Responsibility for seeing that contracts are not violated is also to be vested in local union officials acting for the president.

Union officials who refuse to sign "no strike" contracts because they doubt their ability to control the actions of members are openly confessing a weakness that makes employers reluctant to enter into agreements with such unions. When strong unions attempt to evade responsibility for the acts of their members by dropping "no strike" clauses from contracts and objecting to reasonable proposals pledging them to do their utmost to prevent illegal strikes, one can only conclude that they are indifferent to the importance of living up to the terms of agreements.

The ILGWU is a firmly established, powerful labor organization that owes its success to its ability to control its members. Employers and employes alike benefit from the resultant stability of operations, and threats of penalization for possible breach of contract, therefore, have no power to terrify. While the existence of union shop contracts covering most members of the ILGWU strengthens its disciplinary powers, a union operating under open shop contracts can just as easily protect itself against suits for breach of contract, if it agrees to spare no effort to avert strikes or to suppress them.

Recoil

The astonishing ineptitude with which the senatorial investigation into the wartime airplane contracts scandal has been conducted is pretty clearly illustrated by the fact that, after seven days of public hearings on the subject, it is now the committee which finds itself on the defensive. Yesterday, Mr. Howard Hughes, after his melodramatic flight from Hollywood, reiterated under oath his accusation that Senator Brewster had offered to call off the whole investigation if Mr. Hughes would agree to a merger of his Trans-World Airlines with the Pan American Airways. This, as we have said before, and as Senator Brewster himself has angrily announced, amounts to no less than a charge of political blackmail, a very grave matter certainly.

Mere justice, of course, demands that judgment be suspended until Senator Brewster has completed the testimony he began to give late yesterday in contradicting the charge. Nevertheless, true or false, Mr. Hughes' accusation has obtained a certain verisimilitude from the circumstance that Senator Brewster has been one of the foremost congressional proponents of the doctrine that a monopoly in American overseas commercial airplanes operation is necessary to meet the "threat" of foreign competition. This, as it happens, is also the concept urged upon the Congress by Mr. Juan Trippe of the powerful Pan American Airways, which would inevitably be the dominating element in any such monopoly. For obvious reasons the proposed legislation in favor of a "chosen instrument" in overseas commercial air operations has been vigorously opposed by various independent airlines operators, among them of course Mr. Howard Hughes.

Thus it is plain that Senator Brewster, was in no tactical position to take the initiative in such an investigation, since his motives, even if Mr. Hughes had made no direct charges about them, would naturally have fallen under suspicion. As for the other Republican investigators, they have placed themselves under the suspicion of being more intent upon discrediting their political opponents than upon ascertaining the truth about the manner in which the wartime contracts were awarded and the prodigious wastage and graft involved in them. They have shown what seems incredible naivete in accepting at face value, and as their principal evidence, the expense accounts submitted by Mr. Johnny Meyer to the indulgent auditors of Mr. Hughes' corporations. In this way they made it possible for Mr. Elliott Roosevelt, whom they had chosen as their most vulnerable victim, to surround himself with the appearance of outraged innocence, merely by proving that his share of Mr. Hughes' largesse had been somewhat less than Mr. Meyer has represented, and that he was by no means the only cosmic jackass who had been given a position of great influence and authority.

In short, the investigation appears to have recoiled upon its authors. And this is a great pity, because undoubtedly there was a great deal of unsavory hanky-panky connected with the relations of officials and war contractors, from which, if they were disclosed, many profitable lessons might be drawn.

JAZZ BEAT

Beat on the trap, bang on the cymbals, rattle the gourds, tumble on the tomtoms, loosen your shoulders like honey in summer,
loosen those toes, boys, reach for the air.
(And the deep bass drum goes pounding in under, your blood beats fast, drum beat never changes.)
Throw him a dollar, boys, let him shoot the works, swatter on the drum face hushes for a moment.
Smack on the bells now, once on the wood, and a husha-mama-daddy and a husha-mama-daddy,
and the beating hearts moving round the floor, and the curled lips loosen, eyes look to eyes, fingers on flesh and the nerves all open, nothing's hidden any more, panther on the face and panther in the muscles, and the deep wild joy of the earth moving (and the deep bass drum goes pounding in under, drum beat never changes.)

Star-Chamber Probes

Amid all of the fanfare surrounding the current investigation of Mr. Hughes' contracts with the Government by the Brewster Committee, the little people of America may be treated to an insight into that growing cancer of American Government, "the congressional investigation." While this "star chamber" system of investigation has been watched with alarm for years by constitutional lawyers, it remains for Mr. Hughes with his money, together with the legal talent it will buy, and his flare for publicity, to properly advertise the dangers to personal liberties inherent in such a system.

Originally, the Congress undertook investigations solely for the purpose of aiding them in framing certain legislation. After the Harry Daugherty case, in which the Supreme Court decided that a general investigation of the Justice Department could conceivably have in mind remedial legislation, the Congress has gone hog-wild in investigating any matter which might give great publicity to the investigating committee chairman, and more often than not, with motives other than the public interest in mind.

Many men, lacking Mr. Hughes' affluence, have been hauled before these committees to answer charges; they have not had their constitutional right of being faced with their accusers; they have been denied the right of cross-examination, and sometimes the right to examine their own witnesses in order to clarify the many innuendoes that have been thrown out against them. The whole investigation is fairly comparable to the situation in a lawsuit in which the plaintiff has presented his case and rested, except that even there the defendant has had the right of cross-examination. With only this one side of the case, the committee makes certain findings which are widely publicized in the newspapers with resulting character assassinations, and lasting harm being done to the accused.

Never let it be said that I advocate closing our eyes to suspected frauds against the Government; but let them be the subject of private investigations by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and if fraud is uncovered, indictment and prosecution in the courts. When this is done, the accused either stands convicted or acquitted and whatever the outcome, he has had the benefit of his constitutional rights, instead of being a victim of the old newspaper game in which, regardless of his relative guilt or innocence, a great majority of the people are convinced that he is a crook. I have yet to hear of a man surviving one of these hearings without having some taint upon him, and it has reached the place where reputable men hesitate to deal with the Government at all.

Mr. Hughes has the opportunity to be of lasting service to his fellow Americans by exposing this evil system, and the sinister motives behind it. J. B. KING.

Hysteria Over Russia

To one whose American ancestry goes back 325 years, there is something shameful in the spectacle of the people of the United States trembling with fear of a country 6000 miles away. Have we so little confidence in the stability of the "free enterprise" and "democracy" we continually speak of with such pride?

Our Nation is today the most powerful on earth, materially speaking. Why are we so easily thrown off our spiritual balance? We hold the secret of a frightfully potent offensive weapon; our Navy is greater than the combined navies of all the rest of the world; we have come through the recent war with a relatively negligible loss of manpower and with our production equipment not only intact but enormously increased.

Why then are we in a hysterical panic because another nation, which lost in the recent war one-seventh of its population and the best part of its agricultural and industrial equipment, is seeking to guard against a third devastating invasion by setting up a protective belt of friendly buffer states along its western frontier? Would we not do the same if two historically hostile nations had established military and political outposts, let us say, on the northern shore of the Great Lakes and the south banks of the Rio Grande?

What are we so scared of? What good is our colossal strength if it is to be sapped by national nightmares and mass insomnia?

No nation need fear Communism if it has something better to offer its people. Why don't we meet this challenge and stop quaking in our boots at the thought of a bogeyman—6000 miles away! ANNA BLOSSOM.

Atomic Supplement

May I offer my congratulations on your atomic supplement in the August 3 issue of The Washington Post.

It was a very interesting, informative and well-arranged compilation. I particularly am glad that at various times mention was made of plans for a stronger United Nations with supranational powers. Thank you for a grand publication.

British Loan

"Give an inch and you lose a yard!" This, in effect, is what is happening in our relations with Great Britain. Last year, the United States "loaned" (donated?) Great Britain a huge quantity of dollars, and, in doing so, gave tacit support to her collectivist experiment dedicated to socializing her economy. Today, Great Britain, having obtained her "inch," is in hot pursuit of the remaining "yard." Not only does she want a relation of the terms of the original "loan" (written in to protect the American businessman from the infamous system of "empire preference") but she is bemoaning the fact that her allowance is almost spent and that she's still in no better shape than she was when the "loan" was first made.

If we're foolish enough to "lend" her more money (which she can use to bid against United States citizens for scarce commodities and thus give an extra upward push to the inflationary spiral), what guarantee do we have that she won't be asking for more a year from now, and a year from then, etc.?

I submit that there is little difference between the English planned economy and that of the Russians. What difference does exist is found mainly in the fact that while the Soviet collectivists are strongly entrenched, those planners in England still face a stiff fight from the opposition. There seems to be little sense to a program which contributes to inflation in the United States, creates a perennial "poor relation" always begging for a handout, and simultaneously gives support to a collective ideology which is alien to the free institutions we so ardently profess to indorse in the United States. American Geographical Ignorance

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler once remarked that America is the best half-educated nation in the world. The Gallup poll of July 20 substantiates in some degree Dr. Butler's statement. Your editorial commenting on the findings of the Gallup survey, failed to point out the basic cause of this national illiteracy.

Our school systems should take the lion's share of the blame for not including in their curricula geography and geographic history. We stop teaching these vitally important subjects in most public schools after the eighth grade. Secondly, the fault lies with us as citizens for not being vigilant in keeping abreast of current happenings in any part of the world. Thirdly, the newspapers should be blamed for their failure to give the historic background of the news and repeat it until it can create reader interest.

As one who is extremely interested in the fourth estate and reader reaction, I often conduct brief surveys of my own. I conducted an extensive one about a year ago. The subject was Azerbaijan, when it was on the front pages of newspapers for weeks.

I printed the word "Azerbaijan" and "Adzerbaijan" in bold letters and approached 500 people and showed them the printed word. I asked each person if he or she had seen the word in print, and if so, where and in what connection. I asked what the word refers to.

The 500 people questioned here and in New York included the following groups: Group 1 was made up of 100 junior high school students (60 per cent male and 40 per cent female), who were studying modern European history at the time. From this group I received two partially correct answers, both from male students.

Group 2 was made of 100 college students, consisting 15 per cent freshmen (5 per cent male and 10 per cent female), 25 per cent sophomores (15 per cent male and 10 per cent female), 40 per cent juniors (all male), 15 per cent seniors and 5 per cent graduates (all male). The 40 juniors were specializing in foreign service. I received eight partially correct answers, all from the latter group.

Group 3 was made up of 100 Government employes, holding junior professional, secretarial, and clerical positions (40 per cent male and 60 per cent female), all having completed high school and 10 having college degrees. From this group I received one partially correct answer.

Group 4 was made up of 100 persons, of whom 60 were Government executives (all male), 25 Army and Navy officers (all male) and 15 professors and high school teachers (10 male and 5 female). All were college graduates, 15 with M.A. and eight with Ph.D. degrees. From this group I received five partially correct answers, one from the executive group, two from Army and Navy group and three from professors and teachers.

From the last group of the 100 persons, which was made up of 30 businessmen (all male, 10 with college degrees and the remaining 20 with high school education), 20 business executives (all male and all with college degrees), 50 private employes (30 male and 20 female) of high school education from this group, I received all negative answers.

Yes, out of this cross-section of 500 Americans from all walks of life, representing 26 States, not one gave me a completely correct answer. Only 16 (3.2 per cent) of 500 people gave partially correct answers but most of the answers were vague. The remaining 484 (96.8 per cent) confessed frankly that they had never seen or heard of the word.

Food Waste—World Hunger

By Malvina Lindsay

Saving Leftovers

FOREIGN VISITORS in this country, seeing plates of leftovers, and heaped garbage pails, ask why some of the world's hungry can't be fed with crumbs from the rich man's table.

With the war over, many Americans have fallen back into their old careless and prodigal food habits. Yet the world's first food parliament, meeting in Geneva this month, finds the food situation on the globe no better than a year ago.

In many countries hunger still numbs thought and action. Babies grow thinner when taken off the breast. Young girls sell themselves for a decent dinner. The aged walk with hands against the walls for support. People on the food margin, as the British, know the nagging restlessness of never being quite satisfied; "always fidgeting" as E. M. Forster, novelist, described them in a recent interview.

No wonder those who have seen these things ask why Americans, since they won't accept food controls, can't voluntarily, by preventing waste, conserve their crumbs and leftovers for the world's underfed.

CONSUMER food waste in this country has never been and cannot be accurately measured. It is frequently estimated that 15 per cent of food handled in the home is wasted. Home economists say a great deal of food is lost through unplanned shopping, improper handling, poor storage and refrigeration, unappetizing preparation and nutritional ignorance. This waste is being cut down somewhat through the widespread teaching of home economics. But traditional food habits of a land of plenty still prevail widely, and are especially obvious in the circles foreign visitors have opportunity to observe.

However, the great food wastage in this country and throughout the world is in surpluses, in dumpings, in storage and marketing losses. The only way to prevent this big-scale waste is through united action of nations.

Such waste is likely to grow worse, warns Sir John Boyd Orr, director general of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. As farmers throughout the world increase production to meet market demands of hungry countries, they will duplicate efforts, find unmarketable surpluses on their hands. In some places, as often happens in America, crops may rot unharvested or unshipped.

TO MEET this problem the Geneva Conference, at which representatives of 51 nations will gather, may take one of the most important steps in mankind's long struggle to get enough to eat. It is planned to set up a World Food Council under the Food and Agriculture Organization to survey world food needs and world production, and to advise governments on how to gear their agriculture to world demands.

This would work toward what Sir John calls an "ever normal granary, worldwide." All member governments of the World Food Council would commit themselves to full food production, which is the first step toward getting enough to eat for the billion or more underfed inhabitants of the globe. After domestic needs were met, surpluses would be stored—never allowed to rot or to be dumped on the market to cause price collapses. Part of these reserves would be held to take care of each nation's food emergencies that might be caused by drought, floods or blights. The rest of the stocks would be sold through the council to meet needs in other parts of the world, thus providing a means of quick action in preventing famines.

Thus farmers generally would be assured of stabilized prices and relieved of the risks they now take in crop production. Consumers would not be so likely to suffer from inflationary prices caused by shortages of food. Such a plan, by helping to distribute through the world every nation's leftovers, would be a big step toward ending the stupid and tragic spectacle of people starving in one part of the globe while millions of tons of food rotted in another.

British In Palestine

To one who is British by nationality and Jewish by religion, recent news is particularly disturbing.

I can only hope that Mr. Ben Hecht, who lives thousands of miles from anti-Semitic disturbance in England and bloodshed in Palestine, feels a twinge of conscience in the events of the last week.

This man, safe from all danger, smugly entices the young men of Palestine to go forth to kill and be killed. Surely his place is by their side. Let him not find excuse in the fact that it is not lawful, he who obviously has no respect for law or humanity.

To Marion Perlov, whose letter I read in The Washington Post of August 4, I would say: Let us not delude ourselves, or turn a blind eye to the real issues. British imperialism is no longer the only issue in Palestine; it is shared by American interests. Miss Perlov is optimistic enough to believe that if Britain withdrew from Palestine there would be no more violence. Who then would protect the Standard Oil Co. and Anglo-Iranian interests if the Arabs decided to make a more profitable deal with Russia? SADIE LEVY.

Facing Disaster

By Barnet Nover

Britain On The Brink

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S ferocious assault on the Labor government, which he saddled with prime responsibility for Great Britain's evil plight, can be discounted in part as a purely political outburst.

NOVER

Determined to cut the ground from under the regime which replaced the one he himself headed until 1945, Britain's Tory leader is in no mood to view the Labor government's record with charitable and forgiving eyes.

Nonetheless, there is much that Churchill said by way of criticism of the present government that is demonstrably true. Prime Minister Attlee admitted as much in his House of Commons speech announcing a new program of drastic belt-tightening for Great Britain.

IT WAS, of course, not the fault of the Labor government that since the $3,750,000,000 loan was negotiated in the United States, prices in this country have risen steeply. Yet as an effect of this inflation, Great Britain has had to dig more deeply into her dollar credits to pay for purchases in this country than she would otherwise have had to do.

According to Hugh Dalton, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, rising American prices have cut the buying power of the loan by 28 per cent.

Nor was it the fault of the Labor government that Great Britain was cursed by extraordinarily severe weather last winter, followed by devastating floods. The result: British food production and industrial exports were cut down, food imports had to be stepped up and the American loan cut into further.

Furthermore, Europe's recovery has been much slower than had been anticipated. In view of Europe's importance to Great Britain both as a buyer of the latter's products and as a supplier of certain commodities, this development has tended to aggravate the British financial and economic crisis.

HAVING SAID all that, it must also be said that for months after the loan was negotiated, the Labor government persisted in living in a fool's paradise. When it came to coal production, the export situation and the use of the American loan, the keynote was optimism. Like Micawber, the Labor leaders were convinced that "something would turn up" to help Britain surmount her difficulties before they became acute.

In explanation of this state of mind, Herbert Morrison, one of the "Big Three" in the British cabinet, declared not long ago:

"The government did not feel it right to impose, shortly after the war, any greater degree of austerity than actually had to be imposed on this country . . . The government are quite clear, having given deep and prolonged thought to this matter, that they should not impose cuts of a scale which would require a drastic adjustment of our standard of living until it is perfectly clear and certain that this is the only course open to us."

Only now, at the twelfth hour, with the American loan on the verge of complete exhaustion, is such a drastic adjustment being ordered. And only now do we begin to get an admission, as the one made by Prime Minister Attlee, that perhaps the Labor government tried to do too much (in such matters as nationalization) in too short a time. Controls, he admitted, were relaxed too soon. Also, not enough had been done to persuade workers to realize that shorter hours and higher wages "must be matched by greater effort."

THE BRITISH crisis is only partially a financial crisis, although the shortage of dollar exchange constitutes its most acute aspect at this moment. Basically, it is a crisis in production, aggravated by an attempt to carry out an expensive social and industrial revolution at a time of grave economic debility.

As Lord Robert Brand pointed out the other day:

"The distribution of wealth has been taught for many years as the cure- and end-all. Now we have come to the end of the distribution of wealth; and we find that mere distribution of wealth, which is desirable if it goes not beyond the point where it destroys initiative, is in itself no cure at all. The cure is a greater production; and there socialism has hitherto failed, whether in this country, in France or in other countries, either as against capitalism or even, I think, communism with its big stick."

Great Britain can only solve its financial problem if it solves its production problem. It has made some headway in that direction during the past two years but by no means enough. Now, Premier Attlee and his colleagues, having emphasized nationalization of industry during the last two years, plan to emphasize increased production. The change may be too late.

Off The Record

Washington Calling

Our Lagging Air Power

THEY HAD an Air Force Day in the Soviet Union recently which, by a coincidence, fell close to the day on which we in this country paraded our air power. Pravda boastfully proclaimed that Russia had pioneered the theory of jet propulsion and hinted that the Soviet Union was far in the lead in the new superspeed aircraft.

Childs

This last may be no idle boast. It is a suspicion which top U. S. Air Force officers have long held.

On Moscow's Air Force Day, the public was told for the first time about new types of jet planes developed, so it was claimed in Pravda, by Russian designers. The belief in informed quarters here is that the real credit must go to German designers and technicians who were taken as part of the spoils of war.

While the formal unveiling of the new Russian jet models took place only the other day, our own military planners have known for some time about certain of the more spectacular Soviet achievements. Most startling and most hush-hush of all is a jet bomber with a range of 800 miles. This is believed to exceed anything yet developed in this country. It may even be an advance over U. S. jet types that are still in the experimental construction stage.

FOR THE coming fiscal year, Congress appropriated funds for 1700 planes for both the Navy and the Army Air Forces. This was a considerable advance over the amount requested by the Bureau of the Budget. For aviation research, Congress granted $145,000,000 for the AAF and $75,000,000 for the Navy, which were the amounts requested in the budget.

This must be compared, however, with the minimum set in 1945 by the Air Coordinating Committee. The committee, made up of representatives of all Government departments with an interest in aviation, found that to maintain an aircraft industry sufficient for national security a minimum of 3000 planes a year should be manufactured.

Moreover, this was the minimum after peace should be secured throughout the world and some degree of disarmament achieved. Anyone who thinks we have arrived at that state today had better see a good psychiatrist.

The gap between 1700 planes and 3000 is a big one. The figure of 3000 presupposed research and development of new types which would make it possible to go into quick production of those types in the event of a war. Plainly, then, the Administration would have to ask, and Congress would have to grant, nearly twice the amount made available for the current year.

THIS WAS precisely the desperate lack we faced after Pearl Harbor. Experimental construction and research lagged in the late 30s. If one can look through the irrelevancies and absurdities of the current Senate investigation, that is the tremendously important fact which comes out—in spite, one might almost say, of those who are conducting the investigation.

In American aircraft plants, experimental models of jet bombers are being built and they are undergoing tests. A number of types are being pioneered, which is costly, but from the point of view of eventual mass production it is highly desirable.

Bombers powered with four jets are being produced by the North American and Consolidated companies. Martin and Boeing are working on six-jet bombers. Northrop is engaged in powering the famous flying wing with jets.

Only one type of jet fighter—the P-80—is in present use in USAAF squadrons. We have lagged considerably behind in this field. Two new types, the P-81 and the P-85, are in experimental construction.

The new supersonic planes get into the Buck Rogers range. Bell Aircraft is constructing the X-S1 and the X-S2. The X-S1 has been flown experimentally. It is a small piloted plane carried in a B-29 bomber and released at 30,000 feet.

The X-SI carries rockets as offensive weapons. Its flying time is so short, however, that it must still be considered as merely a tool for experiment.

All this has the quality of a newsreel that is somehow familiar. In the pre-1939 days, the Russians paraded giant guns and masses of troops through Red Square. The weapons grow more destructive while man's fear, suspicion and hatred stay the same.

U. S. Voids $7,000,000 Credit To Hungary, Assails Romania

By The Associated Press

Denouncing the recent Hungarian government upset as a Communist coup, Secretary of State Marshall yesterday disclosed cancellation of a seven-million-dollar credit promised Hungary.

The State Department simultaneously took a poke at another of Russia's Balkan neighbors by renewing an official protest against the Romanian government's widespread arrest of opposition leaders.

From Poland, meanwhile, came an appeal for restoration of the relief funds originally designed for that country in the new 332 million dollar American program. Marshall struck Poland off the list for aid July 23 after an American mission reported the Poles have enough food in sight to get by and officials considered it unlikely that the action would be reversed. The appeal was delivered to Marshall by Ambassador Josef Winiewicz, who told newsmen that "Poland really needs food."

Grai Allocation Asked

Estimating his country's grain deficiency until next July 1 at 800,000 tons, the envoy said he also asked Marshall to support an allocation of grain by the Agriculture Department. He said Poland would pay for it by "mortgaging" gold reserves in this country.

Marshall told a news conference one of the main reasons the United States shut off the credit for Hungary was because numerous government officials in which it has confidence have fled into exile.

The Export-Import Bank decided to cancel the credit, which was to have been used to buy American cotton, five days ago. Marshall said it acted after examining the situation anew in view of the overthrow of the Hungarian government in May by Communists.

Second Such Step

Other factors listed by Marshall were:

1. An improvement in Hungary's outlook for cotton supply.

2. What Marshall called the threat of nationalization which hangs over the two Hungarian banks which were to have received the credit.

The action marks the second such step taken toward the reorganized Hungarian government. On June 2 a 15-million-dollar surplus property credit was cancelled because of the changed political situation.

In telling of the latest protest to Romania, the State Department said it had rejected Bucharest's contention that the arrests were of no concern to the United States since they were internal security measures. Roy M. Melbourne, acting American political representative in the Romanian capitol, delivered a second note which said the American Government views these arrests as:

"Being perpetrated in Romania contrary to explicit undertakings of the Romanian government in regard to the assurance of basic human rights to the Romanian people."

Concern at Maniu Arrest

The State Department announcement said it is "seriously concerned" at the continuing suppression of civil liberties in Romania, culminating in the arrest of Juliu Maniu, leader of the National Peasant Party.

The State Department said Maniu and his coworkers played an outstanding part in efforts to make peace with the Allies and to restore civil liberties.

Dispatches from Romania reported 33 National Peasant deputies were ousted from the Communist-dominated parliament by majority motion last night.

These reports said Maniu had been held incommunicado by government agents for several weeks although he is technically not under arrest.

Diversion of Goods Likely

Meanwhile, it appeared that part of a 25 million dollars tag end lot of Lend-Lease goods originally destined for Russia may wind up in Greece and Turkey under the American aid program designed to ease Soviet pressures on those countries.

The rest is likely to be dumped on the surplus property market where, conceivably, Russia could buy it again at cut-rate prices.

Congress blocked the shipments, causing an epidemic of headaches in both the State and Treasury departments.

The State Department pleaded with the lawmakers to let the deal go through lest this Government lay itself open to charges of "flagrant discrimination" and welshing" on its contract with the Russians.

But Congress took the position that Soviet actions in eastern Europe in the last few months needed some sign of official American disapproval.

Rescued U. S. Citizen, In Germany, 'Won't Talk'

Frankfurt, Germany, Aug. 6 (U.P.) Stephen Thuransky, 54, naturalized American citizen who was rescued after he was seized by Hungarian police for criticizing the Communist-dominated government of his fatherland, arrived by air today with orders not to talk until he reaches Washington.

"Listen, mister, I don't want any more trouble with anyone. I'm just keeping my big mouth shut until we get to Washington," Thuransky told a reporter. He was accompanied by his wife, Teresa, a Hungarian citizen, and his two daughters, both naturalized Americans.

Mrs. Thuransky fled from the range of cameramen and flinched at the sound of voices.

"The GPU (Russian secret police) is everywhere. You just can't trust anybody," she said nervously.

"Quiet, mama," Thuransky soothed. "We're all in a safe place now."

Thuransky was the first American arrested under a new political law which makes it a state crime for anyone, regardless of nationality, to speak out against the Hungarian government. Seized Friday, he eluded his guards Saturday.

American Minister Selden Chapin said Thuransky's departure was made under an emergency exit visa obtained by ignoring Hungarian officials and going directly to Russian members of the Allied Control Council. The visa was granted in a record three hours after the application.

Social Security Exemption For News Vendors Is Vetoed

President Truman yesterday vetoed a bill which would have removed certain newspapers vendors from social security coverage.

However, he signed into law a bill freezing the social security tax at one per cent each for employers and employes until January 1, 1950.

The new law provides that the tax will be increased to one and one-half per cent on January 1, 1950, and to two per cent on January 1, 1952.

Under the old law, the one per cent rate would have jumped to two and one-half per cent next January 1 and to three per cent on January 1, 1949.

Huge Savings Seen

Tax savings under the new law are estimated at one billion dollars each for employers and employes next year and $1,400,000,000 each in 1949.

Mr. Truman turned thumbs down on the social security measure because "it restricts and narrows coverage under our social security laws, while our objective should be to enlarge that coverage."

Using his veto power with increasing frequency as he neared the bottom of the stack of 194 bills Congress laid on his desk just before it adjourned, Mr. Truman disapproved five other minor bills—making a total of 14 vetoes since Congress quit. He signed six bills, leaving 17 on which he must act.

Sees No Justification

He said there was "no justification" for amending the social security law to exempt such "bona-fide" employes of publishers.

"It would establish a precedent for special exemption," Mr. Truman said. "We must not open our social security structure to piece meal attack and to slow undermining."

Five minor bills the President vetoed would have:

Permitted certain bankruptcy referees to act as attorneys for claimants against the United States (now forbidden by the criminal code):

Reimbursed Maj. Frank F. Miles, formerly of Iowa Selective Service, for terminal leave he did not receive when he left the Army at his own request to go abroad as a war correspondent.

Compensated Mrs. Buelah Hart for the death of her son, Gath Daniel Meeks, of Palm City, Calif., who was shot by an Army sentry when he drove a truck into a secret installation durin gthe war.

Refunded a fee of $62,229 paid by a public district in Cowlitz County, Washington, under a law which was repealed a short while after the fee was paid.

Ended wartime authority for priorities on transportation on merchant vessels. The President said the act already had been repealed once.

Among the bills Mr. Truman signed was one to amend a 1934 act regulating the use of public lands by private livestock owners.

He approved other measures to authorize an increase by 400 million dollars in the amount of mortgage insurance that is permitted to be issued under the National Housing Act.

Return to the Treasury approximately 290 million dollars of capital funds used to set up the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to insure bank deposits as soon as the FDIC surplus totals about one billion dollars, expected within 18 months.

Broaden the peacetime authority of the War and Navy Departments to lease strategic plants to private interests.

To permit burial of some of the Nation's war dead abroad and to allo westablishment of additional national cemeteries overseas.

British Woo Trade In South America

London, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—A British "good-will" mission left London by air today with the objective of improving trade relations between Britain and seven South American republics.

Including four members of Commons and headed by Laborite Michael Stewart, the mission will return in September after visiting Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Peru, Columbia and Venezuela.

The President's Calling List

President Truman had the following White House visitors yesterday:

11:30 a. m.—Ralph C. Wilson, Thomas Melville, Harry MacDonald of Detroit.

12:00—Rudolf E. Schoenfeld, new American Minister to Roumania.

12:15 p. m.—Budget Director Webb.

1:00—Lunch.

Files Show Russian Pressure To Get Invasion Money Plates

By John L. Steele
United Press Staff Writer

Sledge-hammer diplomacy by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and his deputy, Andrei A. Gromyko, forced reluctant United States Cabinet officers in 1944 to turn over to Russia the American plates for printing German occupation currency, it was revealed last night.

Hitherto top-secret diplomatic notes and memoranda disclosed that prior to the Allied invasion of Europe the Russians issued at least two ultimatums to gain possession of the plates from which they have struck an unknown quantity of occupation marks.

The Soviets twice threatened to print occupation money of their own "pattern" if the United States plates were not forthcoming. United States officials feared this would disrupt beyond repair all plans to treat Germany as an economic unit.

Accountability Lost

They fought the Russian demand for the United States plates because they were opposed to letting any two nations turn out identical money for Germany.

If this was don, they contended, neither nation could be held accountable for the total number of marks produced.

The secret records were gathered from the files of the State, War and Treasury Departments. They were made available by the Senate Appropriations Committee after some members expressed fear that the transaction has resulted in the "organized looting" of Germany and may cost the American taxpayers up to 400 million dollars.

Director A. W. Hall of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, warned at the time that the deal might result in an "international scandal." He said that "to permit the Russian government to print a currency identical to that being printed in this country would make accountability impossible . . . Would create a serious complication."

Opposed by Hull, Morgenthau

The documents show that United States officials, including former Secretary of State Cordell Hull and former Secreary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., at first held out against Russia pressure but finally submitted after Gen. George C. Marshall, then chief of staff, suggested that, in the interest of allied unity, it might be best to meet the Soviet demands.

A group of Senate Appropriations, Armed Services and Banking Committee members has been informed that the Army currently is 380 million dollars "long" on occupation marks. War Department officials said, however, that this total is being reduced to 160 million dollars and will be wiped out by 1948 by spending of marks for services in Germany.

But the Senators are afraid that United States taxpayers eevntually will have to foot a major portion of the bill. They requested further data on the extent of Russian "printing press" money which has drifted into the United States occupation zone—either through organized economic "looting" or through side transactions between United States and Russian soldiers.

Shipment of the United States plates, secret inks and paper samples was made in April, 1944, even as American officials were making a desperate last-minute effort to preserve Soviet-American-British military and economic unity.

The story began in January, 1944, when then United States Ambassador to Russia, W. Averell Harriman was ordered by Hull to attempt an agreement with Russia for joint issuance of Allied currency during the invasion of Germany.

Molotov sent a note to Hull on February 15, 1944, in which he demanded that Russia be given the plates for all denominations of the occupation marks. He rejected a suggestion that the marks be printed in this country because Soviet forces, then converging on Germany, might find themselves in short supply.

Hull advised Harriman that he would take the matter up with the combined chiefs of staffs and that it was unlikely that the military would approve.

Pressure in Earnest

Soviet pressure then began in earnest.

Molotov told Hull in an April 8 note that if the plates were not forthcoming "the Soviet government will then be forced to proceed with the independent preparation of military marks for Germany of its own pattern."

After another series of conferences here, Hall was instructed to make the inks, paper, photographs and plates available to the Russians.

Chicago Bank High Bidder On Md. Bonds

By S. Oliver Goodman

Harris Trust & Savings Bank, Chicago, was high yesterday on an offering of $9,625,000 State of Maryland bonds with a bid of $101.0227 for each $100 par. In addition the group headed by the Chicago bank offered a $98,434 premium for the bonds at 1¼ per cent interest, which brought the rate to the State down to 1.15 per cent. The bonds were offered in two groups: one for five-million dollars emergency construction authorized by the 1947 General Assembly and the other for $4,625,000 authorized by the 1945 Legislature.

BULLS AND BEARS: "We look for new highs for the year to be established in August," said Bache & Co. . . . "The best is a trading range, with the market losing technical strength and the next important volume on the downside," said E. F. Hutton & Co.

HOLDING THE LINE? Price of heavy scrap iron soared $5 to all-time high of $43 a gross ton in Buffalo yesterday . . Kaiser-Frazer Corp. raised factory list price of Frazer standard model $99 to $2152 . . . Association of Buying Officers called meeting in New York for today to consider protests against practice of certain apparel makers of increasing prices on previously confirmed orders.

ODD LOTS: Wisconsin Central Railroad reorganization plan challenged by two groups of bondholders in ICC petitions . . Steel prioring policies may become "demoralized" if scrap prices continue to hold at "ridiculously high figures," says trade publication Iron Age . . . Electric output in August 2 week reported 10.5 per cent above last year and at highest level since January 25 week . . . G. C. Murphy Co. July sales of $8,530,533 up 2.8 per cent over same 1946 period . . . New batch of salary reports as reported to SEC included: James H. Rand, jr., president of Remington Rand, Inc., $203,879; R. F. Black, president of White Motor Co., $89,000; Albanus Phillips, board chairman of Phillips Packing Co., $50,024 . . . General Motors produced 139,294 cars and trucks in July against 155,609 in June. GM factories were closed week last month due to lack of flat rolled steel . . . Freight car deliveries in July totaled 5,879 against 5,514 in June. Backlog was 117,592 on August 1.

CATTLE AND PEOPLE: Odd story behind an advertisement Monday in The Washington Post. It goes back to 1903 when cattle driven through the streets of Chicago prevented or delayed transportation of thousands of people in that section. So an elevated transit system was built and the steers given right of way on streets. Built by the Union Stockyards, the elevated line was leased to Chicago Rapid Transit Co. The latter went into receivership about 10 years ago. Since then, the stockyard interests have been fighting in the courts to regain the elevated structure. Latest development, according to Monday's ad, is that the Illinois Commerce Commission finally has granted the stockyards the right to operate its own elevated line "unless the Supreme Court overrules the Court of Appeals."

AMBITIOUS PLANS: Hotel industry, with rigid Federal controls at end, is launching 382-million dollar rehabilitation, repair and refurnishing program, says publication Hotel Monthly . . . Electric light and power companies spent more than a billion on new construction in 1946 and will continue to expand at rate of billion annually for next four years, declares Edison Electric Institute . . . Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. in midst of 46-million-dollar expansion and improvement program in District of Columbia has authorized or spent $13,652,000 to date . . . Southern Railway to modernize 24 passenger coaches with air-conditioning and deluxe equipment at cost of $500,000 . . . Thomas A. Nats Need Only 2 Hits, Top Bosox 1-0

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BIG, BEET-FACED Johnny Mize of the Giants is taking dead aim at Babe Ruth's 20-year-old home run record of 60 in a single season and at this point is two home runs ahead of the pace Ruth was setting on August 6, 1927. If Mize doesn't bust it, Ruth's record appears safe for another 20 years.

POVICH

A lot of great sluggers have taken shots at Ruth's mark and missed. Hank Greenberg and Jimmy Foxx hunched their home run production all the way up to 58 in the best seasons they had but couldn't get up to 60. Hack Wilson set the National League record of 56 in his best year. Sixty home runs are a lot. Ruth had to average two home runs every five games.

Ted Williams, in a different setting than Fenway Park, might have threatened Ruth's record, but a left-handed hitter in Boston is a gone pigeon. Yankee Stadium, by contrast, was the perfect home run park for Ruth, and in the year he set his record he had the advantage of the open right-field pavilions in St. Louis, now screened against cheap home runs.

Ruth, himself, rates Mize as the only man now in the majors with a chance to break his record, but he adds, "I don't believe anybody will hit 60 homers again—there's too much of the element of luck in it."

TO GET HIS 60 homers, Ruth dropped many a glorified pop fly into the nearby bleachers of Yankee Stadium, but only the ignorant would attempt to detract from Ruth's swatting ability. He holds the long-distance hitting record in virtually every park in the American League.

The late Walter Johnson, discussing home-run hitters one day, declared there wasn't anybody in Ruth's class. "I don't know how it looked to other pitchers," said Johnson, "but every time he hit a homer off me that ball he hit got smaller quicker than anybody else's homers."

When they staged Babe Ruth Day in Yankee Stadium last May and the convalescing Babe was resting in the Yankees' dugout, Phil Rizzuto and other young Yanks were staring with interest at the big fellow fighting for his health. Rizzuto asked Bucky Harris how many homers Ruth hit in big Griffith Stadium.

"I don't know how many he hit," said Harris, "but the fences didn't stop him. I've seen him fooled on a ball, and then bump it into the left center-field bleachers with a half swing."

MIZE HAS THE muscle of a home run champion. He works mostly in the Polo Grounds where the right-field distances for left-handed hitters are convenient but, like Ruth, he isn't stopped by the far fences, either. The home run he hit for the National Leaguers in the All-Star game at Chicago was an enormous line drive that would have been a homer anywhere in the world.

The ball Mize is swinging against isn't as lively as the jackrabbit pellet of the Babe Ruth era, but Ruth was hitting against better pitching in 1927 than Mize is swinging at this year. And Ruth had fewer home run chances, what with the pitchers walking him more frequently than they walk Mize.

Mize has 47 games remaining in which to hit 26 homers and tie Ruth's mark. That's asking for a lot of home runs in the months of August and September. Ruth had to produce the 17 in September to reach the 60 figure, an average of a homer in every other game but he never had to contend with the night-ball pitching that Mize is facing.

TED WILLIAMS is certain that night pitching is tougher on the hitters. He declares "you only see the underside of the ball in the lights and it has a phony whiteness that throws a hitter off. In the daytime, you can see the curve ball spinning and recognize it as a curve, but at night you're up there guessing too much."

A lot of guys have equaled Babe Ruth's feat of hitting home runs over the clock in right centerfield of Griffith Stadium, but one feat he holds exclusively. He came closer to driving a ball completely over the center-field bleachers than any other man. One of his clouts into dead center landed against the facing of the retaining wall only four rows from the top of the bleachers.

Ruth's prediction that nobody would break his record of 60 may sound a bit immodest but doubtless he didn't mean it that way. He was saying only that it's very tough to hit 60 home runs a year. It's a record that looks secure against mere men, or Mize.

Macks Cuff Newsom for 5-3 Win Over Yanks

Philadelphia, Aug. 6 (AP).—Bill McCahan, promising rookie right-hander of the Philadelhpia Athletics limited the New York Yankees to five hits today in pitching the A's to a 5-3 conquest over the American League leaders.

Two of the blows yielded by McCahan were home runs by Al Clark and Billy Johnson which accounted for all of the Yankees' runs. Clark belted his first major league homer in the seventh and Johnson whacked his seventh of the year with one on and two out in the ninth.

Other Night Games

In other games last night, Chicago led St. Louise, 7-2, in the fourth inning, in the American League; in the National League, Boston led Brooklyn, 6-3, in the eighth, and Cincinnati led St. Louis, 1-0, in the fourth.

One-Hitter For 6 Frames

McCahan gave up only one hit during the first six frames while the A's, after collecting their first hit of the game in the fifth, batted around and scored four runs in the sixth. That wrapped up the game and handed veteran Bobo Newsom his first setback in five decisions since he was obtained by the Yanks from Washington.

Gene Handley led off the big frame with a walk. McCahan followed with a single and both runners advanced on a sacrifice. Eddie Joost walked to load the bases and Handley came home when Elmer Valo followed with a single.

Ferris Fain flied out, McCahan scoring after the catch and Joost and Valo each advancing a base. George Stirnweiss then lost Sam Chapman's ball in the sun, Joost scoring on the hit and Valo coming in when Rightfielder Tommy Henrich threw the ball wild past first.

Chapman accounted for the Athletics' final run in the seventh with a homer off Relief Pitcher Randy Gumpert.

The game was held up briefly during the A's half of the second when Newsom engaged in an argument with Al Simmons, third-base coach and former standout slugger of the Athletics.

Tigers Win Pair

Detroit, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers climbed ahead of the Boston Red Sox into second place today by sweeping a double-header from the Cleveland Indians, 13 to 6 and 7 to 5. The Tigers took the opener with a nine-run rally in the eighth inning after chasing Bobby Feller in the seventh.

Byron Stephens was the losing pitcher. Detroit scored all seven of its runs in the first two innings of the nightcap and coasted home.

Schroeder Skips One

South Orange, N. J., Aug. 6 (AP).—Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., expected to help the United States in its defense of the Davis Cup this year, said today that he would not compete in the national singles championships at Forest Hills. Schroeder explained that he could not spare the additional time from his job.

Hoot Mon Captures Hambletonian

JUST AS THEY FINISHED—Hoot Mon flashes across the finish line to win the third heat of the famous Hambletonian yesterday at Goshen, N. Y., taking the crown over the favored Rodney, which also finished second in the third heat

Sweeps Last Two Heats From Rodney, Sets New Record

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP).—Amid shattered records and shattered stands—71 persons were injured in the latter—a black streak of lightning tagged Hoot Mon struck the stretch of Goow Time Park's kite-shaped racing strip today and sizzled to a smashing victory in the biggest Hambletonion of them all.

The black son of Scotsun came roaring home in the second and third heats after being beaten by the giant favorite, Rodney, in the first go-round, as all Hambletonian gate and betting records were smashed for this twenty-second running of the Corn-Tassel Derby.

On the darker side of the picture was the collapse of three sections of the temporary bleachers fronting the head of the stretch, which sent 71 fans—estimated by State police—to the Goshen Hospital or the Red Cross tent at the track for treatment.

Hoot Mon Shakes "Jinx"

The highest-priced horse ever to run in the Hambletonian—he cost his owners $50,000 just a year ago—Hoot Mon finally ended the "always a bridesmaid, never a bride," routine for Mr. and Mrs. James B. Johnston who breed trotters on their Lexington, Ky., farm and show horses on their Rochester, Mich., layout.

...vice before their Hambleto... hustlers had won single ... in this derby for the trotters. ...y to shatter their hopes by not being able to put together the required pair of victories in the mile dashes.

Today, though, they had as hot a horse as has been seen on any trotting track in quite a spell. And they had the hottest driver of them all, old Sep Palin, the Indianapolis wizard of the sulky pilots.

And between the two of them, there was nothing on this kite-shaped strip to stop them once they found the range in the second heat.

Records Shattered

In that one, coming from behind to overhaul the glamour boy of this year's hayseed world series, Rodney, they fairly set fire to the stretch to hit the wire in two minutes flat for the mile—the fastest Hambletonian heat ever run—to fairly take the breath away from the 18,333 city slickers and country cousins who jammed this sleepy Orange County town with a new record turnout.

Then, switching their stuff, they came back to skip through a front-running race in the third heat in 2:02 1-5 to pick up the $24,979.86

71 Persons Injured As Stands Crash

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP).—Seventy-one persons were injured and hundreds were hurled to the ground when three sections of temporary bleachers at the Good Time Park track crashed to the ground an hour before the running of the historic Hambletonian trotting stakes today.

Only two of the persons were seriously hurt, State Trooper Hogan reported, although 30 were taken to Goshen Hospital for treatment. Many soon were released.

Forty-one others were given first aid at a Red Cross tent at the track.

Haefner's 8 Strikeouts Assist in Five-Hitter

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Southpaw Mickey Haefner hurled the Nats to a 1-0 triumph over the Red Sox last night at Griffith Stadium. It was Haefner's fourth straight success, giving him a record of 7 and 8.

The Nats got only two hits and scored the game's only run in the first inning. Haefner was nicked for five safeties, but struck out eight Bosox. The win was the second straight for Washington over Boston and the seventh for the Nats in 13 games between the two teams this season.

Earl Johnson, Boston lefthander, was the loser.

Before a coatless crowd of 16,832 the Nats staked Mickey Haefner to a 1-0 lead in the opening inning of a pitching battle with Earl Johnson, Red Sox southpaw.

The run stemmed from Eddie Yost's infield single on which he took an extra base when Bobby Doerr threw wild to first. Buddy Lewis' safe bunt moved Yost to third with none out and he scored when Tom McBride grounded into a Pesky-to-Doerr-to-Jones double play.

McBride Helps aHefner

Haefner escaped trouble in the first inning after Pesky doubled to left with one out. Both DiMaggio and Ted Williams flied to McBride, the left fielder going far back for Williams' long clout.

Boston's second double play took Johnson out of trouble in the fourth inning after he filled the bases with one out on walks to McBride, Vernon and Spence in succession. Priddy grounded into the twin killing started by Doerr.

The Nats went hitless for four straight innings against Johnson and the game rocked along at 1-0, going into the sixth, with Boston owning four hits off Haefner while the Nats were being held to two.

Fans DiMaggio, Williams

Haefner gave up a fifth hit to the Sox in the sixth when Pesky's single to center put the tying run on base with one out, but he bore down smartly to get out of trouble by fanning both DiMaggio and Williams for his sixth strikeout of the game.

The Nats were turned back hitless for the fifth straight inning when they didn't get to first base against Johnson in the sixth.

In a desperate effort to get the tying run, the Red Sox removed Johnson for a pinch-hitter in the eighth despite his hitless pitching since the first inning when he gave up Washington's only two blows.

Haefner, setting a new strikeout mark for himself this season, fanned Pinch-hitter Culberson to start the eighth and then struck out Mele for his eighth fanning victim of the game. He retired Pesky on a fly to Lewis.

Lions Get Dudley for $25,000; Send Steelers Four Players

Detroit, Aug. 6 (AP).—Honeymooning Bill Dudley, the National Football League's most valuable player last season, gave up plans to retire from the game and penned his name today to a contract with the Detroit Lions calling for an estimated $25,000.

The one-time All-American collegian, a Pittsburgh Steeler in 1946, flew into Detroit with his bride and not long afterward agreed to terms with Lions' Owner Fred L. Mandel, jr., who made a deal with the Pennsylvania Club involving five other players.

Transferring to a Detroit uniform along with Dudley will be End Jack Dugger, formerly of Ohio State. In exchange, the Detroit Club sent outright to Pittsburgh two players—Bobby Cifers and Paul White, both backs—and future rights to two others.

Detroit gave the Steelers the right to Michigan's Bob Chappuis, who is eligible for another collegiate season, and included also the right to Detroit's first draft choice next year in the National Football League.

"We're having to give Pittsburgh some mighty fine men," Mandel said, "but we're getting two of the greatest in Dudley and Dugger. You can't get players like that without giving something in return."

It was not disclosed whether Dudley had signed for more than one season.

Soon after the signing, Dudley and his bride of a week, the former Elizabeth Leininger of Lynchburg, Va., left for Charlottesville, Va., where he will wind up his affairs as an assistant University of Virginia coach. He said he hoped to return next week for the opening of training.

It was because of his lack of size (he is 5 feet 10 inches, 175 pounds) that Dudley told the Steelers at the close of last season he was retiring from the professional ranks because he had found the game "too rough."

In Cifers, formerly of Tennessee, Pittsburgh will have the services of the longest punter in the league, having averaged 45.6 yards last year. He also led Detroit in scoring with six touchdowns.

Chappius, if he enters the professional ranks, also will take with him the all-time Western Conference record for total offensive in a single season. He was chosen by the Lions in the 1946 draft but has another year at Michigan.

Jansen Spins 12th for Giants

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—Rookie Larry Jansen turned back the last place Philadelphia Phillies, 5-2, today to gain his twelfth victory against four defeats for the fence-busting New York Giants.

Jansen yielded eight hits and wasn't scored upon until the Giants had amassed all of their runs off starting and losing pitcher Charley Schanz who yielded six blows in four innings. Al Jurisich and Fred Schmidt held the Giants hitless the rest of the way.

The Phils, who presented the Giants two runs in the opening inning last night when Outfielders Buster Adams and Harry Walker committed errors, gave away three runs in the first today when Del Ennis muffed Bill Rigney's leadoff liner for a two-base error.

Rigney moved to third on Buddy Kerr's groundout and scored when Thomson singled to left. After Johnny Mize walked and Willard Marshall flied out, Walker Cooper doubled to left to plate Thomson and Mize.

The Giants picked up their remaining runs in the fourth on Sid Gordon's double, Jack Lohrke's triple and Rigney's fly out.

Wolff Wins for Bucs Over Cubs, 7-2

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP).—Roger Wolff, the knuckle-ball refugee from the American League, today escorted the Pirates to a 7-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs in the opening of a two-game series.

Wolff won his first National League victory by holding the Cubs to eight hits, three of which produced both Chicago runs in the first inning. Led by Jim Russell, the Pirates collected 11 blows off Pitchers Paul Erickson, Emil Kush and Doyle Lade.

The defeat was the third straight for the Cubs since they swept a three-game series from the league-leading Dodgers.

Houghton Conducts Golf Clinic Friday

Pro Al Houghton, for many years a booster for Washington high school and junior golfers, will conduct a golf clinic for young golfers between the ages of 12 and 20, 9:30 a. m., Friday, at Prince Georges Country Club.

An 18-hole event in four age groups will follow the lessons.

Special Movies Slated Tonight For Tennis School

Tonight is movie night for students of The Washington Post Tennis School.

At 7:30 o'clock in the Interior Department auditorium, 18th and C sts. nw., the boys and girls who have been attending Saturday morning classes at 22 playgrounds of the District Recreation Department, will assemble for a showing of film by, for, and about tennis players.

There will be scenes from the United States National championships and the Davis Cup matches. Don Budge illustrates the proper technique—in slow motion—of serving, smashing, volleying, timing and footwork, stance and strategy.

Bill Shreve, commissioner of the school, will address the group. "Pete" English and Clint Price of the Recreation Department, and Bus Ham, sports editor of The Washington Post also will be on hand.

Devitt Shades Fairfax

Devitt defeated Fairfax, 4-3, yesterday in a Summer School League game at Fairfax. Herbie Benson starred for the winners, fanning 12 on the hill and rapping out two doubles and knocking in two runs at the plate. Hoagland also hit six triples for Devitt.

Both Carry 126 Pounds In Rich Test

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP).—Assault and Armed, two of the outstanding campaigners of the American turf, will meet for the first time in their racing careers at Washington Park on August 30 in a $100,000 winner-take-all match race.

Each horse will carry 126 pounds over the mile and a quarter route in the richest match in history.

An agreement on the date between Warren Wright, owner of Calumet Farm's Armed, and Robert J. Kleberg of Texas, owner of Assault, was announced today by Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of the track.

Both Records Impressive

In the current season Assault has won five consecutive handicaps in the East and was defeated once—in the International Gold Cup at Belmont Park on July 19, when he finished third behind Stymie.

The speedster conceded from two to 15 pounds to the outstanding horses in the handicap division in the East as he copped the Suburban, Brooklyn, Butler, Dixie and Grey Lag handicaps.

Assault was voted "the horse of the year" last season as a 3-year-old. His victories included the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes and he has set a record of $424,195 for earnings in a single season.

Armed's record this year has been similarly impressive. In winning five stakes at Hialeah, Gulfstream and Arlington Park he broke three track records. He set a record for the $50,000 Stars and Stripes Handicap with a mark of 1:49 1/5 for the mile and an eighth.

Date Only Obstacle

"The delay in fixing the date of the match race," said Lindheimer, "was caused by the fact that Max Hirsch, trainer of Assault, needed time to decide when he would be able to bring his horse up to the peak of condition.

"Hirsch decided that he would require at least until August 20. On that date, however, the Whirlaway Stakes is scheduled. For sentimental reasons Warren Wright, owner of Armed, wished to run his horse in this stake, which is named in honor of the famous champion who carried Calumet Farm's colors to so many brilliant victories. August 30 was set as the date acceptable to both Wright and Kleberg."

Trainer Hirsch said at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., that he did not plan to race Assault in the Saratoga meeting but would save him for the match race. He said he would send Assault to Chicago by train about 8 or 10 days before the race.

O'Donnell's Arrest Ordered by Judge

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—Judge E. Paul Mason today ordered a bench warrant for the arrest of James S. O'Donnell of Washington, D. C., convicted on two counts in a "ringer" race horse case at Pimlico in November, 1945.

O'Donnell and Roland B. Sanner were sentenced to prison last October, and while awaiting a decision of the Court of Appeals on their motion for a new trial, they were released on ball. The new trial was denied and Sanner began an 18-month term yesterday.

Same Grimm Business At Same Old Stand

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP).—After a five-day layoff with a pulled leg muscle, Manager Charlie Grimm returned to the Chicago Cubs' third base coaching box today and promptly waved across two runs in the opening inning against Pittsburgh.

Grimm injured his leg August 1 while signalling across runners in the first of the Cubs' three games against Brooklyn.

Swede in Weight Lifts

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—Arvid Andersen of Sweden, defending bantamweight champion, has entered the world's weight-lifting championships at Philadelphia, September 25 and 26, Bob Hoffman, director of the meet, announced today.

'BB'-Yarosz Meet Aug. 18

Contracts yesterday were approved by the District Boxing Commission for a 10-round match at Griffith Stadium between Tommy Yarosz, Pittsburgh, and owner of a 35-match winning streak, and Bee Washington, Foggy Bottom Colored battler, for Monday night, August 18, Matchmaker Gabe Mendez announced.

The match will offer Washington a chance to avenge the defeat hung on him by Yarosz in Pittsburgh on February 4 when the local scrapper came in as an eleventh-hour substitute.

Currently rated as the number three lightheavyweight challenger by Ring Magazine for Gus Lesnevich's title, Tommy is the brother of Teddy Yarosz, former world's middleweight champion.

Washington hasn't fought since his torrid match at the Ball Park last May with Smuggy Hursey. Bee put up a strong battle against Yarosz in the Smoky City, and is confident of wining the return match.

Neff Ousted by Unseeded Gifford in M. A. Net Meet

7th Ranked Player Bows By 7-5, 6-3

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

A major upset featured yesterday's play in the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament at the Columbia Country Club when unseeded Bill Gifford defeated seventh-ranking Phil Neff, 7—5, 6—3.

Gifford's victory put him into the quarter-final round along with Dave Johnsen, who defeated Joe Tewes and Allie Ritzenberg who downed Alan McCarroll. Already in the quarterfinals were Jim Thackara, Barney Welsh, John Curtiss, Don Leavens and Col. N. Powell.

Outsteadying Neff was a major feat, and the decisiveness of Gifford's triumph came as a surprise. Gifford forced the paly all the way through, and made amazingly few errors.

Neff was unable to pass the husky Gifford when the latter rushed the net and Gifford seemed to be invulnerable as he managed to retrieve everything that Neff fired at him.

Joe Tewes, No. 1 Georgetown University player, extended third seeded Dave Johnsen throughout the first set, but Johnsen ran through the second set with little trouble to win, 8—6, 6—2.

Ritzenberg, playing steady tennis, had too many guns for McCarroll as he coasted to a 6—2, 6—2 margin. The former City of Washington champion hit the ball sharply and made few errors in winning as he pleased.

Willie Herbert and Charlotte Decker advanced to the quarter finals of the women's singles by virtue of straight set victories.

Willie defeated Elinor Saw, 6—4, 6—2, while Miss Decker defeated Helen Levy, 6—2, 6—1. Clara Barnett of Baltimore, downed Jane Freeman, 6—2, 6—1, to earn the right to play Ann Gray today.

MEN'S SINGLES

Redskins Find Three Rookies They Expect To Heal Many Ailments on Their Flanks

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 6.—Washington's Redskins quite easily could come up with the three top rookie ends of the National League this year.

"If we do," said Coach Turk Edwards today as the squad perspired through its third drill at Occidental College in preparation for the Times charity football game at Memorial Coliseum on the night of September 5, "we might surprise the heack out of some of our opponents who figured we were a little soft in the end spots last year."

In the order of advance billing, the newcomers are Joe Tereshinski, who was one of Georgia's shining stars in the Rose Bowl against U. C. L. A., here in 1943 and again in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day; Paul McKee, who was quite a pass-catching sensation in the East last year with Syracuse, and Hugh Taylor of Oklahoma City University.

Tereshinski was mentioned as an All-American on frequent occasion last year. He hails from Pensylvania, weighs 195 pounds and stands 6 feet 2 inches tall.

McKee comes highly recommended although he played on a team that didn't do much. Andy Kerr, then at Colgate, considered him the best end his team had faced. McKee also is from Pennsylvania. He weighed 200 pounds when Owenr George Preston Marshall signed him, but now has filled out to 216 pounds, which he can stand, since he is 6 feet, 3 inches tall.

Taylor is the surprise of the crowd. Te says he has run the hundred in 9.9 seconds and Edwards says if he is anywhere near as fast as that he will do, because he's shown great adeptness at snagging passes. Hugh comes from Arkansas, the birth place of a couple of other great catchers named Don Hutson and Jim Benton.

Speaking of last year's ends, they were coming along when the 1946 season ended. The best probably was Jim Peebles from Vanderbilt. John Kovatch, the former Notre Dame end also was late arriving in top form after three years in the Marines.

Edwards has such other flankmen as George Brodston, a newcomer from Creighton; Joe Duckworth, also a rookie from Colgate; John Lookabaugh from Maryland, who was with the club for a spell last fall; Doug Turley, who moved up from the Wilmington, Del., team, and, of course, big Ed Cifers.

Cifers will be carried as a tackle and this will be his offensive assignment. On defense, however, he will throw his weight around—235 pounds of it—as an end.

Today's drill delt largely with fake plays. To show you how fast the team has come along in three days, it was 10 days a year ago before the Redskin staff got around to this feature of the offffense.

Marines Win League Title

The Quantico Marines won the Potomac River Naval Command yesterday by defeating the Marine Barracks, 17-4, at Fairlawn. The victory, the Marines' forty-sixth of the season, also gave them a trip to Philadelphia to compete in the Naval Tournament starting Monday.

Bucky Loomis, getting his fourteenth win of the season, was aided by the timely hitting of his teammates. Bob Johnson, Quantico second baseman, collected five singles in six trips and his infield mate, Pete Peiritsch, third baseman, thumped out two singles and a two-run homer.

Mulloy Case in Hands Of USLTA Rules Body

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—Officials of the rules committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association met behind the closed doors of the Harvard Club tonight with tennis star Gardnar Mulloy, and although the meeting officially was part of a rules committee dinner, President Holcombe Ward of the USLTA has admitted that Mulloy was called to answer "some questions about his expense account."

Sandlotters Beat Plebes

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—The summer sandlot team of Mount St. Joseph College, Baltimore, collected three winning runs in the final inning today to hand a 7-6 defeat to the Navy Plebes.

Hoot Mon Wins Hambletonian

winner's pay check as Rodney chased them all the way to the wire.

For old Sep, it was a long comeback and a direct switch in colors in his Hambletonian career. For, just 12 years ago, the Hoosier horseman had piloted home the greatest one of them all, the one-and-only Greyhound, in this same trotting championship.

And today, taking a crack at his ninth Hambletonian, he did the same thing with a coal black lightning streak who got up off the floor from his first-heat defeat to come home the champ.

Two-Horse Contest

Aside from these two—Hoot Mon and Rodney—there was nothing else in the field of 13. Each time they practically left their closest rivals out of sight up the track.

In the first heat in which Rodney led from end to end to win by two lengths in 2:01 2/5—the third fastest Hambletonian mile ever trotted—Buckshot B from Martin Burke's stable in Troy, N. Y., chased them home.

And in the second and third dashes, Way Yonder, owned by Clarence Gaines of Lexington, Ky., and Sherburne, N. Y., was their nearest escort.

Forst Connecticut-bred ever to click in the trotters' title tussle, Hoot Mon was bought by Mr. and Mrs. Johnston from Charles Phellis of Greenwich last August for the 50-grand—among the top 15 high-priced purchases in trotting history.

And with his victory today, Hoot Mon made his sire, Scotland, the champion Hambletonian daddy of them all. For, he was the fourth winner of the Corn Tassell hustle sired by Scotland, following Rosalind in '36, Spencer Scott in '40 and the Ambassador five years ago.

Navy May Play USC on Grid

Los Angeles, Aug. 6 (AP).—Navy and the University of Southern California have "tentatively agreed" to a home-and-home schedule of two football games in 1950, a USC spokesman said today, but he declined to disclose whether the contracts have actually been signed.

The 1949 Pacific Coast Conference schedule, however, lists such a game at the Los Angeles Coliseum on September 24, 1949. It will be the Trojans' opener.

University of California this fall inaugurates a home-and-home arrangement with the Annapolis school with a season opener at Berkeley, September 27.

Navy Opens Sale Of Season Tickets

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Navy had its football ticket applications out a month early today and Capt. E. B. Taylor, director of Academy athletics, said requests already received indicate a series of sellout games.

The Naval Academy Athletic Association introduced a new wrinkle by offering "season" tickets for the Duke, Georgia Tech, and Penn State games in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium.

The invitation to buy included no offer of ducats for the Army-Navy classic in Philadelphia. The athletic association complained its block of tickets for that one isn't enough to fill requests by the Midshipmen brigade and dues-paying members of the association.

Nicknames Appear In Lincoln Letters

Navy Secretary Welles Was 'Neptune'; Stanton of War Dept. Known as 'Mars'

Abraham Lincoln and the late President Roosevelt shared a playful habit—nicknaming their friends.

This was revealed yesterday by Library of Congress officials describing furthe raspects of the recently opened Robert Todd Lincoln collection of his father's papers.

From the indorsements Lincoln wrote on the envelopes of incoming mail it appears that Secretary of the Navy Gideon Welles was nicknamed "Ichabod" or "Neptune; Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton, "Mars"; Francis Preston Blair, sr., "Father Blair," and Samuel S. Cox, "Sun-set Cox."

Mr. Roosevelt did much the same thing, calling Harold L. Ickes, "Harold the Ick," Leon Henderson "Lenny the Hen," Thomas Corcoran "Tommy the Cork," the late Harry Hopkins, "Harry the Hop" and Henry Morgenthau, jr., "Henry the Morgue."

Lincoln also experienced some of the difficulty other presidents have known in filling public offices.

Thus, on April 8, 1863, William Kellogg declined the post of consul at Valparaiso, Chile, writing in part: "Certainly the honor attached to the office ought to satisfy the ambition of the most aspiring, and the salary (which would but little if any more than defray the expenses of myself and family to and from the place of duty), is as much as a reasonable man should desire; yet I feel myself compelled to decline the appointment . . ."

On the envelope Lincoln wrote, "I understand my friend Kellogg is ill-natured—therefore I do not read his letter. A.L."

Water Supply Plan Offered Fairfax County

A new angle to the old question of how to provide Fairfax County with an adequate water supply was presented to the county supervisors yesterday by Burns N. Gibson, representative from the Falls Church district.

Gibson proposed that he resign his position on the board, form a company, and be granted a franchise to supply all Fairfax County with water. The board took no action, but agreed to call a special meeting to discuss the franc .e as soon as Gibson incorporates the company. He said that would take about 10 days.

Gibson explained that he made this proposal only because it did not appear that a bond issue would pass at this time, and that the county has no other means of financing such a large operation. He said he and some associates from Fairfax can start operations 60 days after the franchise is granted.

The plan contemplates buying water from Arlington County and distributing it to Fairfax. Such a procedure was authorized by Congress in June. Except for the incorporated towns of Falls Church, Fairfax and Herndon, which have water systems, county residents supply their own water, either from tanks or wells.

The board authorized the welfare department to make the "best obtainable contract" for hospitalization of indigent patients. Welfare Superintendent Miss T. Mary Beacham said the county's contract of $5 a day with Arlington Hospital expired July 1. She said the hospital has asked $9.75 a day and has declared it will have to reject Fairfax welfare cases unless its increased rates are met.

Bethesda Man Wins Italian Medal For UNRRA Work

Aldo L. Raffa of 5800 Garfield st., Bethesda, Md., former UNRRA Regional Director in northern Italy, has been decorated with the Knight's Cross of Merit, First Class, of the Sovereign Order of Malta.

He was cited for his conscientious efforts as administrator and "for his good works in alleviating the distress of the poro and needy," an Associated Press dispatch from Milan, Italy reported.

Raffa arrived in Italy with the Sicilian invasion in 1943 as an Allied Military Government officer and later organized UNRRA programs in Italy's northern industrial region. He held several Government posts in Washington before the war.

Publicity Head Named For Arlington Chest

Mrs. Paul Reider of 3243 S Utah st., Fairlington has been appointed publicity chairman of the forthcoming Arlington Community Chest campaign drive, Chairman Edmund D. Campbell announced yesterday.

Wife of an Air Transport Association attorney and mother of two young children, Mrs. Reiber has been a member of the board of trustees and the executive committee of the Community Chest for the past three years. She is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan and did postgraduate work at the Boston University School of Social Work.

Volunteers Building Tito's 147-Mile Youth Railway

By Daniel De Luce

Sarajevo, Yugoslavia (AP).—Working on the "youth railway" in Yugoslavia has become as much fun as a picnic and as spiritual as a prayer.

It is named "youth" because more than 200,000 youngsters, including some from 16 foreign lands, have toiled on it as unpaid volunteers in the past two years.

It runs through mountain fastnesses for 147 miles. When the last spike is driven next November, hitherto primitive Bosnia may desert ox-carts for the age of the iron horse.

The youth railway is formally described in official documents as "the pride of the new Tito's generation."

The youth railway evolved as a working crusade in the spring of 1946 after the Yugoslav government announced it lacked funds to build a line between the backward coal mining basins of eastern Bosnia. Approximately 600 million dinars (12 million dollars) would have been required for wages alone.

The central committee of the United Association of Anti-Fascist Youth proclaimed it could finish a 55-mile stretch in six months with free manpower. It got the job.

Sixty thousand members of the younger generation, including both sexes, were enrolled from farms.

3 Appointed to Zoning Board

The Montgomery County Commissioners have appointed two prominent Republicans and an independent Democrat to serve on the board of zoning appeals.

The action, filling the expired terms of three members, all prominent Democrats, was taken at a closed session of the board on Tuesday.

Named as chairman of the new board was Louis A. Gravelle, of Bethesda, at a salary of $900 annually for the part-time job. Other new board members are Paul M. Coughlan, of Silver Spring, and J. Vinson Peter, of Rockville, the latter an independent Democrat. Both Coughlan and Peter will receive $800 annually.

Former board members were chairman Samuel E. Stonebraker, of Chevy Chase, Oliver M. Walker, of Westmoreland Hills, and John K. Williams, of Silver Spring.

The board of zoning appeals sits periodically to grant or deny exceptions to the county's zoning laws.

WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

LEAVE: The number of days of accumulated annual leave Federal workers can carry over from one calendar year to another has been cut back from 90 to 60, the prewar limit.

Kluttz

The cutback was announced yesterday in a revision of its leave regulations by the Civil Service Commission. It made effective as of July 25, the day a bill became law that wiped out many temporary wartime laws.

However, the commission made it clear that employes who already have piled up more than 60 days will not lose all leave over that figure. The leave will continue to their credit, and it may be carried over from one year to the next until used. However, these employes can't continue to build up leave—they won't be able to carry over at the end of this year more leave than they had on July 25. They must either take leave as they earn it or else lose it on December 31.

Congress passed a temporary law to permit employes to accumulate up to 90 days of leave when vacations for Federal workers were limited during the war years. That law has now been wiped out.

But despite the law, many agencies recently have been urging their employes with more than 60 days of leave to take extended vacations.

WAR: A grievance committee has been set up in its transportation office to hear and dispose of employe cases. Members are: Lieut. Col. Thomas Palmerlee, chairman; Charles Rothouse, Ewing Buysse, and George Sorkin.

REST PERIODS: A memo dripping with sarcasm has been sent to each employe of War's Ordnance Bureau by Maj. Gen. E. S. Hughes, the chief. In it, the general says he wonders whether the pressure of work "approaches drudgery to the extent that without periods of respite at the beverage bars, productivity is seriously impaired."

The general says he'll give "every possible consideration" to the request of any employe who believes his work is so burdensome that he must relax and visit a beverage bar during working hours. The request must be made to the supervisor, who will send it up through channels to the general.

It shouldn't take more than a month or so to get an answer. Meantime, I suggest the general take time off for a course in human relations.

MARITIME: Three of its top officials are resigning. They are: Joseph Quinn, chief of finance, who will become treasurer of the United States Lines; George Talmadge, chief of coast shipping, and John Drewry, assistant to Commissioner McKeough.

Meantime, the lay-offs at Maritime continue. The 2200-man staff here as of June 30 is being reduced to less than 1200 as of August 15. Up to August 1, 632 career employes had been fired, and the number is growing daily. The lay-off is so sweeping that no furloughed non-veteran career employe who has fewer than 15 years of Government service has a chance to be recalled to his job or a lower-grade job.

PEOPLE: Earl E. Eisenhart has resigned as purchasing officer of the Interior Department to take a similar position with the International Monetary Fund He has been with Interior for 42 years . . . Matthew Robinson, former vice president of the Atlas Corporation, is to be chairman of War Assets' advisory council . . . Dr. Ernest M. Fisher, professor of urban land economics at Columbia, will join the legislative reference service at the Library of Congress . . . Ralph Burton, an old-time Capitol Hill investigator, has joined the staff of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

END: The so-called Byrd Economy Committee is going out of business. The Congress failed to give it funds to continue its work.

The committee is the only one in the GOP-controlled Congress whose chairman was a Democrat, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. It was supposed to have been abolished by the Congressional Reorganization Act. Presumably, its work will be taken over by Senator Aiken's Committee on Executive Expenditures.

One-Legged Man Fined for Using Auto as Weapon

Ferndale, Md., Aug 6 (AP).—Henry A. Donnelly paid a $100 fine before a magistrate today after Herbert Moller charged that Donnelly twice tried to run him down with an automobile.

Magistrate David B. Dunker imposed the fine, with the comment that because Donnelly has an artificial leg he was not ordering a sentence in the house of correction.

Moller, a resident of Laurel, said Donnelly first "aimed" the car at him on the Fort Meade road and Moller leaped behind a post.

The estimony added that Donnelly made a U-turn and again tried to strike Moller, the car this time hitting a post.

Donnelly denied the attempted assault charge, contending that Moller and a companion, armed with tire iron, ran after his car.

Seven in Va. Assembly Fail of Renomination

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—A veteran member of the State Senate and six incumbents in the House of Delegates failed to win renomination in Tuesday's Democratic primary on the basis of virtually complete unofficial returns, which showed today the defeat also of at least 10 county sheriffs and four Commonwealth's attorneys.

Senator E. R. Fuller of Richmond, 78-year-old legislator who has served in the upper branch of the General Assembly since 1928 after service also in the House, ran fourth in a field of six candidates for nomination for Richmond's three seats in the Senate.

Delegate Willis E. Cohoon, Nansemond-Suffolk House veteran, was defeated by Mills E. Godwin; E. Griffith Dodson, jr., son of the Clerk of the House, and Julian H. Rutherford won nomination for Roanoke's two seats, with incumbent James A. Bear losing out; Delegate Grover C. Outland, formerly identified with the dominant Democratic "organization" ni Virginia, was defeated in Norfolk where an "organization" ticket made a clean sweep; Delegate M. Hill Abernathy lost to J. W. Bland in Brunswick, Delegate Furman Whitescarver was defeated by Ernest Robertson and Delegate E. T. Ferguson of Bedford fell before Duval Radford.

Particularly close margins marked two of the House contests and brought promise of a demand for a recount in at least one of these. Robert J. McCandlish, who turns for the House nomination lost by two votes in unofficial re- in Fairfax, announced today that he will ask for a recount.

Only six votes separated E. C. Bedinger and C. W. Cleaton in the Mecklenburg House contest, confirmed today that complete re- N. G. Nutcheson, county clerk, turns gave Bedinger 1941 votes and Cleaton 1947.

Stanley S. Garner, member of the House, was defeated in his senatorial bid in the 33d district (Newport News, Hampton, Elizabeth City and Warwick) where Senator L. U. Noland won by 5461 to 5067. Garner charged in a statement the election was "crooked" and declared he expected to "prove it before a grand jury investigation."

Earl A. Fitzpatrick, former member of the House, won a bitterly contested senatorial race at Roanoke, defeating Walter H. Scsott, 4854 to 3104, and in the Staunton-Augusta-Highland senatorial race Curry Carter won over W. F. Young, 2455 to 2402 on the basis of complete unofficial returns.

Two Negro candidates for the General Assembly were defeated.

Incumbent sheriffs fell heavily at the polls, with newcomers winning the nominations in Accomack, Augusta, Bedford, Buchanan, Buckingham, Fairfax, Franklin, Nottoway, Patrick and Roanoke counties.

In the Franklin County contest for a Commonwealth's Attorney, Virgil H. Goode, former member of the House, won the nomination over W. B. Hutcherson, jr., and in Pittsylvania, the incumbent, Joseph Whitehead, jr., lost the nomination to Carrington Thompson.

Strength of Old Guard Vote In Arlington Causes Surprise

Epp aKirby, county sheriff for the past 20 years, was beaten in the primary voting.

Kirby lost to John E. Taylor, Falls Church real estate dealer and World War II veteran, by a vote of 3957 to 1688. A third candidate, Farmer L. Stubbs, received 140 votes.

With the primary over, and the party pledged now to harmony for the November elections, the political emphasis is on the coming battle between the Democrats and Republicans in the area.

The Republicans this year are mapping strategy for a hard-hitting campaign in Arlington County in the hope of gaining two, and possibly more, offices in the county government.

They meet tomorrow night in convention to select their candidates. In their efforts to break one-party control in the State, the Republicans are coining such watchwords as: "Don't vote the Democratic ticket just because your grandfather did!"

How successful will be their attempt can be more accurately judged in the ensuing weeks of the campaign.

Meanwhile, local interest in candidates for two posts on the Arlington County Board and five posts on the first elected school board in the county is mounting rapidly.

Full slates for both these positions are expected to be offered within the near future by non-partisan groups in the county.

Middle West Heat Wave Fatal to 49

Mercury Hits 106, Relief in Sight; D. C. High Only 87, Clouds Due Today

Insulated by the Appalachians, Washington enjoyed summer weather yesterday while a four-day heat wave seared the Midwest, leaving 49 persons dead in temperatures up to 106 degrees.

Washington's high for the day was 97 degrees at 5:02 p. m., and the Weather Bureau predicted under-90 readings and some cloudiness for today.

Relief for the parched middle areas of the Nation—from the Rockies to the Appalachians,—was seen last night as a cooling finger of air from Canada moved into the Great Plains. Scattered showers for thirsty corn belt States accompanied the cooling air, but considerable damage already has been done, the Associated Press reported last night.

Chicago, minus its usual cooling breezes from Lake Michigan, counted 23 deaths from heat prostration during the city's worst heat wave in 36 years. Other heat deaths, not including scattered drownings, were: St. Louis, 11; Wisconsin, four; Iowa, Alabama and Arkansas, three each; Ohio, two; Indiana, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, one each.

Advance, Mo., with 160 degrees, was one of the hottest places in the country yesterday. Chicago had 100 degrees for the third consecutive day; Effingham, Ill., 102; Pellston, Mich., 102; St. Louis, Columbia, Mo., Memphis, Tenn., 101 degrees.

In sharp contrast—and behind the cool front—Duluth, Minn., reported 82 degrees.

Most of Texas and Oklanoma continued to swelter, but clouds gave Kansas City some relief from 100-degree readings.

The cooling air moving down from Canada was heading east and slightly south, but it is not expected to extend much below central Illinois, west-central Indiana and central Michigan.

High altitude winds from the East will keep it away from the Greater Washington area, nearby Virginia Virginia and Maryland.

The Weather Bureau saw possibility of scattered showers along the Maryland shore. Light rain fell early last night in the Chincoteague area.

Md. Sales Tax Rules Outlined In New Booklet

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—Copies of a 52-page book of rules and regulations on the Maryland retail sales tax are being distributed to manufacturers, retailers and hotels throughout the State, Comptroller James J. Lacy announced today.

The booklets cover 72 regulations of the tax "code," published after studies made by Walter E. Kennedy, chief of the division.

Distribution was held up until all the problems involved had been ironed out, Kennedy said.

Copies also are going to public utilities, service industries, casualty and finance companies, contractors, wholesalers, banks, accountants and a score of chamber of commerce bodies in Maryland.

Record Tangier Crowd Expected

Tangier, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—The biggest crowd in the history of the Tangier Island homecoming is expected for this year's event which gets under way here tomorrow at 2 p. m., Homer G. Williams, chairman of the committee in charge, said today.

Several thousand will descend upon this tiny island, 12 miles from the mainland in Chesapeake Bay, and many hundreds have already arrived.

The three-day celebration will be an almost continuous round of games, stunts, shows and song fests during daylight hours. Virginia's Governor William Tuck will be among the visiting dignitaries.

8 Montgomery Schools Plan Driver Course

Instruction Will Be Provided for 1400 Students in County

Courses in automobile driving will be made available to all of Montgomery County's 1400 high school students this fall for the first time.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the D. C. Division of the American Automobile Association and a member of the Montgomery Safety Board, said seven automobiles will be made available for the eight senior high schools.

Each school will have a dual control car assigned to it with the exception of Poolesville and Damascus High Schools, which will share a car.

Cleveland said the program would place the county "out in the lead in the field of driver education among school systems in the Washington area."

The official said Prince Georges County has three cars and classroom instruction in 10 high schools. Arlington County, with one high school has one driver training car and Fairfax is expected to establish the courses in its six high schools.

"In the District of Columbia there are but two driver training cars," he said, "and classroom instruction is conducted only in the vocational high schools."

4-Hs Advised To Develop Own Abilities

The need for great men and women is still acute, but it's not necessary to copy someone else to become great, President H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland told the twenty-fifth annual 4-H Club Week delegates yesterday.

Each should build on his own ability and personality, President Byrd said.

Rita Bittle, of Allegany County, responded to Dr. Byrd's welcome speech in the name of the 1022 delegates, pointing out that State Club Week provides experience in leadership.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Extension Service, University of Maryland, observed that the 4-H members are youthful leaders of today in their home communities as well as potential leaders of tomorrow's adult world. He stressed the need for "good followers" as well as leaders.

Mrs. Polly Hanst, who led the discussion group for older boys and girls on "Our Home a Kindly, Happy Place," told the group that when they become parents they should retain a lively memory of their own faults and difficulties when young. She stressed need for a sense of humor and for sharing of joys, money, time, thoughts, friends, sorrows and sacrifices in making the home a happy one.

Awards will be announced today in the exhibit of 4-H handiwork which opened yesterday.

Attending the week's activities are:

MONTGOMERY COUNTY:

31 Desk Men Are Moved to Police Beats

Barrett Says Shifts Are to Put Emphasis On Public Protection

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett last night announced that 31 desk policemen have been transferred to beat-pounding detail since he took over as department head, July 1.

It's all part of his policy, he said, to modernize the department and get as much manpower as possible into 'citizens' protection work.

In many cases, he said, the desk men were relieved for street detail simply by having one desk man do the former work of two. Six of the 31, he said, were on duty at District Jail where improved security measures ended their need there.

Most of the 31, Barrett said, had previously been doing desk work at Police Headquarters, in air-cooled surroundings within the New Municipal Building, 3rd st and Indiana ave. nw.

Major Barrett began the moves without public fanfare. He had promised the House District Appropriations subcommittee shortly after taking office that he would study personnel problems with an eye to "getting the most policemen out on the streets where they can do the public the most good."

On July 22, he announced shifting of 10 men, and said at that time that at least 10 more would be reassigned from desk work to covering beats.

Lane to Call Legislative Session to Aid Baltimore

Governor Heeds D'Alesandro's Plea To Consider City's

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Governor Lane promised Baltimore city officials today that a special General Assembly session would be held to deal with the municipality's fiscal problems, but did not mention any date for the meeting.

At the same conference, attended by State and city officials, Robert M. Reindollar, chairman of the State Roads Commission, told the Baltimoreans that if they did not settle upon an expressway project, they would lose $4,460,000 in Federal road funds.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, jr., of Baltimore, asked the Governor to call the special session to grant taxing powers to raise $12,282,049.

The sum represented the difference between the proposed $87,769,344 budget and expected revenues.

In the roads portion of the conference, Reindollar told the city officials that both Cumberland and Hagerstown had approached the State Roads Commission for a part of the urban fund appropriated by the Federal Government.

Role of Baltimore

"If Baltimore does not provide a satisfactory plan for an expressway, we are going to deal with them rather than lose the money to the State.

"Of course," he said, "Baltimore being the largest center of population, it has been our desire to see that it gets the largest share of the fund."

Last year, the city council rejected an expressway project after a storm of protest arose over its location.

The city has at present 10 million dollars in roads matching funds available and could use the Federal funds if a plan were worked out.

Mayor D'Alesandro told Reindollar and the Governor, who was also concerned with the possible loss of Federal funds, that he would summon an unofficial meeting of the city council in the hope of expediting a plan before the next regular session September 22.

The mayor and Budget Director Herbert Fallin set forth the city's financial problems at the meeting.

Baltimore 'Appreciative'

D'Alesandro said the city was "very appreciative" of the Governor's and General Assembly's assistance, but faced the prospect of the loss of its special taxing power which ends this year. This power was used to raise $3,300,000 for the city this year.

The mayor said, "The city's miscellaneous revenue outlook for 1948 indicates there will be an increase of $7,602,900 from sources other than those derived by virtue of the special taxing power. This increase reflects the added aid the city will derive from the State.

"The loss of revenue sustained by the city as a result of the termination of the special taxing power will reduce this to $4,302,900."

He declared that if the city held to its proposed budget—which is to be further trimmed—it would need to raise the real and tangible personal property taxes from $2.96 to $3.85 per $100.

Governor Lane said he was studying the problem of new taxing patterns. "The question is, whether we are to collect and distribute money or grant new taxing powers to the municipalities.'"

Expert Says Md. Unused Woodland Is Top Farm Land

Solomons, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Edward M. Davis, State conservationist, said today that some of the best potential farm land in Maryland is going to waste as woodland, and farmers are putting their energies into soil that should long ago have bee nturned into pasture.

Davis spoke during the week-long summer session of vocational agricultural teachers, which opened at the Chesapeake Biological Laboratories Monday.

He said the Federal Soil Conservation is currently conducting surveys, for the first time in American history, to classify land according to its capabilities.

Davis pointed out that 515,000 acres of woodland in Maryland are actually among the most suitable land for crop cultivation. Correspondingly, 251,000 acres of actively cultivated farm land is fit for nothing but woodland or pasture. This misuse of land results in a lower income for Maryland farmers, he added.

Tenor Sax Startles Arlington Officials

You can hear a lot of things in the Arlington County Courthouse, but one of them usually isn't "You Are My Sunshine," piped out on a tenor saxophone.

Not until yesterday afternoon, anyhow, when the ordinarily sedate corridors of the county building rang out first with "Sunshine," then "That's My Desire," and the county government's eyebrows went up several notches.

Rumor at first was that somebody was paying off an election bet. Intrepid reporters traced the warbles to their source, however, and found:

Three telephone men, one musically minded, working over the basement connections. In order to reach same, they had gone through the Police Department's locker for unclaimed stolen property, wherein was the sax.

The musical Bell man explained the sax needed a lot of work done on it, but he wished he could find out who owned it, because it tunes up like a good instrument.

Most of the courthouse wished he'd tune it up somewhere else. Now it's back in the locker. No more sunshine in Arlington.

9 Births in Day

Bluefield, W. Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—What was believed by harried doctors and nurses to be a local hospital record was set here yesterday when nine consecutive baby boys were born at Bluefield sanitarium between 9:36 a. m. and 8:45 p. m. All nine were first children.

The parade began with a son for Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Henigar of North Tazewell, Va. Not until one was born to Mrs. Harry Tinsley of Narrows, Va., 11 hours and 9 minutes later did the stork quit piling up overtime.

Lions Install Officers

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 6.—David A. Harkness was installed as president of the Calvert County Lions Club today. Other officers are first vice president, Francis Beavens; second vice president, J. Austin Bowen; third vice president, O. Frank Bowen; secretary, Malcolm E. Rockhill; treasurer, Ray Shipley.

Blight Hits Tomatoes

Winchester, Va., Aug. 6.—Late tomato blight, which took a heavy toll of the tomato crop in Virginia last year, has made an appearance in Frederick and Clarke Counties, growers reported today.

C. C. Lewis of Boyce, who planted tomatoes in his peach and cherry orchard after the freeze killed off his prospects of a fruit crop this year, said the blight appeared during the recent cool, rainy weather, but so far was being controlled by spraying.

Mrs. C. A. Gibson and Mrs. T. A. Stone, who live at Nain, near here, reported blight was seen in patches in that community. County Agent I. Fred Stine has issued a warning to all growers, advising spraying or dusting of plants with copper for protection.

Drainage Bids Opened

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Harford Construction Co. of Bel Air was the low bidder, at $6,298, for the jacking method of installing a drainage pipe under the Pulaski Highway, U. S. Route 40.

Low bidder for the open trench method of installation was Thomas, Bennett and Hunter of Westminster. The firm asked $5,905.

The commission has not yet determined which method will be used.

Plants to Open Soon

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 6.—Two new manufacturing plants, now under construction, are expected to begin operations here shortly. Both are located a short distance south of the city on Route 2.

One is the General Products Co., which will produce electric water heaters, and the other is the Francleton Cinder Block Co. The combined capital for the two is approximately $200,000. Henry S. McKann is president of General Products, and Robert L. Francklеton heads the cinder block firm.

Cooperative to Meet

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug 6.—About 500 farmers and their families are expected to attend the annual meeting of the three agencies of the Southern States Cooperative in Spotsylvania County in the Partlow Ruritan Clug House on Aug. 15, beginning with a field meet at 4 p. m.

A business session, marked by the election of new members of the advisory board and farm home advisory committee, and delivery of yearly reports, will open at 8 p. m. A feed bag style show will be held for farm women and girls and numerous games and contests are carded for men.

Vaccination Required

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—Every child planning to enter school in Maryland must show evidence of successful vaccination against smallpox, Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, reminded today.

He added that immunization against diphtheria is also advisable.

New Pollution Reported

Winchester, Va., Aug. 6.—The Izaak Walton League of Winchester and Clarke County, continuing a study of Shenandoar River pollution, reported today that results of July tests show that conditions have improved below the American Visco plant at Front Royal, but that "a considerable deterioration" has occurred below the Merck & Co. plant at Elkton.

Reports are being forwarded to the newly formed Virginia Water Control Board, to the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries and to the interested industries and municipalities, it was stated.

Hand-to-Mouth Pay

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—A Baltimore manufacturer contends that if his 60 workers are due overtime pay for punching a time clock and changing clothes, then the firm should be credited with moments they spend talking, smoking and eating candy bars on company time.

In an answer filed yesterday to a portal-to-portal pay suit in Federal court, B. H. Hubbard and Son, Inc., stainless steel firm, said the court should consider employes' activities that are "solely for their own benefit" during working hours.

The suit by Local 3906 of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) asks $17,050 for overtime pay under the Fair Labor Standards Act for time spent standing in line waiting to punch a time clock.

Tiny Baby May Survivve

Madson, W. Va., Aug. 6 (AP)—One-month-old "Inky," the incubator baby born four months prematurely, today was given every chance for survival, although she weighed only one pound, 11 ounces at birth.

Dr. David Hill, director of the Madison General Hospital, said the survival of an infant born so early is rare, but that the blue-eyed daughter of Mrs. Ray Jarrell had already gained five ounces and should develop normally.

"Inky"—the infant's only name so far—was delivered by caesarian section July 3 to Mrs. Jarrell, wife of a coal miner from Uneeda, W. Va.

Extradition Arranged

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Extradition papers for Morris Cramer, formerly of New York City, wanted by Frederick County authorities on a bigamy charge, were en route to Los Angeles, Calif., today. The papers were signed by Governor Lane and sent to Governor Earl Warren of California.

Mrs. Yetta Cramer of New York is under $1,000 bond to appear at Frederick as a prosecuting witness against Cramer, who is charged with having married her while legally wed to another woman.

The request for Cramer's extradition was submitted by State's Attorney Edwin F. Nikirk of Frederick County.

Corn Canning Begins

Frederick, Md., Aug. 6.—Initial operations in canning of Frederick County's sugar corn crop got under way today when several tons were processed at the Colt & Dixon Packing Co. plant here. Other local canneries are not expected to start until next week.

More damage than in any previous year has been done to the crop this summer by the Japanese beetle, canners said. It is still too early, however, to determine how seriously the crop as a whole has been hit.

Post Elects Officers

Leonardtown, Md., Aug. 6.—Ray Shipley has been elected commander of the Calvert Post, No. 85, American Legion. Other officers are: Vice commander, G. Leland Gott; adjutant, Thomas V. Warthen; sergeant at arms, Paul Moffat, and chaplain, the Rev. H. O. Halbert. The next meeting will be held August 21 in the Huntingtown Hall.

Fisheries Tour Slated

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—The Tidewater Fisheries Commission will be host to tidewater newspapermen aboard the State yacht Potomac Friday and Saturday on an inspection tour of the Chesapeake Bay.

The group will leave Annapolis Friday aboard the State boat and see pound net fisheries in operation, crabbing boats—potters and trout lines—at work, visit several bay oyster bars and the Tilghman Island Packing Co. plant, owned by Commissioner George T. Harrison, and stop Friday night at the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory at Solomons.

At Solomons, the group will visit the laboratory and return to the State Capital Saturday evening.

Peeper Jailed

Winchester, Va., Aug. 6.—Carl C. Bates, 34, of this city, was sent to jail to serve 40 days of a 90-day sentence for "window peeping." Bates said he was loitering on the street "trying to catch his girl friend with another fellow" but three witnesses testified otherwise.

One stated that she saw him stand upon tiptoes to look in one window and stoop down to peep under the blind at another window.

Professor Resigns

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 6.—Dr. J. B. Kincannon, professor of English at Mary Washington College, has resigned to join the faculty of Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Berkeley, Calif. Dr. Kincannon was formerly professor of Bible at Virginia Intermont College, Bristol, Va.

Driver Falls Dead, Truck Hits Bridge

A 27-year-old Winchester, Va., truck driver died of a heart attack in his moving truck as it approached a Montgomery County, Md., bridge early yesterday.

The driver, Julian Randolph Wisecarver, was found 15 feet from the truck after it had crashed into a corner of the bridge between Wheaton and Four Corners. Deputy Coroner DeWitt E. DeLawter issued a certificate of death due to natural causes.

Two men riding with Wisecarver on the loaded brick truck, Walter Wisecarver, his brother, and Beverly E. Russell, both of Winchester, were uninjured.

In the Washington area, at least two persons were hospitalized as a result of traffic accidents. One of them was injured in a motorcycle crash.

Bernard Christiansen, 18-year-old sailor of the Naval Air Station, suffered injuries to his right leg when his motorcycle swerved to avoid one car, skidded and crashed into another at Massachusetts ave. and L st. nw. about 2 a. m. He was taken to the air station dispensary.

Edwin A. Roper, 46, of 2021 Rosemont ave. nw., suffered several fractured ribs when his car was in a collision with another driven by William J. Nicholas, 41, of 2019 Glen Ross rd., Silver Spring, Md. Roper was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Charles Martin, 16, of 3902 Jefferson st., Hyattsville, Md., remained in a critical condition at Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, Md., yesterday, after a scooter accident Tuesday. He suffered a fractured skull when his scooter collided with a delivery truck at 38th and Hamilton sts. in Hyattsville.

Pan-Maryland Airways Seek To Extend Service

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—Pan-Maryland Airways today asked the Public Service Commission for a new extension of franchises it holds for service to 13 Maryland communities and said delay in opening new fields had prevented it from getting into operation.

G. Bernard Fenwick, jr., president of the line, asked that the extension be based on completion of facilities, rather than a time limitation.

Nobody Hurt

Chevy Chase Is Upset by Plane Crash

Mrs. Anne Ackerman, 5300 26th st. nw., was sitting at the window of her home at about 3 p. m. yesterday when she saw an airplane whip past, its motor roaring. It passed out of sight and then she heard the crash.

She heard neighbors outside shouting that a plane had crashed.

While the mother ran outside, her daughter, Natalie, 11, called her father at work and reported the plane crash. The father, Sol Ackerman, called fire alarm headquarters.

Engine Company No. 31, Truck Company No. 12, Rescue Squad No. 2, Ambulance No. 2 and a battalion chief raced to the scene. So did two police scout cars. And so did Fire Chief Clement Murphy who was nearby when the alarm was sounded.

They found the plane had crashed high in a tree. It was an engine-powered model plane with a wingspread of four and a half feet. It was being flown by its owner, Marion G. Davis, 22, 413 High st., Chevy Chase, Md., a former Air Forces bombardier.

Diet Deficiencies Hurt Teeth Little, Indian Reports

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP).—Dr. S. L. Shourie of Punjab, India, said today that dental research in India had shown that deficiencies of calcium and vitamins B, C and D in diets apparently have little effect on tooth decay.

Forty perecent of the Indian people are without cavities, he said in an interview, as contrasted with figures ranging from 1 to 20 per cent in the United States and 2 to 14 per cent in the United Kingdom.

The data suggests, he added, "that the peculiar habit in India of betel chewing is associated with a high resistance to dental caries."

Adventists Plan Church

Waynesboro, Va., Aug. 6.—Plans are being prepared for the erection of a stone church by the local Seventh Day Adventist congregation, the Rev. B. F. Woods, pastor, said. The structure will cost between $50,000 and $60,000 and will provide facilities for a school to be operated in connection with the church.

V. O. French, Dairy Head, Dies at Laurel

Verrick Orville French, 47, general manager of High Ice Cream Co. and Highland Farms Dairy of Washington, died early yesterday at his home near Laurel, Md., after a long illness.

A native of Villisca, Iowa, he received a B.S. degree in architectural engineering from Iowa State College in 1924. He did engineering work for a manufacturer's agent in Charlotte, N. C., joined the staff of the Pet Milk Co. in Greensboro, N. C., and in 1933 became manager of the Pet plant in Jackson, Miss.

He had been manager of the High and Highland firms here since he came to Washington in 1942. He was a member of the Lions Club of Laurel, Md.

Before his death he requested friends give a donation to cancer research instead of sending flowers.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Grey Robinson French; one son, Verrick, jr.; two daughters, Carol and Sarah French, and two sisters, Mrs. Perry Davis and Mrs. Edgar Kemper of Muscatine, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at the Laurel Presbyterian Church tomorrow at 10:30 a. m., with the Rev. Dr. Joseph Cudlipp officiating. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Sister M. Thomas Aquinas

Requiem mass for Sister M. Thomas Aquinas, O.P., 54, editor, author and associate of the Commission on American Citizenship at Catholic University, who died Tuesday at Providence Hospital following a short illness, will be said today at 10 a. m. in the chapel of the Dominican House of Studies, 487 Michigan ave. ne.

Burial will be on Saturday at the mother house of the Dominican Sisters, Mount St. Mary's at Newburgh-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., just a few miles from her birthplace.

Sister Thomas Aquinas was author and coeditor of the Faith and Freedom readers used in parochial schools to teach children Catholic principles of living.

She also assisted in the writing of the curriculum, "Guiding Growth in Christian Social Living," which has been recently published by the Commission on American Citizenship.

Sister Thomas Aquinas had spent the past seven years working on the commission. Prior to that she taught at Mount St. Mary's at Newburgh, and the Thomas Edward Shields Memorial School, later the Campus School, at Catholic University.

She is survived by a sister, Miss Margaret McManus of Richmond, and a brother, Peter J. McManus of Newburgh.

Lynn Magruder Campbell

Lynn Magruder Campbell, 78, head Pullman Co. ticket agent at Union Station in Washington for 20 years, died Tuesday night at his home in Norbeck, Md., after a long illness.

Born in Cumberland, Md., Mr. Campbell resided in Montgomery County most of his life, mainly in the Redland region. He was a graduate of the Andrew Small Academy at Darnestown, which was conducted by his uncle, the Rev. Newton Campbell, and the Fishburne Military Academy at Staunton, Va.

A veteran of the Spanish-American War, Mr. Campbell joined the War Department staff during World War I as an accountant, after leaving his railroad position.

His only surviving relative is his wife, Mrs. Laura Clark Campbell.

Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. Burial will be in the St. Mark's Episcopal Cemetery at Highland, Md.

Georgia-Florida Tobacco Prices Vary at Markets

Valdosta, Ga., Aug. 6 (AP).—Prices on Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets were slightly irregular today.

The United States Department of Agriculture reported changes up to $4.75 per hundred when compared with Tuesday. Largest variations affected common and low leaf and nondescript. Averages on other grades of leaf and lugs fluctuated round $1 and $2. While cutters held steady to $2 higher, there were more losses than gains.

General quality was slightly lower today than Tuesday. More baskets were graded in common and low qualities and nondescript. Low to good leaf, low and fair cutters, and fair to fine lugs made up bulk of sales.

D. C. Army Man Killed in Japan

Staunton, Va., Aug. 6.—Staff Sergt. Melvin C. Campbell, 22-year-old Navy veteran of World War II, died August 1 in Osaka, Japan, of injuries sustained when a light truck he was driving overturned.

Discharged from the Navy after three years of service, including 22 months in the Pacific, Sergeant Campbell joined the Army last January and was sent to Japan in April as a Diesel engine mechanic in the Army Air Communications Service.

When the War Department telegram announcing his death arrived, his wife, Mrs. Carrie Taylor Campbell, of 731 Burwell ave., was preparing to join him in Japan.

Death Ends Harriet Elliott's Long Career in Public Life

MISS HARRIET ELLIOTT
Dies after long illness

Harriet Elliott, veteran dean of women at the University of North Carolina's Women's College and a leader in public service activities, died yesterday in Carbondale, Ill.

Miss Elliott, 63, who was named as the only woman member of the Advisory Commission of the National Defense Council just prior to the outbreak of World War II, had been living with a sister in Carbondale since she suffered a cerebral hemorrhage several months ago, the Associated Press reported.

As director of the women's division of the United States Treasury Department's war bond program, she traveled extensively during the war, promoting bond sales.

Served in U. N. Post

She served as a member of an advisory committee on setting up a women's auxiliary to the Navy, and was a member of the OPA Consumer Commission. She also was a member of the American delegation to the London conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization after the war.

Following the London conference she returned to the North Carolina college where she had taught history and political science since 1913 and been dean of women since 1935.

Miss Elliott was active in Democratic Party affairs, and at various times had served as a delegate at large from North Carolina to the Democratic National Convention and as director of the educational program of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Charles W. Tillett of Charlotte, N. C., vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who studied under Miss Elliott, said of her last night in Washington:

"Dean Elliott has served her country well for many years. She made an unforgettable contribution to the cause of good government. Women everywhere in the Nation will mourn her."

Funeral Set for Today

From 1937 to 1943 she was chairman of the national legislative committee, American Association of University Women.

She was educated at Hanover College, Indiana, where she received a bachelor's degree in 1910 and a doctor of laws degree in 1941, and Columbia University, where she received a master's degree in 1913.

Miss Elliott was a native of Carbondale, and her only immediate survivor is a sister, Mrs. Alma Pearce, of that city.

Funeral services will be held there today.

Everett W. Jacocks

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—Everett W. Jacocks, imperial recorder of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of North America, died at a local hospital today.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Officers and members of the local and national branches of the American Association of University Women rolled out the red carpet yesterday to welcome 23 European delegates to the International Federation of University Women's Conference slated for August 11-16 in Toronto, Canada. Getting acquainted are Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm, president of the Washington branch; Dr. Helen Dwight Reid, AAUW's national associate in international relations; Mlle. Sylvie Charrot of Paris, chairman of the delegation and Miss Ursula Vincent of Belgium

Our Optimism Amazes Women From Europe

By Genevieve Reynolds

Twenty-three footsore but smiling delegates from 12 European countries and the Philippines arrived in town yesterday to be guests of the Washington Branch, American Association of University Women, for a five-day sightseeing and get-acquainted tour. They are a group of women enroute to the International Federation of University Women's Conference being held in Toronto, Canada, August 11-16.

The delegates already have visited Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

While registering at the AAUW Club house at 1627 Eye st. nw. this reporter cornered a few to find out their impressions of this country.

Movies Not True

Mlle. Sylvie Charrot, a Parisian school teacher and lecturer who acts as spokesman for the delegation, says that all the delegates remark, "Why don't the motion pictures give us more films of real America, instead of the Hollywood crime, sex and skyscraper versions."

She went on to point out that Hollywood movies reaching Europe fail to depict real, everyday American life and country.

Miss Ursula Vincent, who teaches modern languages in a secondary school in Brussels, Belgium, is impressed by the freedom of movement and speech in the United States. "We in occupied countries were so watched and censored during the war and occupation," she explains, "that we forgot how to talk freely and to move at will."

Swedish-born Mrs. Stina Siberg, a psychiatric social worker in London for the past eight years who is on her first visit to this part of the world, first was impressed by New York's skyline and overwhelmed by the abundance of food, clothing and other materials.

Countryside Amazes

The quiet, beautiful New England and New Jersey countrysides amaze Miss Tine Quist of Leiden, Holland. She had expected to find cities and skyscrapers everywhere. "Americans seem much more optimistic than the Dutch," she observes.

A pharmacist, the attractive brown-eyed Hollander is a little surprised not to find American women in her same profession.

To Visit Class

Miss Marguerite Steiger of Zurich, Switzerland, declares that she is awed by the unexpected immensity of the United States.

While in town the delegates will be guests in the homes of individ-

Canivet of France and Mrs. Sidney Evans, chairman of hostesses for the Washington branch, American Association of University women. Occasion was the local group's tea honoring the visiting European scholars and teachers

Newspaper Women Honor Miss Ulric

Miss Lenore Ulric, star of the current Olney Theater hit, "Personal Appearance," was guest of honor at American Newspaper Women's Club's tea yesterday.

Mrs. Margaret Hart Canby, club president, received with Miss Ulric. Among those present were Mrs. Gardiner Luce, Miss Lillian Chenoweth and Mrs. Frank Watson.

John's Jottings Reveal He Even Paid the Piper

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE EXPENSE account Johnny Meyer chalked up on Elliott Roosevelt makes dull reading for those not in the El Morocco-Stork-21-Copacabana set. Almost unnoticed, however, a small human interest item was sandwiched among the slather of high jinks.

It covers, nostalgically, the depressing cycle of cafe society "fun," liquor as a jazzer, aspirin as a chaser. Here it is: "Dec.—Entertainment by John W. Meyer—inv. from Schwab's Pharmacy, whisky, mix, chocolate, gum, anacin—$33.25."

Mendelssohn at Middleburg

TO BE ON HAND for his son's wedding this Friday, Howard Bucknell, jr., flew in from Italy a few days ago. After a short stop at Myrtle Hall Farm, the Bucknell place at Bluemont, Va., he'll return to Rome and his newish job of vice president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Mr. B., whose last post was Minister-Counselor in London, is one of our many diplomats who quit the Foreign Service for the more lucrative pursuit of private business. His son, Howard 3d, an Annapolis graduate and j. g. Navy lieutenant, is marrying Sally Ruth Scott, the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Leet Scott of Coronado, Calif., and the late Capt. William L. Scott (AUS) of Erie, Pa.

The wedding is to take place at 4:30 p. m. in Middleburg's Emanuel Episcopal Church with a reception at Myrtle Hall Farm. The young couple will live in Coronado where Lieutenant Bucknell is stationed. Mrs. Bucknell, incidentally, has been here some time and will return to Rome with her husband.

G. Washington, Major Domo

SPEAKING OF Virginia, Warrenton's local ladies are going to serve luncheons at the Labor Day weekend horse show to benefit the Fauquier County Tuberculosis Association. They've commenced rounding up equipment already and have staked out two giant tents. One belongs to the Middleburg Volunteer Fire Department; the other, even more elegant, to Admiral Louis Strauss. (No one's explained why an admiral should own an outsize tent!)

But backbone of the whole affray is one highly respected George Washington—not of Mount Vernon, but of Tom Frost's Hamburger Stand at By Pass Crossroads! George Washington, when he's not tossing hamburgers together, is the neighborhood's most suave butler. He's on hand at any socially worthwhile party.

At the horse show his role is to marshal a squad of assistants who'll wash dishes and generally mop up after the crowd of luncheon guests. He'll have charge, too, of the cutlery which the committee is borrowing from local institutions, hospitals and, for all we know, orphan asylums.

A Heart-Warming Avocation

IN VACATION time it's easy to forget that the Capital's veterans' hospitals are still filled with wounded soldiers. In fact, they're more crowded than ever since many military hospitals throughout the country have been reconverted to civilian use and their soldier patients transferred to Washington.

To provide the niceties and small services which nurses would undertake if they weren't so overworked, there's a crying demand for more Gray Ladies. One of our big veterans' hospitals needs an additional 75 of these gracious volunteers before September; civilian hospitals would absorb an equal number.

People have an idea that Gray Ladies are elderly females swishing aimlessly about in becoming veiling. Actually, many are young, pretty and all perform an invaluable function as morale builders to both soldiers and their families. They aren't allowed to do "personal nursing," but before they're admitted to either ward or reception room they must take an indoctrination course. They read, handle mail, act as receptionists, sometimes teach a craft, and at one hospital the Gray Ladies run a room service for veterans' families—seeing to it that mama and sis get somewhere to sleep when they come to visit sonny.

Mrs. David Finley, whose distinguished husband "runs" the National Art Gallery, heads the Red Cross volunteers—many of whom are Gray Ladies. So if you have time to spare and want to do something heart-warming, apply at the Red Cross at 1730 E st. nw., in the Gray Lady Room or the Volunteer Service office.

Miss de Grange, Thomas Baldridge Select Attendants

Raymond Minor Hiudson, jr., of Washington, will be best man at the wedding of Miss Dorothy de Grange, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clay de Grange of Winchester, Va., and Thomas Wood Baldridge of Winchester and Warren County, Va., which will take place Saturday in Winchester.

Monroe French of Philadelphia and Washington will be an usher and others in this group will be Harry Rogers Kern, jr., and Holly McCormac, of Winchester; Henry Holzapfel 3d, of Hagerstown, Md.; Burr Powell Harrison, jr., of Leesburg; Albert Walker Allen of New York and Arlington, Va., and Arthur H. Clephane of Villanova, Pa.

Mrs. Harry Rogers Kern, jr., sister of the bride-to-be, will be matron of honor and another sister, Miss Eleanor de Grange, will be maid of honor. Bridesmaids are Miss Natalie Brockenbrough Browne and Miss Nancy Lee Coble of Winchester; Miss Jacquelyn Halsey of New York and Spray, N. C.; Miss Joan Coenen of The Hague, Netherlands.

Murner Studio

Mrs. Earle Walter Sapp, jr., whose marriage to Ensign Sapp of Washington took place Monday in Northminster Presbyterian Church, is the former Miss Ava Pauline Allred, daughter of Mrs. H. F. Allred of Asheboro, N. C.

Miss Dow Feted By Miss Hanby

Miss Mary Dow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dow, who will be married August 16 to John Dickinson Ferry, was the guest in whose honor Miss Barbara Hanby entertained at a utility shower Tuesday evening. Miss Hanby will be maid of honor at the wedding.

Guests included Miss Camilla Goldsborough, Miss Helene de Sibour, Miss Carolyn Hanby, Miss Martha Anne Patterson, Miss Jackie de Lysle, Miss Isabelle Berry, Miss Barbara Sandborn, Miss Jean Cox, Miss Alice Bratton, Miss Marianne Dotson, Miss Florence Montfort, Miss Mary Jane Crawford, Miss Eleanor Woodson, Miss Jane Ann Sullivan and Miss Patricia Furrmah.

Miss Fine to Be Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Fine announce the engagement of their daughter, Evelyn, to Sheldon Mensh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shea Mensh.

Gallahers to Sail for Stockholm

Capt. and Mrs. John F. Gallaher and Mrs. Jean Gallaher will leave on August 26 for Stockholm where Captain Gallaher has been appointed Naval Attache and Naval Attache for Air of the United States Legation. He succeeds Capt. William D. Wright.

While here Captain Gallaher and his family have been occupying the home of Col. and Mrs. H. P. Gibson in Alexandria.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

I have new equipment for canning in tin but find that there are lots of gaps in instructions and recipes for canning by this method. Can you answer the following: (1) Is it proper to fill the tin cans to the very top? (2) Shouldn't I sterilize cans and lids as I would glass jars? (3) If cans and lids are sterilized, must lids be dry when placed on can for sealing? (4) In making pickles, jams or jellies, can the same method be followed in handling the cans as in open-kettle canning of fruit? (5) Can you furnish me with a recipe for canning dewberries, strawberries or huckleberries? Can the open-kettle method be used? K. B.

1. Yes, fill the cans to the top with the hot liquid. You thus avoid air holes inside the can. The hot liquid is at a high expansion point when you pour it in, so there's no chance of the full cans exploding when they are processed.

2. The cans and their tops should not be sterilized. Wash the cans in clear water shortly before using and drain upside down. Do not wash the lids as washing may damage the gasket. If lids are dusty or dirty, wipe with a damp cloth just before putting on cans.

3. Don't wipe cans and lids dry. Just let them air-dry fairly well before using.

4. No processing is necessary in putting up pickles, jams, and jellies in tin. The sugar or vinegar will be sufficient preservative if cans are packed correctly. Be sure the liquid is near the boiling point when you pour it in. Fill the cans clear to the top and seal immediately before the temperature drops below 170 degrees. It's best to have a thermometer for checking temperature of cans. After sealing, turn the cans upside down immediately so that the hot liquid will kill any bacteria that might be on the top of the can.

5. The following method can be used in hot packing all berries except strawberries: Wash berries and drain well. Add ½ cup sugar to each quart of fruit. Cover pan and bring to boil, shaking pan to keep berries from sticking. Pack hot, exhaust, and seal. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees F.) for 15 minutes for No. 2 cans, 20 minutes for No. 2½ cans.

The method is the same for strawberries, with a few exceptions: After you sweeten the strawberries and bring them to a boil, remove from the stove and let them stand overnight. Next day, bring them quickly to a boil again, pack in cans, seal, and process 10 minutes for No. 2 cans and 15 minutes for No. 2½ cans.

By Lucia Brown

ALL THOSE dreams of post-war wonders didn't come true, but we are now beginning to get a few new household gadgets like the "heater-cooler-cooker." This engaging new device will heat or cool your room, or cook your lunch. It won't wind the clock or scrub floors every other Thursday, but it's a pretty talented trick at that.

Since it's hot summertime, let's start with its cooling ability. The secret is nothing more complicated than a fan, hidden inside the neat metal cabinet. The switch on the side gives you a choice of low diffused air currents that keep drafts at a minimum, or the high, full-powered breeze of an electric fan.

When lunchtime rolls around, all you have to do is cut off the cooling breeze (after all, you can't have everything at once) and flip the appliance over on its back. Lift the hinged wire grill front and turn on the heating unit that keeps the fan company inside the cabinet. This converts the cooler into a cooker that's the equivalent of a two-plate electric stove.

In the winter, the fan and heating unit work together to warm your room. A combination of radiant (reflected) heat and convection (fan-driven) heat in a wind tunnel prevents the cabinet from ever getting too hot. All the heat energy is driven out into the room.

The "heater-cooker-cooler" is housed in a cabinet that measures only about 15x17x11 inches. It's an inspired device for the person who lives in one room and likes to do light cooking occasionally.

PLASTIC TELEPHONES for communication between rooms in the home work on a flashlight battery. The complete set consists of two phones, battery and 50 feet of wire. The dial of one phone rings the other.

NO FUMBLING in the dark if you have a new combination key case and flashlight. The case is made of black, blue, brown or red leather and the battery case is made of aluminum which is rust-proof.

PHONOGRAPH owners will be pleased to know that a diamond-tipped needle has been developed at a price that most of us can afford. It is said that this needle will last the lifetime of a phonograph. Tests over a period of two years' daily use showed no wear on the diamond point.

TRICK KEY CASE for the car key is one that has a spring action to eject the key back into the case when the ignition is off.

BELIEVE it or not—there's a salt shaker that pours under water! A matching pepper shaker is also moisture-proof. These are made in varying colors and have no moving parts to get out of kilter.

GOOD to have when traveling are shower slippers that are waterproof. These come in a wide range of colors in small, medium and large sizes for both men and women. They are washable.

Let Dessert Salad Be Last Course Of Summer Meal

A cool "dessert salad" is just the thing to top off the meal these warm summer evenings.

Here's a recipe for one that combines a fruit and a vegetable with gelatin and pecans:

1 package lemon gelatin
¾ cup crushed pineapple
½ cup shredded carrots
¼ cup chopped pecans.

Follow the directions on the gelatin package, substituting pineapple juice for cold water. Allow gelatin to cool slightly, then add pineapple, carrots, and nutmeats, and pour into individual molds. Chill thoroughly. Serve with cream dressing made as follows:

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup whipped cream.

Beat lemon juice into mayonnaise with rotary egg beater, then stir in whipped cream.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife With Time on Her Hands Nevertheless Deplores Husband's Insistence That She Ought to Do the Family Chores and Errands

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I need advice, I feel, from an impartial source. The trouble isn't any one thing but rather a series of petty things that cause friction between us.

My husband's work takes him out of town about four days a week. Since we have a small house, only six rooms, and no children as yet, he feels I should do all his personal errands, such as taking his clothes to the cleaners, his shoes to the cobbler's, and also handle all our accounts.

I agree with him that I have time for this, but that isn't the point. He seems to feel that his helpmeet duties end with bringing home a weekly check. He often refers to himself as the bread winner and says he can't be the breadmaker; yet until a month ago I worked full-time too.

Man's Obliging To His Mother

HE SAYS he isn't the handyman type around a house, therefore doesn't intend to even try to fix anything. If I ask him to do short errands on Saturdays he is highly indignant because he plans to go golfing, see a ball game or sleep. Yet if his mother calls to ask a favor, he will go blocks out of his way for her.

I shouldn't begrudge his doing errands for his mother, I know; but she has another son at home and I always feel hurt when he hastens to oblige her, because he doesn't like to do anything for me. In fact, I'm almost afraid to ask him any more. Quite often when we bicker about this he goes out and sits in a bar until the wee hours,—as he also does when he's not angry.

I really don't know which of us is wrong. Usually he convinces me that I'm wrong, and I vow to myself that I'll never raise the subject again. Above all I don't want to be a nagging wife, but it seems to me there should be a limit to my duties. Please tell me what you think. E. F.

Each Determined To Be Waited On

DEAR E. F.: You're both wrong, in the sense that each is peevishly asserting his supposed "right" to be taken care of. Each wants the other to serve him in loco parentis (in place of a parent).

Or to say it another way, your marriage is a battleground in which two infantile personalities are slugging it out for the biggest lollipop of dependency-benefits.

What is maturity? As defined by the specialists Strecker and Appel, "It is the quality or capacity of giving more than is asked or required in a given situation. It is this characteristic that enables others to count on one; thus it is reliability.

"Persistence is an aspect of maturity: persistence to carry out a goal in the face of difficulties, discomfort, frustration. A mature person is not dependent unless ill . . . above all, he has the qualities of adaptability and compromise."

Again, another specialist, Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, emphasizing the need of mature social leadership to save humanity, says, "Broadly speaking, we are all like angry children. We are like children because we have failed to develop our human potentials. It is more pleasant to be angry than to feel anxious, frustrated and humiliated . . ."

Anger Cloaks Deep Anxiety

HENCE your anger with your husband and his with you. Each feels anxious, frustrated and threatened with humiliation—i. e., defeat—as he tries to "put over" his infantile demands on the other. Isn't that it?

Your husband is emotionally responsive to his mother's requests for infantile reasons: 1. Because to him she represents sanctuary, a protective force whose favor is to be curried. 2. Because her sanctuary value to him looms larger in his unconscious since he married a would-be clinging vine, who he feels is intent on curbing his freedom, draining his energies, resources, etc.

Doubtless he is the product of a mom-type rearing, and perhaps with his tacit encouragement she is making a game of being your rival. In any event, he's not very promising husband-material; but on the other hand, you weigh in as almost equally disobliging and self-centered. For advice: Read "Their Mother's Sons," by Dr. Edward A. Strecker, to get a line on (1) your respective shortcomings and (2) the road to maturity. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Leave Baby With a Kiss— And No Tears

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

IT is always a question in the mother's mind whether she should sneak out of the front door so the baby won't see her leave, or whether she should brave the cries and leave openly.

But there is no question in my mind. Saying good-by should be part of a child's early experiences. Daddy leaves each morning and kisses the baby. The mother should not hesitate, when the need arises, to do the same thing. The child's memory is short and separation is only what we make it.

If the mother leaves as if she were committing a crime, the child will soon look upon her going in the same manner. He will feel himself abandoned and cheated, because he knows she wouldn't creep away if she weren't doing something she shouldn't. He gets that idea from the way the parent acts, not because her behavior is to be censured.

Also, she leaves the burden of comforting him on the innocent sitter. If the child acts up and there is a to-do made about it, then this becomes the pattern of his behavior when left behind. He's expected to act this way and he doesn't disappoint you.

The best method from the very beginning, is to kiss the child, say good-by, smile and wave as you disappear, as if this were all good fun. If the baby gets used to new persons feeding and bathing him, then he will not be upset when he is left in new hands. He has become adjusted to them and looks upon their coming with pleasure and anticipation.

Cream Gone Sour? Rejoice and Use It In 'Toastwich'

Good for a snack or for a main dish at lunchtime is "Ham-Mushroom Toastwich." It's a delicious way, too, to use up soured cream.

Here's what you need to make toastwiches for four:

- 2 teaspoons fat
- 4 slices boiled ham
- ½ cup thick sour cream
- ½ cup canned (sliced or button) mushrooms
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 8 slices toast

Melt fat in skillet; add ham and saute for five minutes. Combine sour cream and mushrooms; heat for five minutes. Spread ¼ teaspoon mustard over each slice of toast, and cover with a slice of ham and a second slice of toast. Pour hot sour cream and mushroom mixture over each sandwich and serve immediately.

To Treat Burn

A bad scald should be covered with cloths wet with strong alum solution. Keep the applications over the scald until the burning stops. This will usually prevent future scars.

Rowing Will Convert Calories Into Curves

By Ida Jean Kain

GATHER ROUND, thin girls, and let's talk curves. Why allow the dimpled darlings to have all the curves and come-hither! You can banish that plucked chicken look across the chest, put a little meat on the collar bones, and round out skinny arms. It takes a bit of exercise and better nutrition, but your program can make a new gal out of you!

What kind of exercise? Any kind that fits into your daily life. Swimming is tops and guarantees curves in all the desirable places, but if that sport is out for you, then pick another. Did you ever take a fling at archery. As a builder-upper there is none better. Archery sets are not expensive now and if you have very little space, set the target in the garage and shoot from the driveway. It's fun, and it will fill out the chest, straighten rounded shoulders and round out skinny arms.

If you are lucky enough to be near a lake, rowing can work miracles. No lake? Well, you can row right in your living room. One girl added three inches to her bust measurement by rowing . . . on dry land. Here's the technique . . .

Sit on floor, anchor feet under a heavy chair or sofa, bend elbows and hold arms out at chest level. Now all you do is row. Fling arms forward, chest level, bending slightly forward, then come back, bending elbows again and pulling as if against water . . . and row, row, row. Keep the tummy muscles pulled up firmly to get some gimp in that muscular girdle.

Calories figure in, too . . . eat a better breakfast; have more milk during the day, and more bread and butter with meals. Have less coffee and fewer cigarettes.

If you are a weary homemaker and can't pick up pounds, try the doctor's prescription and rest 10 minutes out of every hour. That plan brings such a wonderful release from nervous tension.

And once you start picking up even a few pounds, you'll be delighted at the serenity and feeling of well being that come with adequate rest, good nutrition, specific exercise and more nearly normal weight.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Parties Given for Elliott Called Chicken-Feed Beside Pan Am's

By Drew Pearson

Senator Brewster's War Investigating Committee has performed a healthy service in showing how Howard Hughes' aide spent $5083 entertaining Elliott Roosevelt. This is something the public is entitled to know about.

However, the public is also entitled to know about all the lavish entertainment poured out by other big airplane companies—when that entertainment was deducted from the taxpayers' money. And if you take the $5083 spent on Elliott Roosevelt and stack it alongside what the taxpayer shelled out for "entertainment" by Pan American Airways, it makes Elliott's entertainment look like chicken-feed.

For instance, here is the expense account of Pan American's former senior vice president, Robert G. Thach, as noted in an official report of the Civil Aeronautics Board: "Meals for himself and others, $10,208.30 in 1938."

Ten thousand dollars is a lot to spend for meals alone in one year. And Mr. Thach had other expenses that year which totaled $49,928.24. These he listed as "laundry, sightseeing, deck chairs, club dues, doctors, nurses," and various other things. His bill for long-distance telephoning alone in 1938 was $10,334.25.

However, the year 1938 was not out of line with other years for Mr. Thach. The Civil Aeronautics Board, examining the accounts of Pan American Airways, made this official and critical comment:

"When during a 30-month period, expense vouchers totaling $100,000 exclusive of salary, are approved for one officer (Thach) without investigation or inquiry by the company's chief accounting office, then such items would not be considered by the CAB in determining the 'need' of the carrier."

How the Public Pays

"Need," in this case, refers to Pan Am's need of air-mail subsidies. And the reason the CAB was examining Pan American's accounts was that the amount of its mail subsidy is determined in part by its expenses of operation. And what the American taxpayer doesn't generally realize is that the cost of the expensive lobby conducted by Pan American to influence Congress is largely paid for by the taxpayer himself through the air-mail subsidy. This is also true of other aviation companies, except that Pan American has received far more in air-mail subsidies than any other company, and also conducts one of the most far-flung and expensive lobbies in the history of government.

For instance, Pan American maintains three different offices in Washington. In addition, it has two secret hideaway spots in the Capital—all conected with lobbying.

One of these is a 10-room suite at 1815 15th st., which has a private telephone line direct to Pan Am headquarters in New York. Then there is a confidential office at 1319 F st. operated by Bill McAvoy, Pan Am's suave publicity man and full-time lobbyist. Very few people know this office exists. Also, there is the official office at 1109 Connecticut ave. In addition, three rooms are always kept at the Mayflower Hotel, rooms 605, 621 and 743—available to Pan Am officials in case of sudden trips to Washington. Much of the time, however, they are vacant, thus adding to the crowded conditions of Washington hotels.

Much of this eventually is paid out of the taxpayer's pocket.

Finally, there is Pan Am's colonial mansion at 2017 F st. where Pan Am president Juan Trippe entertains Congressmen and other big shots. Here a butler and maid are on constant duty, and when Trippe puts on an especially big party, extra servants are brought in, sometimes from the White House staff. Rent for the colonial mansion is reported to be $800 a month.

Pan Am's Airplane Junkets

Then there are the special Pan American facilities at the National Airport where two private planes are kept, the NC4000 and the 4000W. It is these plane which have flown Senator Brewster on various trips—up to his home in Maine, and once to Hobe Sound, Fla., where Sam Pryor, vice president of Pan American, maintains his winter home. Mr. Pryor, former Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, is one of the ablest lobbyists in the Capital and handles Pan Am's most difficult jobs.

It is Senator Brewster who has been charged by Howard Hughes with investigating him because he refused to take Brewster's suggestion that Hughes' Trans World Airline amalgamate with Pan American.

It was Senator Brewster who flew to Raleigh, N. C., last year to visit ailing Senator Bailey of North Carolina, then chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, to urge his support of the "one company" idea for American airlines overseas. The "one company" plan is urged by Pan American to fly all foreign routes, as against the American system of free competition, favored by other companies.

Incidentally, when Brewster flew to see Senator Bailey in Raleigh, Jack Frye, then president of Trans World Airline, learned of the flight; and, getting former Senator Bennett Clark out of bed in Kansas City, persuaded him to phone Senator Bailey long distance not to side with Brewster in favor of the "one company" bill.

Brewster's plane was delayed about 15 minutes in reaching Raleigh, which permitted Clark's phone call to come through and persuade Bailey not to go along with Brewster. This was probably the chief reason why the "one company" bill never passed the Seventy-ninth Congress.

It was also one of Pan Am's special planes which carried A. F. Whitney of the railroad trainmen and Alvanley Johnston of the locomotive engineers on a trip from Cleveland last year at the time the two brotherhood leaders came out for the "one company" bill.

Pan Am's Tremendous Subsidy

The reason all these special flights and extra expenses are important is that they help to determine the amount of air-mail subsidy paid by the Government to Pan American Airways. It is estimated that Pan American has received a total subsidy from the Government of more than 150 million dollars. This does not include the 100 million dollars paid Pan Am in connection with building special airports in Latin America during the war.

The 150-million-dollar figure compares with the 40 million dollars paid by the Government to Howard Hughes. And just as the money spent by Hughes to entertain Elliott Roosevelt is reported to have come out of Government funds, so also the cost of ornate lobbying offices, the $10,000 for meals for one Pan Am vice president, and the fees to high-priced lobbying attorneys—all go into expenses when it comes to figuring Pan Am's air-mail subsidy.

Regarding Pan Am's waste of money on lobbying, the Civil Aeronautics Board has some caustic things to say. And it would be a simple matter for Senator Brewster's committee to subpena the CAB reports—if he wants the full truth.

Blows in Prison Camps Approved By Army Officer

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—An Army officer testifying at the court martial of Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirshberg, who is accused of maltreating fellow prisoners of the Japanese while a section leader, said today that he himself gave section leaders permission to strike their men if necessary to enforce discipline.

Capt. Richard T. Pullen, jr., 33, of Monterey, Calif., an Army lieutenant when taken prisoner and put in command of American prisoners at two Japanese camps in the Philippines, said, however, he instructed his section leaders never to strike a man in the sight of the Japs.

The testimony was brought out by Defense Counsel Lieut. Comdr. John J. O'Neil, as Pullen was recalled in rebuttal by the prosecution.

"Do Army regulations permit such action?" defense counsel asked on cross-examination.

"No, but we could only enforce our own discipline," Pullen replied.

One On the Aisle—

Blue, Grey and Rosy ... Affecting Story Of Ozark Schism

By Richard L. Coe

"THE ROMANCE OF ROSY RIDGE," at the Capitol, is a film of leisurely charm and moving appeal. It's a MacKinlay Kantor story of Missouri immediately after the Civil War, with a fine cast topped by Van Johnson.

For an MGM top-budget picture, the film shows remarkable restraint. The settings of the Ozark hills are beautifully simple, the clothes and farmhouses are exceptionally natural and the music splendid.

Missouri, Kantor tells us, was bitterly split at the war's close between neighboring families who had alternately sided with the Blue and the Grey. His hero is a schoolmaster who strives to make folks realize that peace means living together. Because he's a strongly conceived character and because Johnson plays him so well, you'll find yourself thinking about him and his problem long after the film's over.

The color of his britches plays an important role in the yarn. He's a stranger who goes to Thomas Mitchell's farm and offers to help rebuild after the neglect of the war years. By the light of the moon and the dim glow of lamplight, Mitchell's unable to tell whether Van's threadbare trousers were originally blue or gray.

"They'd better be grey," mutters Mitchell, whose son, he fears, was killed while fighting on the Confederate side. But by the next morning Van has changed to non-GIs, and it isn't till much later that Mitchell discovers Van served the Union's blue.

By then a romance has developed between Johnson and Mitchell's daughter, Janet Leigh, and Van has done a man-sized job bringing in the hay, rebuilding the barn the nightriders have burned and in trying to bring the two factions together at a "play party."

"THE ROMANCE OF ROSY RIDGE." MGM release, produced by Jack Cummings. Screenplay by Lester Cole from a novel by MacKinlay Kantor. Music arranged by Earl Robinson and Lewis Allan. Directed by Roy Rowland. At the Capitol Theater.

Ozark Lingo

It's in such native customs as this "play party" that the film develops its compelling atmosphere. The paucity of pleasures during the war years make the hill people look forward to one of their dances, and you share with them their longing to get together as they did in the old days.

The lines, too, have a fresh appeal, ringing on the ears with an easy naturalness suggesting that Author Kantor's lines often have been transferred intact to Lewster Cole's screenplay.

"You let a litter of kittens out of the bag that were meant for drownin' in the crik," says Ma (Selena Royale). "Your good sense is disappearing faster than rain down a gopher hole," remarks someone else. "Ma says I can hear an acorn dropping from an oak a mile away—my ears are that good," boasts Janet. Somehow the talk manages to escape that air of having been sweated out of a brain in a Hollywood writing coop.

That "Blue Tail Fly"

It's too bad Metro isn't more specific about the music. Earl Robinson and Lewis Allan are credited with the songs, but we're certain many of them are old folk tunes of the period and mighty charming they are, too. You'll hear "Blue Tail Fly" to other words, but whether they're authentic Ozark we know not. Anyway, on a mouth organ, banjo or an old violin, they're a definite asset to the film.

The cast is topnotch. Johnson does the idealistic, homey schoolmaster with a naturalness any other player would do well to match. Miss Royle is fine as the mother and Janet Leigh, in her first screen role, is as unaffected as if she'd been before the cameras all her life. Thomas Mitchell's stubborn old man isn't inherently sympathetic, but you'll like little Dean Stockwell, Guy Kibbee, Elizabeth Risdon and all the others.

We might be out on a limb for "Rosy Ridge," but we've an idea most people will agree that it's a well-made, affecting little film.

Denning Recovers

Richard Denning is recovering from a fall in his bathroom. He was treated at an emergency hospital for scalp wounds that required five stitches, but will be able to start "Caged Fury" at Paramount in several weeks.

CHOW-HOUND AT WORK: Priscilla Lane vies with food for John Garfield's attention in "Dust Be My Destiny," half of Keith's reissue bill, sharing the screen with Bette Davis and Humphrey Bogart in "Marked Woman"

'Silenec Is Golden' Notes Miss Ulric's Carole Arden

"Get out," says Carole Arden, "I want to be alone. I want to commute with myself."

These and simHar malapropisms are the delight of Lawrence Riley's long-lived comedy about a film star on parade, "Personal Appearance." "Science," ponders Carole, "is golden." And when someone tires her, she urges "Go out and get a little relaxative."

Carole is now being played out at Olney by Lenore Ulric, still remarkably vitamin-chucked after a starring career that began on the road in "The Bird of Paradise" and continued through the David Belasco twilight. Lenore is deft at tossing off Carole's superb lines and if you're unfamiliar with the play you'll probably enjoy Olney's version.

The man-hunting Arden is certainely one of the juciest parts of modern comedy and though it's fully 12 years since we watched her do it (for, we might add, some 14 performances), Gladys George remains without a peer in the role. Gladys had a deceptively delicate air about her which eludes Miss Luric and the voice she used was quite inimitable. Whereas in Carole's remarks about "my husband, Benjamin Z. Feinberg, president of Feinberg Pictures," Gladys managed to purr, Lenore gives it a Bronx whoop that is subtle but not half so clever.

Riley's farce concerns what happens in the respectably impoverished household of a Pennsylvania town halfway between Wilkes Barre and Scranton when a touring movie queen runs into auto trouble. During her whirlwind visit she takes over a girl's fiancee without his being aware of it.

The Olney company has a swell press agent whine in Joseph Hardy's "Bud," the sure-fire yuk-yuk sort of guy he played so effectively in "Dream Girl." Ruth White scores once again as the wise maiden aunt. James Karen's garage mechanic who attracts the roaming film star is rightly done and so is Malissa Childs' pert, pretty maid.

Ava Would Buy Mountain Peak

Hollywood.—Ava Gardner who will be teamed with Van Johnson, for the first time in "Wanted," is trying to buy a mountain top.

Tired of apartment house living, the dark-haired actress has drawn up plans for a bachelor girl's home, including some of the ideas incorporated into the modernistic apartment in which she entertained Clark Gable in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Hucksters."

Miss Gardner says she will build atop a mountain in the Hollywood area and has instructed real estate agents she is the market for such a spot.

Rooney Writes A Hardy Original

Hollywood.—If a story called "Andy Hardy's Milestones" reaches the screen, it will mark a milestone for Andy's real-life self, Mickey Rooney. Mickey not only would star, but is the author of the original story.

The young actor disclosed on the set of his current picture, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Killer McCoy," that he now has completed and its ready to submit to the studio a screenplay to continue the popular Hardy family pictures. The unique twist to Rooney's story is that it centers on Judge and Ma Hardy, with the venerable Judge experiencing the same trials and tribulations that have beset Andy in past episodes.

Good Sport

Paul Kelly, starring in "Adventure Island," plays baseball every Sunday afternoon with the neighborhood kids. He also admits he's the worst player on his team.

Likes Wardrobe

Brenda Joyce liked her wardrobe created for her use in "Shaggy." When the film was completed, she bought the entire wardrobe for her personal use.

The Washington Post Carriers Off to Summer Camps . . .

BOUND FOR VACATION LAND—Winners of The Washington Post's "All Around Carrier" contest wave a fond farewell to Washington as they assemble in front of the Y. M. C. A., 18th and G sts. nw., before leaving for Camp Letts, Md. The contest was conducted March 1 to July 15. Forty-four boys are in the group of winners

The Washington Post

CAMPERS, TOO—This group of carrier boys left yesterday from the "Y" at 1816 12th st. nw., for Camp Lichtman, Dumfries, Va., to spend the two-weeks' vacation they earned in the contest

2 Fined $50 In Ocean City 'Slot' Raids

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Two Ocean City men were fined $50 and costs today for illegal possession of slot machines in the newest phase of a campaign against gambling along the beach.

Stacey Ludlam, proprietor of the Essex Hotel, and Granville Trimper, brother of Mayor Daniel Trimper, jr., entered pleas of guilty before Magistrate James B. Robins, who meted out the fines.

No testimony was taken at the hearings, but Worcester County Sheriff Arthur W. Duer reported to Magistrate Robins that he and a deputy visited Ludlam's hotel about 10:45 Saturday night and confiscated one slot machine.

A machine belonging to Granville Trimper was seized by the sheriff some time ago and he had been scheduled for a hearing a week ago, at the time 10 other persons were fined $50 and costs by the magistrate on similar charges.

Trimper's case was postponed when Sheriff Duer reported the defendant was ill.

Sheriff Duer's Saturday night visit to Ludlam's hotel was the second time he had swooped down on the boardwalk in a week. On Monday night he and a flying squad confiscated 15 machines in a raid which began at both ends of the resort area and worked toward the center.

Ludlam declared at that time he was certain the "big operators" had been tipped off in advance and closed down.

He did not amplify the statement today. Regarding the visit to his own place Saturday night, Ludlam said he returned to his establishment to find the sheriff and his deputy carrying out "my one ond only" slot machine.

Sheriff Duer said he visited about 20 places along the boardwalk Saturday night and found only Ludlam's machine operating.

Employment Turns Upward In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Unemployment in Maryland took a downward turn last week, Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Department of Employment Security, reported today to Governor Lane.

Davis said there were fewer layoffs because of vacation periods and "some shops which closed down a week ago recalled their people."

Meanwhile there were 800 more temporary layoffs in 15 firms.

Unemployment compensation payments during the week ended August 2 totaled $263,422.

County officers paid out 4170 checks totaling $68,838; the Baltimore office, 10,255 checks totaling $182,193, and out-of-State claimants received 592 checks totaling $12,391.

Readjustment allowances in the counties for veterans included 2517 checks totaling $49,977, and in Baltimore, 5227 checks totaling $104,030.

In the separate category of self-employed, there were 41 continued claims totaling $3907.

At the end of the week, the State reserve fund was $119,253,424.

U. S. Dehydrating Plant Sold in Md. for $15,000

War Assets Administration yesterday announced the sale of a government-owned plant in Fruitland, Md., constructed for the dehydrating of vegetables and fruits, to John H. Dulany & Son, Inc., the wartime operator, for $15,000 cash. The plant consists of a curing house and dehydrating equipment.

First Polio of Season Reported at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—The City Health Department today reported the first local case of infantile paralysis this season. Another case is suspected to be poliomyelitis. The victim definitely diagnosed as having the disease is a 10-year-old girl.

15,000 to Vie For Rooms at Legion Meet

Baltimore, Aug. 6 (AP).—Contests of every description will mark the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Legion, Department of Maryland, which opens here tonight for a four-day session.

A city-wide contest for hotel rooms or other quarters already was on.

The battle for rooms started early this morning as the vanguard of 15,000 Legionnaires and their wives arrived to find most midtown hostelries stretching their capacities to the utmost.

Not the least in the series of competitions will be the election of State officers, which will close the convention Sunday morning.

However, the competitive keynote of the meeting will be sounded tomorrew night, when bugle and drum corps from all parts of the State vie for honors at the Municipal Stadium.

The Fifth Regiment Armory will be the scene of business sessions, to be attended by 2420 official delegates and alternates, representing 192 legion posts.

Parade of the Forty-and-Eight, fun-making organization of the legion, is scheduled for Thursday evening. The full legion parade is slated for Friday. Officials said the legionnaires would be joined in the March by Army, Navy, Marine, civic and fraternal units.

Thus far three candidates have entered the race for State commander. They are Samuel J. Cohen, Hagerstown; Harry S. Allen, Laurel, and Winship Wheatley, jr., Hyattsville. John F. Boschen of Baltimore is the incumbent.

W. C. Thomas Named Major of Virginia Police

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—The promotion of Capt. William C. Thomas, executive officer of the Virginia State Police, to the rank of major was announced today.

Major Thomas will be assigned to the superintendent's office, Col. C. W. Woodson, jr., superintendent of State police explained. He will take over some of the duties relinquished by former Maj. James R. Nunn, who resigned from the State police stoff last week.

Norfolk Chiropractor Gets Association Post

Danville, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—Dr. Harry R. Bybee, sr., of Norfolk, has been elected president of the house of delegates of the National Chiropractic Association, springboard to the presidency of the national organization, John G. Cox, of the Virginia Chiropractic Association, said here today.

Cox said Bybee defeated Dr. D. M. Smith, of Huntington Park, Calif., more than two to one. Bybee is the State delegate from Virginia to the Omaha, Nebr., convention.

Tax Cut Deals Reported in Anne Arundel

Riviera Beach, Md., Aug. 6 (AP). Leaders of a movement protesting Anne Arundel County tax assessments reported today it was possible to get downward adjustments by "dickering" with politicians and declared those responsible ought to be prosecuted.

"We are not satisfied merely to clean up these tax irregularities," said John W. Fox, chairman of the board of governors of the Citizens Protective Association of Anne Arundel County.

He was one of the speakers at a rally last night in the Riviera Beach firemen's hall. More than 150 persons attended.

Justin G. Buch, president of the Protective Association, read a list of 47 assessments on which the organization already has filed protests with the Anne Arundel Board of County Commissioners.

On the list was the property of Lawrence Walker, chief of the Riviera Beach Fire Department.

Mrs. Walker Rose acknowledged that their home at Bar Harbor is worth three times its asssesed value, and declared:

"No matter how much we have to pay, we'll pay it. But I think you people could find something beter to do than to dig into other people's business."

"When I pay other people's taxes, that's my business," Fox countered.

Cites Some Extremes

In Maryland

Assemblymen Inspecting 2 Counties

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Maryland's Legislative Council came here tonight for a four-day look at problems in the State's two western counties, Queen Annes and Allegany.

Only one member of the General Assembly's 20-man interim fact-finding group was absent as the legislators climbed aboard a special car at Baltimore, Washington and Silver Spring and came here by train. Senator Joseph M. George (D., Queen Annes) was unable to make the trip.

Dr. Horace E. Flack, director of the bureau of legislative reference, was in the party.

Headquarters for the four-day roving meeting was set up at the Fort Cumberland Hotel here and local officials had ready a four-point program.

They scheduled a visit to Frostburg State Teachers' College because a State commission on higher education has recommendation the institution be abandoned. A tour of strip mining operations was planned. Many leaders in the area have sought legislation to restrict devastation which accompanies the strip mining technique. City and county officials were to take up local problems which the legislature must consider. And the visitors were to get an orientation in western Maryland industry, parks, and stream conditions.

Poultrymen Talk Chickens, Barbecue 'em

Westminster, Md., Aug. 6 (AP). After listening most of the day to a series of talks on how to grow better chickens and larger eggs, members of the Maryland Poultry Council dined tonight on chicken barbecue Maryland.

Homer Huntington of Chicago, president of the National Egg and Poultry Board, was chief chef and master of ceremonies.

The dinner ended a day of discussions by the experts on "Adjustments to Meet Future Markets," theme of the sixteenth annual convention of the group.

Awards for the Chicken of Tomorrow Contest will be made tomorrow at breakfast, with President H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland presiding.

Eggs any style will be served at the breakfast, and arrangements were made to cook Dr. Byrd his favorite dish—duck eggs.

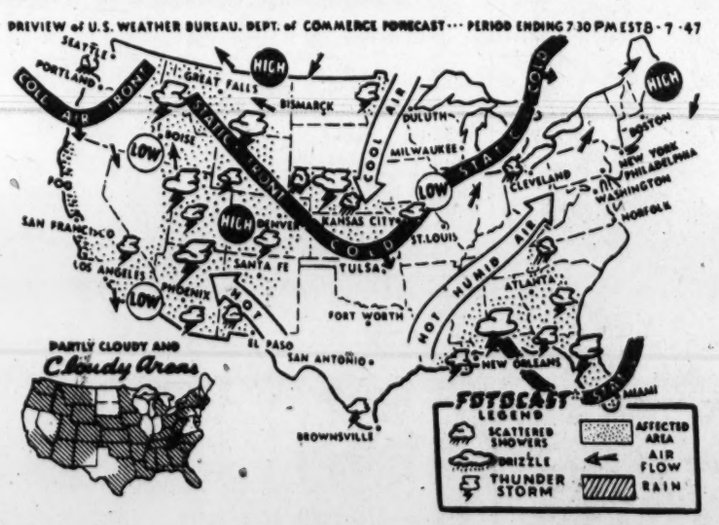
The 200-odd delegates, largest number in the council's history, got some first-hand information on turkey growing today from E. G. Terpenning, who runs a farm and dressing plant at Thurmont.

Terpenning said he could save 33 per cent on feed costs by pasturing turkeys on grass sod.

Russell C. Hawes of the University of Maryland Extension Service told the poultrymen how the fresh egg law is enforced. He said three inspectors were on duty throughout the State to check egg grading for violations.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner



TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR FORECAST: Weather Bureau forecasters are calling for a new heat wave in the eastern third of the United States today. Afternoon temperatures will be 90 degrees or higher from the central Plains and the Gulf States to Maine. Parts of Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Louisiana will report readings above 100 degrees.

Cool air which has been building up around a high pressure cell in Canada will sweep down toward the cold air front from Illinois to Colorado and hold maximum temperatures in the Plains States down to the comfortable 80s. (See air mass arrow.) Temperatures to the north and west of this cold front will be nearly 15 degrees cooler than those to the south.

The scientists point out pressure is usually high over the water and central Canada because temperature in these areas is cooler than over the inland United States during the summer. (Note high pressure cells over the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific.)

This temperature difference causes a flow of air from the high pressure centers toward the warmer low pressure cells and fronts. (See air flow arrows.) Air flowing around the high pressure cell in the Gulf of Mexico will pick up moisture and build up into tall clouds as it moves inland. Scattered thunderstorms will occur along the Gulf Coast, in the Rockies and from Oklahoma to Minnesota as these unstable clouds drop their moisture in the affected areas.

Your weatherman says it will be mostly sunny with partly cloudy skies over most sections of the country in the coming 24 hours. (Hatched areas on the inset map denote partial cloudiness.)

This afternoon's maximum temperature forecasts include Nashville, Tulsa, St. Louis and Kansas City, 100; Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, 98; Fort Worth, 96; Buffalo, 93; Philadelphia and Atlanta, 92; Washington, 91; Boston, Hartford, New York and Albany, 90; Chicago, 88; Duluth, 80 and Milwaukee, 75 degrees.

ORDER PUBLICATION—ABSENT DEFENDANT.
Filed August 1, 1947, CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk.
IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. Louis Guglielmo, et al, plaintiff, vs. Mattie Belle Sisk, et al, defendant. The object of this suit is to foreclose judgment liens against real property located within the District of Columbia, known and described as Lot twenty-six (26) in Square two thousand seventy (2070) improved by premises No. 2942 Ordway Street Northwest, the legal title to which is in the name of the defendant, Florence Jones, and Lot forty-six (46) in Square two thousand six hundred and sixty-eight (2668) improved by premises No. 1440 Harvard Street Northwest, the legal title to which is in the names of Thomas F. Sisk and Lillian Sisk, but to both of which, it is alleged, the equitable title is in the defendant, Mattie Belle Sisk. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 1st day of August, 1947, ordered that the defendant, Florence Jones, cause her appearance to be entered herein on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, occuring after the day of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in the case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter, and The Washington Post before said day. Attest: (Signed) EDWARD M. CURRAN, Justice. CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By CLARA F. CONNELL, Deputy Clerk. Aug.6,13,20

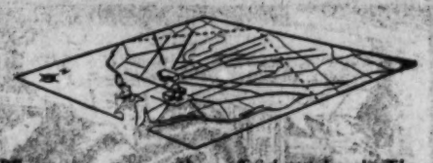
In Which Bill Eats a Little Humble Pie



The other day we ran a note from Charlotte Glidden, in which she asked what could be done about people who sit in aisle seats in the movies and refuse to let others pass.

In my best smart-aleck manner, I suggested that we could step on their toes.

The mailman brings me a note from a gracious lady who has every right to complain—but doesn't. She says:

"Miss Glidden's problem about the roadblocks is indeed serious. I know, because I'm one of them.

"I always sit on the aisle; somebody always wants to sit in the middle, and has to push past me with much heaving and straining—and purple thoughts.

"Then, when its time to leave, I'm lifted back into my wheelchair—and there's no opportunity for explanations on either side.

"Please don't use my name—but I do want to apologize to a lot of people who must have thought I had no manners."

H. T.

Nobody's ever sent me a more gentle letter, or ever made me feel like a bigger sap. If somebody would lend me a pair of stilts, I'd probably be able to see over the top of a dachshund.

ABOUT CATHOLIC U. AND THE DEVIL

Through Saturday of this week "Kingdom of the Blind" is holding forth on the stage of the theater in Catholic University's Music Building.

Every job in the production is handled by students—from writing to acting to cleaning up around the place.

For example, graduate student Frank Ford is the author of the play. Graduate student Arthur Conescu of 1009 Urell pl. ne. plays the part of the devil. And graduate student Elizabeth Mooney of 1724 Allison st. ne. is one of the cleaner-uppers.

Devil Conescu reveals that the other night he inadvertently spilled a cup of water on the stage, and Miss Mooney had to drop everything else to come tidy things up.

"Since she had lots of other work to do without my clumsiness," reports Devil Conescu, "she really told me a thing or two. As a matter of fact, you might say that it was the first time that anybody ever gave the Devil the devil."

FERVENT HOPE

The Nation's disc jockeys are going to meet in Chicago next week to form a "national judicial body."

Just what we needed! Let's hope the punishment fits the crime.

MONEY BAG

For a moment I thought it was a dream come true . . . samples from the Treasury Department.

It was a money sack from the Treasury coin room, neatly done up with one of those official metal seals. The contents jingled entrancingly. What a thing for a fellow to find on his desk in the morning!

Then I spotted the memo that came with it:

"Tokens for Children's Hospital, from the Treasury Coin Room. George B. Glazer."

TEST

Mrs. Russell Dake of 1720 35th st. nw. writes: "The Youth Fellowship of St. Luke's Methodist Church, 35th and Wisconsin ave. nw., will hold a lawn party and supper this Saturday from 5 to 7:30 p. m. Do you use items about lawn parties?"

Ordinarily, Mrs. Dake, I do not. But I'll make an exception in this case, because I'm dying to see whether our printers put an "r" in your name. Anybody wanna bet?

[Yeah! Ed.]

Grin and Bear It

"Comes the revolution, that's mine!"

Here's How to Get Some Picassos

Hollywood.—A man who lives in Beverly Hills is a friend of Pablo Picasso. He recently wrote to the artist and reported that he was in financial distress. "If you could sell a few of your paintings to me at a low price," he suggested, "I then could resell them here and make some money." Picasso replied that his paintings now bring $10,000. "However," added the artist, who never has made a secret of his amorous interests, "if you would send me some new or second-hand mink coats—price no object—we could make an exchange." The man sent him three second-hand mink coats and received in exchange three first-rate Picassos.

When Danny Kaye moves to the Warner lot his wife, Sylvia Fine, will be billed as a producer at $100,000 per picture.

Anita Loos' book, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," which was a best seller a generation ago, still is a best seller in Russia where it is in constant demand as descriptive of life in a capitalistic state . . . A one-time prominent director has been borrowing money, clothing, liquor and even pieces of furniture from his friends and never bothers to return any of these items. Maxwell Anderson, who was one of his victims, was asked, "Doesn't he ever return anything?" And he replied, "Only visits."

June Havoc who came here to earn $10,000 for three days' shooting in "Gentleman's Agreement," will not return to Broadway next season. Miss Havoc will sign a film contract . . . A movie actress confided her problem to George S. Kaufman: "I don't know whether or not to marry and take the alimony. They give $2000 a week, don't they?"

Aldous Huxley was intrigued by an article in a medical journal about experiments in rabbit breeding in which no male rabbits were used. The offspring of these experiments were all female rabbits. "Most interesting, most interesting," said Huxley. "And if this should become popular there will be a vast change in Hollywood. Louisa Mayer will be head of MGM. The Burbank Studios will be headed by the Warner Sisters and 20th Century-Fox of course will have to be renamed 20th Century-Vixen."

When Albert Einstein was last in Hollywood a famous movie couple saw him walking on the outskirts of the city and asked him to pose for their home-movie camera. Einstein obliged and the stars thanked him for his patience. "Just for that," they told him, "we will send you autographed pictures of ourselves." Einstein was puzzled by this and asked the Californian who had been accompanying him, "Who are those people?"

The man identified them. "What do they do?" Einstein continued. He was told, "They are movie stars." Einstein pointed to the skies and said, "About these stars I know very little." Then he pointed to the movie actors, "And about those stars I know nothing."

Ray Josephs, the newspaperman-author of "Argentine Diary," will be sending dispatches from South America again shortly. Josephs received his early newspaper training as a reporter in Philadelphia. This was during the depression years when the Stotesburys gave a party to mark the debut of a young lady in the family, and barred the press for fear that the description of such an event in a time of world depression would bring an unfavorable reaction. Private detectives in full dress were stationed at all the doors to bar reporters. There was an eight-foot fence around the estate and this was freshly painted white so that any one who could climb over it would be stained with the paint and be easily identified. Josephs got the exclusive story, when attired in white tie and tails he pole-vaulted over the fence.
